Special to The New York Times.

WALCOTT, Wyoming, March 10.—The Thomas car in the Paris Matin-NEW YORK TIMES race from New York to Paris at 8:45 to-night shot into Walcott, a town of about 100 souls, four miles from the North Platte River.

Walcott is ninety-eight miles from Laramie by the line of the Union Pacific, but the big gray bird was forced to fly 150 miles in order to reach this point, at least 100 miles of the way through the snow.

Starting from Laramie at 7:35 this morning, the first thirty miles was easy, and the American car followed a terrific pace set by the pilot car over the level Laramie Plains. Some miles were reeled off close to the even minute, and the Laramie Automobile Club's representative dropped to the remote rear.

Thirty miles out of Laramie we began to meet the snow; fifty miles out we were plowing through eighteen inches of it. Three miles east of Medicine Bow the Thomas car crossed the Medicine Bow River on two feet of ice. Ten minutes later we stopped in front of Medicine Bow's one store, famous as the scene of Trampas's death in "The Virginian."

"She's a go-getter," said the admiring men of Medicine Bow of our car, and while we ate lunch the women of Medicine Bow tied their handkerchiefs to it in the fond but foolish hope that the bits of linen would some day reach Paris. Certain members of the Thomas crew being sadly in need of handkerchiefs—enough said.

On leaving Medicine Bow the flier began to buck real drifts, and for four hours the two cars struggled with the worst snow of the day.

It took just four hours to smash through twenty-three miles to Hanna, the biggest coal-mining town in Wyoming. With a terrific hill to face, I decided to ship all excess baggage on to Rawlins, and the car was stripped of all unnecessary weight, the only exception being the fated Capt. Hansen, who may be a good man for Siberia, but here it is a case of "everybody works but Hansen; he sits around all day."

After taking off the excess weight we put on the chains, and the flier simply romped up the steep incline. We have with us a very "new" young man from the big town on the Bronx, and as a photographer he is all right. His slang is somewhat unknown to Wyoming, but he sizes up the Thomas hill climb in a few well chosen words:

"Whee," he says, "Old Girl puts on her bangles and she walks up one side of the Rocky Mountains and down the other and never draws a long breath. She handles snow just like an ice-cream factory."

Sundown found us again on a divide, and at nightfall we are again plunging through the snowdrifts with all hands overboard every few minutes to fight them. The shovel brigade was often called out in full force to help the Reo pilot through the drifts. The pacemaker met some lovely drifts and three times was literally carried out bodily.

The run after dark was a hard one, but in another three hours we sighted the lights of Walcott, and decided to stop here for the night, crossing the North Platte in the morning on the railroad bridge.

Walcott is an enthusiastic little town without water. We learn that the Italians are making good time through Nebraska. Wait until the Marconi fleet arrives in the Rocky Mountains, and we shall see whether their cathedral on stilts is any good on a side hill.

If she gets up against some of the slants and angles which the old Thomas negotiated to-day she will be going some.

We leave here at daylight in the morning, having missed another reception at Rawlins to-night. However, the sleep will not come amiss, and I have wired the Reception Committee to wrap up the banquet against our need in crossing the Red Desert. E. LINN MATHEWSON.

ZUST OFF FOR JULESBURG.

Makes Fast Time in Hot Race After the Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

OGALLALA, Neb., March 10.—The Italian car, speeding west to Julesburg, reached here at 10:30 o'clock to-night, having covered 188 miles since morning. It has twenty miles to go to reach Julesburg. The crew hopes to make Cheyenne to-morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., March 10.—The Italian Zust car passed through here shortly after 6 o'clock to-night in hot pursuit of the Thomas car, which is leading the New York to Paris race. The Italians were elated over the excellent progress they have been able to make in the last two days, and declared that they will overhaul the leader in another week. The car was running in fine shape, and with

ARREST AT HOTEL SEVILLE.

Man and Woman Again in Trouble for Alleged "Get-Rich-Quick" Swindle.

Thomas O'Connor and Frances McLean, declared by the police to be O'Connor's wife, both of whom were arrested some time ago, charged with operating a get-rich-quick swindle, but were discharged in a police court, were rearrested late last night by United States Marshal Henkel, Central Office Detectives McConville and Nelson, and Post Office Inspector Kincaid in the Hotel Seville, at Madison Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street.

The arrests were made on warrants issued on Feb. 21 last by United States District Judge Chatfield on Federal indictments charging the couple with conspiracy to defraud. The evidence on which the indictments were based was supplied by Post Office Inspectors after the couple had been discharged from police cutsody.

Since the filing of the indictment Detectives McConville and Nelson, who arrested the couple in November last, have been searching for them. Yesterday they found them at the Hotel Seville. The couple declined to come out of their room, however, or to open the door to the detectives until Marshal Henkel arrived.

The couple had on their outer wraps and were prepared for the street. The detectives took them to the Tombs Prison, where they were locked up for the night. Thomas Horner of Phoebus, Va., who, the detectives say, is a brother of Frances McLean, was arrested earlier in the evening as he was entering the hotel. He was locked up charged with violating the postals laws in using the mails to defraud.

The swindle which the detectives accused them of operating was a variation of the bucket shop game, in which much literature intended to entice the unwary was used, according to the detectives. The police said at the time that they found many references, apparently intended to be sent out to clients, when they hesitated to jump at the bait, all of which, according to the police, were forged. They were discharged in the Tombs Court on a technical point.

O'Connor, according to the police, is the man who shot "Big Bill" Hennig, the gambler, on the street in December, 1906.

AERIAL WARSHIPS COMING.

Also Wireless Telephony That Will Circle the Globe, Tesla Tells Diners.

Rear Admiral Charles Sigsbee and Nikola Tesla were guests of honor at a dinner and reception given by the Entertainment Club in the Waldorf-Astoria last night. Gen. J. Fred Pierson presided. Nikola Tesla spoke on the future of warfare. He said:

"Mankind will eventually harness the waterfalls and transform this enormous pressure into energy, and this will simplify warfare. Aerial vessels of war will be used to the exclusion of ships, and with 10,000,000 tons of energy this country will be equipped to rout the civilized world.

"I consider the greatest achievement of humanity will be wireless telephony, which may be operated throughout the globe. This will solve a thousand intricate features of our civilization. It is scientifically possible, and it will gradually become an actuality."

Admiral Sigsbee related his social activities during his long career in the navy. He told of a pork and beans dinner he ate with the family of Mme. Emma Eames in Shanghai in 1866.

WOMEN TEACHERS CHALLENGE

They Call on Men in Schools to Debate Equal Pay Question.

If the men teachers in the public schools of this city accept a challenge which has been sent out by the Interborough Association of Women Teachers, there will be a debate on the subject, "Equal Pay for Equal Work," in Terrace Garden on the evening of March 27.

In the challenge the women teachers ask: "Should the sex of an incumbent determine the salary of a position in the public schools of New York City?"

Miss Grace C. Strachan, President of the Interborough Association of Women Teachers, has sent the challenge to Edgar S. Shumway, President of the Male High School Teachers' Association; William Ettinger, President of the Association of Men Teachers and Principals of New York City, and Henry Moore, President of the Association of Men Teachers of Brooklyn and Queens.

In a letter accompanying the challenge Miss Strachan promises that the women will bear the expense of the debate. If the men teachers accept the challenge the committees of the three organizations challenged will meet a committee from the Women Teachers' Association to-night.

JOHNSON BOOM IGNORED.

All Bryan Talk at Meeting of National Committeemen.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 10.—There was little cheer for any John A. Johnson boom in the gathering of the Democratic National leaders in the Auditorium Annex to-day.

"We don't know Gov. Johnson in Nebraska," said Mayor James C. Dahlman of Omaha. "Nebraska is solid for Bryan."

"New York State wants Bryan, not Johnson," said National Committeeman Norman E. Mack.

"Bryan will get the solid South," said Committeeman Clark Howell of Georgia.

C. W. Franklin of Denver explained the plans perfected by the local organization of the Convention City. He exhibited a plan showing the seating capacity, which calls for 11,822 registered seats.

Cincinnati Districts Indorse Taft.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 10.—"Taft first, last, and all the time," was the form of indorsement adopted to-day by the Republican Congressional Conventions of the First and Second Districts in Secretary Taft's home city.

Ohio Eighteenth District for Taft.

ALLIANCE, Ohio, March 10.—The Republicans of the Eighteenth Congressional District to-day nominated Congressman James Kennedy for a fourth term, eulogized President Roosevelt, and indorsed Taft.

Danger in London Schools.

LONDON, March 10.—The recent disaster in the Cleveland public school was mentioned before the meeting of the London County Council this afternoon by Walter Reynolds.

He declared that within the last three days he had visited many of the County Council schools in London and found conditions similar to those that contributetd to the heavy death roll at Cleveland. He had seen many school buildings, the doors of which opened inward. The Committee on Education promised to conduct an investigation.

ERIE ROAD SELLS MORE LEHIGH STOCK

NOTES MATURING SOON

No Plans Apparently Yet Made to Meet These Obligations, Which Are Selling Around 90.

The Erie Railroad, it was definitely stated in the financial district yesterday, sold a fortnight ago $1,000,000 of Lehigh Valley stock which it had held since 1901. The stock was acquired in the open market, and is said to have been disposed of in the same way, presumably in Philadelphia, where the trading in the stock is most active. The stock has been selling between $54 and $52 a share recently for the $50 shares, so that the Erie probably realized a little over $1,000,000.

The suggestion was advanced yesterday that the sale of this Lehigh Valley stock was directly connected with the Erie's plans for financing the $5,500,000 of notes which mature on April 8. It was not admitted, however, in banking quarters where accurate information regarding Erie matters is had that there was any such connection or that the financing of the road's maturing notes had yet been provided for. Nor could definite confirmation be had of the reported sale of Lehigh Valley stock.

These notes, which mature less than a month hence, have sold recently as low as 90, and yesterday it was reported that they were offered as low as 88, though the prevailing quotation for them was above that price. So low a price for a note maturing in the very near future was made the basis of much comment regarding their position. The inference was generally drawn that no plans have yet been decided upon regarding the manner in which these maturing obligations will be met.

That the Erie Railroad's earnings have been much less than enough to meet its fixed charges is of course a matter of common knowledge. The last two monthly statements, those for December and January, have shown that the net earnings have not been enough within many hundreds of thousands of dollars to provide for fixed charges, which in round numbers amount to $1,000,000 a month.

Several months ago the Erie Railroad sold part of the Lehigh Valley stock which it acquired seven years ago. Presumably the stock which it has sold recently represented the balance of its holdings. It was acquired by the Erie about the same time that several coal roads purchased blocks of Lehigh Valley with the purpose of fixing control of that road in hands friendly to the general coal road interests.

MORE POWER FOR MURPHY.

Tammany Executive Commitee Gives Him Control of Removals.

The Executive and General Committee of Tammany Hall met last night at the Wigwam, issued the call for the primaries, set the date for the Assembly District conventions, appropriated $500 for the Kruger monument fund, and changed the rules in such a way that the hand of Leader Charles F. Murphy was materially strengthened and his domination of the organization from this on would be absolute.

J. Sergeant Cram presided at the meeting of the General Committee, Deputy Fire Commissioner Patrick A. Whitney acting as Secretary in the absence of Thomas F. Smith.

"Little Tim" Sullivan introduced the resolution changing the rules. In the main the changes are insignificant. One of them, however, alters an old Devery rule in such a way that the Executive Committee, which Mr. Murphy dominates, is given absolute power of removal of members on charges.

A resolution calling on the city administration to take such steps as necessary to push to completion the construction of new subways was also passed.

Mr. Murphy was asked what comment he had to make on State Chairman Conners's remarks about the anti-race track gambling bills. Mr. Conners expressed the belief that the Democrats at Albany would vote for the bill. Mr. Murphy refused to comment further than to say that the Tammany organization had not instructed any of the legislators at Albany how they should act. The Tammany leader conveyed the impression that he was opposed to the bills.

COLLEGE STICKS TO SPORTS.

Swarthmore Rejects Jeanes Bequest—Was Less Than $50,000.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—Anna T. Jeanes's gift to Swarthmore College in her will, conditional upon the abandonment of "participation in intercollegiate athletics, sports, and games," was rejected to-day by the Board of Managers of the college.

A great surprise was embodied in the report of the committee appointed to ascertain the value of the gift. It found that, including certain property, the possession of which might be disputed in the courts, the total value is between $24,000 and $47,000. Exclusive of that property, the value is only from $10,000 to $12,000.

This estimate presents a startling contrast to the many guesses which have been ventured concerning the value of the bequest since Miss Jeanes's death in September last. These ranged all the way from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

FINDS CAUSE OF SCHOOL FIRE.

Collinwood Coroner Says It Was Started by Steam Pipes.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 10.—"The loss of the lives of the little children in the Collinwood school fire was absolutely inexcusable," Coroner Burke declared to-day, after making a thorough investigation into the causes of the fire.

"The poor little children were caught in a veritable trap and held and crushed until burned to death," he said.

"Some one is responsible for this, and should be held.

"I find that the steam pipes caused the fire by being placed too close to the wood of the joists. There is no doubt in my mind that the overheated pipes caused the fire.

"But the children should have escaped, and would have done so, had it not been for the partition built in the hall at the foot of the stairway. This is what caused their death."

The Coroner said that the building was also deficient in automatic devices for opening of doors.

MAY BRING LILLEY TO BAR.

He Must Testify to Naval Charges or be Liable to Expulsion.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—If Representative George L. Lilley of Connecticut persists in his refusal to testify on his charges of corruption against the Electric Boat Company, involving members of the Naval Committee, he will be summoned before the bar of the House as defendant in a motion for his expulsion.

"The committee has given Mr. Lilley every opportunity to present what facts he knows to the committee," said Chairman Boutell to-day. "At his request we have delayed the hearing once already, though the date of the first hearing was set with his knowledge. We have notified him of the procedure we have decided to follow, but as yet we have received no answer from him.

"If he does not appear at the hearing on Thursday, or if he refuses to testify first, I suppose, the procedure we will adopt will be to report to the House and call him to the bar. When he appears there he will be the defendant."

Mr. Lilley is expected to appear before the committee with counsel, ready to fight bitterly against having to take the stand before he has examined a number of other witnesses, but the committee is determined not to allow his counsel to say anything except in advice to his client.

FIRE NEAR DYNAMITE BOX.

Whole Row of Harlem Tenants Flee in Terror from Danger Zone.

All the tenants in the row of houses on the north side of 144th Street, between Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue, fled last night at 10 o'clock, when a shed over a portable boiler in the middle of the street caught fire. For hardly thirty feet away, on the site of a house about to be built, on the south side of 144th Street, was a big box labeled "Dynamite."

Excavating has begun on the site of the big apartment house and the tenants in the block have already complained to the police about the big blasts of dynamite which, they say, rock their houses. When the fire engines rattled up last night the heads of housholds, gathering up canary birds and gramophones, fled with their broods to what they considered safe territory.

The firemen edged up to the "dynamite" box and poured water all over it. Then they put a rope around the burning shed and pulled it away from the neighborhood of the box. They had no trouble putting out the fire.

Slowly the tenants tiptoed back to their homes on the north side of the street. Some of them said that when they stopped to listen they could hear the dynamite in the box "sizzling."

Tenants and property owners appointed a committee to complain to-day about Antonio Pucci, who is doing the excavating for the new house. They declare that the blasts are too heavy; that the dynamite box is left open and unguarded for hours during the day, and that last night it had no guard at all.

OCEAN LINERS IN 4-DAY RACE.

Passengers Forgot to Eat While the Oscar II. and Staatendam Speeded.

After an exciting race, which lasted four days and caused the passengers on the two steamers to stay on deck instead of going below to meals in their anxiety to see who was winning, the Oscar II. of the Scandinavian Line, from Copenhagen, beat her rival, the Statendam of the Holland-America Line, from Rotterdam, by getting in to the Quarantine station yesterday one hour ahead.

The two liners fell in company last Friday morning and kept in sight of each other until they docked at Hoboken yesterday morning. For three days there was a keen struggle for the lead; first the Oscar II. would forge a little ahead and then the Statendam would creep up.

On Monday the Danish steamer got the lead and kept it despite the efforts of her Dutch rival.

BRITAIN TO BE SUPREME.

Asquith Promises That German Warship Building Will Be Outdone.

LONDON, March 10.—The comparative strength of the navies of Great Britain and Germany was again brought to the front this afternoon in the House of Commons by the debate on the naval estimates. Herbert H. Asquith, the Acting Premier, reassarted the intention of the Government to maintain Great Britain's unassailable supremacy at sea.

Mr. Asquith admitted that if Germany's present programme of naval construction was carried out she would have 13 Dreadnoughts and Invincibles to Great Britain's 12 by 1911, assuming that Great Britain failed to lay down ships in 1909 to be completed prior to that date.

Mr. Asquith said he could promise without the faintest hesitation that if the Government found a reasonable probability of the German programme being carried out in the way the paper figures suggested, it would provide, not only for an additional number of ships, but that they be laid down by such a date as to make sure that the suggested superiority of Germany would not become a fact.

BERLIN, March 10.—A local news agency declares to-day it has learned from an unimpeachable authority that King Edward has sent a letter to Emperor William couched in the most cordial and friendly terms concerning the revelation by The London Times of the existence of private correspondence between the Emperor and Lord Tweedmouth, First Lord of the British Admiralty. King Edward is said to take the viewpoint that the British Parliament and the public sharply disapprove of the action of The Times.

SEIZE WOMEN'S FINERY.

Customs Men Hold Up Dressmakers Accused of Attempted Smuggling.

On the arrival of the Holland-America liner Statendam at her pier in Hoboken yesterday from Rotterdam, via Boulogne, the customs inspectors held up two women dressmakers of this city and accused them of attempting to smuggle goods ashore with their baggage. Josephine Biran had $800 worth of dress goods, some made up, among her soiled linen, without having declared it. The baggage was seized and sent to the Public Stores for further examination.

Mrs. A. Pougal was detected going ashore wearing a valuable gown concealed under a raincoat. The gown had been carefully tucked up so that the ends should not appear below the coat, but one of the women Inspectors had her suspicions aroused by the woman's actions on the pier and asked her to go into the examination room and disrobe. Dress materials were found in her possession valued at several thousand dollars.

BOYS MAROONED ON FLOATING ICE

CARRIED HALF A MILE

Wash from a Passing Tug Nearly Threw Them Off—Pulled Ashore by a Rope at 81st Street.

The crowds in Riverside Park, who had turned out to enjoy the bracing air yesterday, were startled about 5 o'clock in the afternoon by cries from the river shore at Eighty-ninth Street. There was a rush to the place whence the cries came, and it was found that a large section of ice upon which some boys were playing tag had been broken away from the main body by a floating spar and was drifting down the stream carrying with it three boys, who had been unable to escape when their companions, warned by the crackling of the ice, ran ashore.

The river was comparatively free from ice at this point, and the floe drifted rapidly down stream, gaining speed as it neared the middle of the river, where the current was swifter than inshore.

The men in the crowd that lined the shore shouted directions to the boys, but they did not seem to realize their danger, and jumped about on the ice, waving their hats to the anxious watchers on the river bank. They seemed to enjoy the attention they were attracting. As they floated down the stream attempts were made to get out lifeboats to save the lads. These were frustrated by the congestion of the ice about the boathouses.

At Eighty-seventh Street a passing tug caused a swell that made the floe seesaw dangerously, and it looked as if all three would be thrown into the river. Still they were seemingly unafraid, waving their caps to the crowd on shore. Those on the tugboat evidently did not see the stranded trio.

At this point the floe parted, leaving two boys on one piece and one on another. Many attempts were being made to reach the youths in rowboats and launches, and tugs sounded warnings on their whistles for approaching craft to slacken speed. The trend of the tide brought the boys in closer to the shore near Eighty-first Street, and after many unsuccessful attempts a rope was thrown across the floe on which the two boys were. They seized it and were pulled to the shore. Then the rope was thrown to the third boy and he was pulled to the side of the pier in the same way.

The pier to which the boys were drawn is some feet above the water. Policeman John A. Coleman lay down, and with Edward Hagin of 172 West Eighty-second Street and George Girey of 172 West Eighty-second Street holding his legs, leaned over and one by one hauled the youths to the top.

In the excitement one of the boys got away without giving his name to the policeman, but the other two said they were John McCarthy, 14 years old, of 200 West Ninety-ninth Street, and Rodney Bowen, 11 years old, of 129 West Ninetieth Street. They were not at all worried by their experience.

When a TIMES reporter called at the McCarthy boy's home last night, John at first denied the experience. His parents were out, but his sister, a girl of 16, took up the investigation, and her brother finally admitted his part in the escapade. He had not said anything about it at home.

"Oh, won't his father give it to him," his sister said. Then, turning to John, "The carpet cleaner handle for yours."

"I don't care," said John, "I had a bully good ride and we should have made the dock alright. No, I wasn't afraid," this deprecatingly.

"He isn't afraid of anything," his sister said. "Fancy, and with little Francis here just getting over the measles. Don't you know you might have been drowned?"

"I can swim," the boy replied.

Then his sister sent him to bed, with the promise that his father would complete his adventure when he heard about it. John said the other boy, who got away without giving his name, was Bernar Hughes of 623 Amsterdam Avenue. Inquiries at the other houses showed that both boys were in bed and that neither had told their parents anything of their exciting experience.

BOMB IN A FISH STORE.

Windows Blown Out and Tenants in a Panic—Work of Business Rival?

Everybody living in the neighborhood of 344 East Eleventh Street, which is a little two-story extension of the house on First Avenue, rushed into the street at 10:30 o'clock last night when a bomb exploded and blew out the front window of a fish store in the extension kept by Frank Romazzo. The panic was soon over, as the bomb did no other damage.

Policeman Brook saw a man walking away just before the explosion, and caught him and took him to the East Fifth Street Station, where he said he was John Kolar of 184 Avenue A. He convinced the Lieutenant that he had not thrown the bomb and was set free.

Romazzo believes that the explosion was the work of business rivals. He says he has never received any Black Hand letters.

HONESTY; THEN POOR HOUSE.

William Allen White Tells Chicago Club That's the Rule Now.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 10.—More righteousness and less creed was preached to-day to the City Club by William Allen White, author and newspaperman from Emporia, Kan., who declared under present conditions honesty is the road to the poorhouse.

"I must deprecate the present lax methods of charity," said Mr. White. "Those who need it don't get it.

"The millionaires have not returned to the common people what they took away from them. And under the present scheme of government these millionaires are fostered; the rich get richer and the poor get poorer without any doubt. There is an uneven distribution of wealth that tends to make the poorhouse the general destination of the honest man.

"The City Club can do nothing better than get behind a movement to better social conditions."

DOCTORS TURN FIREMEN.

Have St. Vincent Hospital Laundry Blaze Out When Firemen Arrive.

Dr. Lawlor, house surgeon of St. Vincent's Hospital, saw flames in the second story of the laundry building beside which is the stable, where five ambulance horses are stabled.

The doctor asked the sisters to quiet any nervous patients, while he with Drs. Murphy, Sullivan, Quinn, Coffey, and Wall ran into the courtyard, put out the fire, and saved the horses.

$5,000 BULLDOG POISONED.

George Gould's Heath Baronet Killed at Lakewood—A Famous Champion.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 10.—Heath Baronet, the $5,000 champion bulldog owned by George J. Gould, died last night of poison. Whether the poison was administered to the dog by design or eaten by him accidentally is not known.

Heath Baronet was a great pet in the Gould family, and Mrs. Gould especially is much affected by the animal's death. She declined to-night to talk about it.

The dog was one of the most valuable bulldogs in America. In the last six years he has taken many blue ribbons at shows in this country and in England. He was English bred, and was 7½ years old. Mr. Gould bought him after he had won first prizes at many kennel exhibitions in Great Britain. His father was Hermit and his mother Heath Clock, both prize winners.

SKI CHAMPION KILLED.

Carried Over a Precipice by an Avalanche in Switzerland.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 10.—Stephen Koch of Saint Moritz, the champion ski runner of Switzerland, met his death yesterday while indulging in his favorite occupation.

He was skiing in the mountains above Bergun when he was carried over a precipice by an avalanche.

CAPTURED A MARCONIGRAM.

Operator on Big Liner Grabbed One and Was Discharged for Pirating News

On the last outward voyage of the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie the Marconi operator, Stickrath, captured a wireless message on its way from the Ottawa correspondent of The London Standard to his paper, which had reference to the Japanese Exclusion bill in British Columbia. It was partly published in The Daily Bulletin on board the liner.

On the arrival of the steamer at Bremen the operator was discharged by the Marconi Company for "pirating" news. Stickrath was a good operator, and the chief steward said Capt. Hogemann had telegraphed to the office of the Marconi Company in Brussels asking the manager to reinstate the operator.

ORCHARD PLEADS GUILTY.

Withdraws Former Plea for Murder of Ex-Gov. Steunenberg.

CALDWELL, Idaho, March 10.—Harry Orchard to-day, before Judge Fremont Wood, pleaded guilty to having killed ex-Gov. Steunenberg by the explosion of a dynamite bomb at his residence here Dec. 30, 1905. He withdrew his former plea of not guilty.

He confessed that he was hired to kill Steunenberg by William D. Haywood, Secretary; Charles H. Moyer, President, and George A. Pettibone of the Western Federation of Miners.

OLD SNOW SWINDLE BOBS UP.

Arrest of a Foreman Discloses That City Has Been Mulcted Again.

Through the arrest yesterday of William Reilly, a foreman of 1,479 Hoe Avenue, the Bronx, by Detectives Russo and Kisselmark it became known that District Attorney Jerome and Commissioner of Street Cleaning Foster Crowell have been investigating irregularities which have recently come to light in connection with the removal of snow from the city's streets.

Mr. Crowell said last night that he believed the graft had been limited, and that the city had been swindled out of only a few hundred dollars at most.

The District Attorney's investigation disclosed that the swindle had been worked by the old plan of substituting fraudulent checks for loads at the dumps.

MME. GOULD DELAYS VISIT.

Postpones Her Sailing Date for Her Trip to America.

PARIS, March 10.—Mme. Anna Gould, who recently divorced her husband, Count Boni de Castellane, has decided to postpone her departure for New York for a few days. Her original plan was to sail from Cherbourg to-morrow.

She will be accompanied home by her children, and expects to remain in American for two months.

TO OPERATE ON GEO. CROCKER

The Banker Makes Light of a Stomach Trouble He Suffers From.

George Crocker, capitalist, banker, and member of many clubs, will be operated on in a few days for an acute stomach trouble. Mr. Crocker's house, at 1 East Sixty-fourth Street, will be converted into a temporary sanitarium. Dr. William T. Bull will perform the operation.

Mr. Crocker refuses to take his condition seriously. He is up and about, and last night, when a TIMES reporter talked to him over the telephone, said:

"I don't talk like a very sick man, do I? It's nothing serious. There's something the matter with my stomach, and Dr. Bull is going to find out what it is. That's all."

TO SUE GEORGE CROCKER.

Knickerbocker Receivers Expected to Foreclose on Estate at Wheatly Hills.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., March 10.—A lis pendens was filed in the Nassau County Clerk's office here to-day, indicating that Ernest Tallman, George L. Rives, and Henry C. Ide, receivers of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, intend to bring an action against George Crocker, R. L. Beeckman, and William L. Stowe to foreclose a mortgage on 180 acres of land at Wheatly Hills.

This land adjoins the estates of the late William C. Whitney, Stanley Mortimer, and other members of the Meadow Brook colony, $150,000 being involved in the action. The mortgage which they wish to foreclose was drawn on June 11, 1904. A handsome country residence and outbuildings are on the estate. It is now owned by Mr. Crocker.

Vanderbilt Robber Found Guilty.

James Anderson, alias Eleazur Hardy, a negro, was convicted yesterday before Judge Foster in General Sessions of stealing $230 worth of silver from the home of William K. Vanderbilt at 660 Fifth Avenue on Feb. 13. In 1899 he was sentenced to Elmira Reformatory for robbing the houses of J. Pierpont Morgan and Charles T. Yerkes. He will be sentenced next Friday for the Vanderbilt robbery.

THAW'S WIFE SUES FOR ANNULMENT

Her Counsel Announces This on Receipt of a Message from the Prisoner.

HE WILL DEFEND THE SUIT

And It Will Be a Real Defense, Says His Lawyer—Theory That Wife Is Forcing Mother's Hand.

Following the statement by Col. Franklin Bartlett of the attitude of Mrs. William Thaw to her son's wife, printed in yesterday's TIMES, Lawyer Daniel O'Reilly, representing young Mrs. Thaw, announced last night that to-day he would serve on Harry K. Thaw in the Matteawan Asylum papers in a proceeding for the annulment of her marriage.

The annulment suit will be brought in the Supreme Court of this State, Mr. O'Reilly said, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw being now a resident of this city at 446 Park Avenue.

It is estimated that about a month will be required for answer to the suit and motions, which may be made before the actual trial is begun. This trial promises to be one of the most interesting examples of court diplomacy and tact that the Pittsburg family has ever essayed.

"The suit will be defended," said A. Russell Peabody, personal counsel for Thaw, at the Hotel Belmont, last night.

"Will the defense be merely the formal defense required in every suit that does not go by default?" he was asked.

"It will be a real defense, a strong defense," he replied.

"What will be the effect of the suit for annulment on Thaw's chances for getting out of Matteawan?" Lawyer O'Reilly was asked.

"The only question at stake in the suit is that of the sanity of the defendant at the time he married the plaintiff," was the reply.

Mr. Peabody would not answer questions as to the possible legal course of the prisoner's family after the suit for annulment is decided. The Thaw counsel have already made it clear that the fight to get Thaw out of Matteawan has not even been shaped yet. Col. Bartlett, who represents the elder Mrs. Thaw, declared yesterday that he had not been called upon to discuss the matter of her son's release from the asylum. He was in the case only for the settling of the domestic troubles between Thaw and his wife, he said, and he believed that an end to them would soon be reached.

Tale of Divorce Evidence.

Harry K. Thaw and his counsel, Mr. Peabody, had a long conference yesterday in the asylum at Matteawan. While this was going on the suggestion came from the wife's side of the case that, far from being sued herself, so anxious was she to end the ties between them that her lawyer was ready to proceed with a divorce suit.

"But Thaw has been in jail for two years. How could a divorce suit be brought?" Mr. O'Reilly was asked.

"Yes," he replied, "but suppose she came into possession of the facts after he had been brought to trial?"

Mr. O'Reilly was at the Grand Central Station at 6 o'clock last night waiting the arrival of Mr. Peabody from Matteawan. Behind him stood a clerk from his office and a clerk from the office of Mr. Peabody. It seemed as though both lawyers desired witnesses or messengers. As Mr. Peabody left the train Mr. O'Reilly stepped forward to greet him, and the two held a conference in the crowd, retiring later to the Hotel Belmont, across the street. There Mr. Peabody drew from an inside pocket a communication, evidently from Harry Thaw, and passed it to Mr. O'Reilly, who read it with interest.

The conference ended with the announcement by Mr. O'Reilly that he would begin suit for the annulment of the marriage this morning. He immediately went to a telephone booth, and informed Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. Mr. Peabody took the adjoining booth and informed Mrs. William Thaw of Mr. O'Reilly's determination.

Wife Forced Mother's Hand?

One of the theories resulting from the announcement was that the hand of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw had been forced by her husband, who wants to get out of Matteawan and continue his life with her.

To annul the marriage it is only necessary to prove that on April 4, 1905, when Thaw married Evelyn Nesbit, he was demented.

"Medical evidence will be required as well as lay testimony," said Mr. O'Reilly last night. "We can produce that evidence and put Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw on the stand also."

Mr. O'Reilly would have nothing to say about the terms of money settlement involved. Nor would Mr. Peabody. Col. Bartlett said that he had nothing to do with that part of the matter at all. As to getting Thaw out of Matteawan, Mr. O'Reilly said:

"An effort will be made in that direction shortly."

The pressing of the annulment proceedings will really mean a preliminary test of Thaw's fitness to be set free. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's winning the case might be a powerful factor in his continued confinement.

Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, who has been ill with the grip, was in bed most of yesterday. She declined to see any one who desired to ask her attitude in these complications.

FRISCO ROAD FINED $13,000.

Pleaded Guilty to Granting Rebates to a Lumber Company.

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—The St. Louis & San Francisco Railway Company was to-day fined $13,000 by Judge Dyer in the United States District Court, the company offering a written plea of guilty to the thirteen indictments charging that the road granted rebates to the Chapman & Dewey Lumber Company of Kansas City.

A fine of $1,000 was imposed on each count, this being the minimum penalty under the law.

FOUR NEGROES LYNCHED.

Mob Takes Vengeance for the Burning of Warehouses.

MOBILE, Ala., March 10.—Dave Poe, Tom Ranston, and two Jenkins brothers, all negroes, were lynched at Van Cleave, Miss., twenty miles north of Biloxi, Miss., by a mob of thirty men last night. All four were hanged to trees.

The immediate cause of the lynching was the burning of the warehouse of Sam Byrd last Friday night, when, it is said, an attempt was made to waylay and rob Byrd, who conducts a store near Van Cleave. Other warehouses were burned in the neighborhood.

TAKES ICE INQUIRY FROM THE GRAND JURY

Mr. Osborne Finds That a Quorum Was Not Present Throughout the Hearing.

BODY PROTESTS TO COURT

Justice Dowling to Pass on the Case To-day—Jackson Fears Indictments Would Not Stand.

Attorney General Jackson's proceeding against the American Ice Company under the anti-trust law halted suddenly yesterday. The Grand Jury's investigation of the company's affairs is likely to be held up for some time, and eventually taken up by a new jury. Acting on instructions from Mr. Jackson, his three assistants announced that the special Grand Jury before which the case has been aired in the last three weeks was unqualified to decide the merits of the evidence.

James W. Osborne and George Gordon Battle, Special Deputy Attorneys General, and William A. De Ford, deputy in Mr. Jackson's office, appeared before the Grand Jury yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock and informed the foreman that the case against the ice company would be withdrawn owing to the fact that a quorum of sixteen jurors had not been present for the entire hearing, and that no sixteen men on the jury had heard all the evidence brought out by the Attorney General's deputies. The foreman was told that a number of jurors had left the room each day after answering to roll call.

There was an immediate protest from Edward J. Cuddihy, the foreman, and a committee of three jurors, composed of Mr. Cuddihy and Jurors Franke and Van Ingen, went at once before Justice Dowling, in the Supreme Court, and asked for instructions. The three lawyers from the Attorney General's office accompanied the jurors. The situation was explained to Justice Dowling and he postponed decision until to-day, when at 2 o'clock he will hear both sides of the argument. Lawyers who expressed an opinion on the case yesterday say that neither Justice Dowling nor the Grand Jury has the power to order the Attorney General to continue any case before a Grand Jury, and that the District Attorney is the only public prosecutor a Grand Jury can compel to appear before it to present evidence.

The discovery that a quorum had not been present in the Ice Trust investigation was made on Monday, when the Grand Jury clerk, who keeps a record of the attendance of jurors informed Mr. Osborne that there were not sixteen jurors who had heard all the evidence. The following communication was sent at once by Mr. Osborne and his associates to the Attorney General:

> Acting in accordance with your instructions, we have presented a considerable part of the evidence in the above proceeding, but we have discovered to-day that no sixteen jurors (which number constitutes a quorum of the Grand Jury) have been present during the introduction of all the testimony.
> We are of the opinion that the validity of an indictment found under these circumstances would be open to a serious attack. The importance of this case to the public is so great that we deem it inadvisable to proceed further, and we think that the case ought to be withdrawn from the further consideration of this Grand Jury.
>
> If the course of action which we suggest meets with your approval we will be glad to have you so advise us, so that we may inform the Grand Jury of our determination at its session to-morrow.

This was the Attorney General's reply sent out yesterday morning:

> I have your letter of yesterday wherein you state that, in the conduct of the investigation of certain charges against the American Ice Company before the Grand Jury attending upon the Supreme Court you have discovered that no sixteen jurors (which number constitutes a quorum of the Grand Jury) have been present during the introduction of all the testimony taken by it, and that in your opinion the validity of any indictment returned thereupon would be open to a serious attack.
> District Attorney Jerome, through his assistant, Mr. Smyth, strongly recommended the present Grand Jury to me as having peculiar qualifications for making the investigation which you have been conducting. However, I concur in your opinion that an indictment returned, under the circumstances which you state, would be open to serious attack as to its validity, and that the case ought to be withdrawn from the further consideration of the present Grand Jury. I instruct you to follow this course, although even the short consequent delay is much to be regretted.

Wesley M. Oler, President of the American Ice Company, was in the anteroom adjoining the chamber in which the Grand Jury sat yesterday when the Attorney General's representatives announced their intention of withdrawing the case from the hands of the jury.

"It is an outrage," Mr. Oler said. "Three weeks have been used up taking testimony before this jury, and now the Attorney General's office proposes to go over it all again. The whole machinery of our office has been stopped while this Grand Jury investigation has been going on. The books of our company have been in the hands of the Attorney General for some weeks, and our clerks cannot properly attend to the details of business without them. I have been before juries in Baltimore, Philadelphia, and many other cities, but I have never seen any such procedure as this. I am not afraid of the outcome of this investigation by this jury or any other jury. It is all the same to me so far as the juries are concerned."

The comment of District Attorney Jerome upon learning that the Attorney General had withdrawn the case from the special Grand Jury was:

"Well, I never appeared before a jury without first learning whether there was a quorum present."

Mr. Osborne said yesterday that he did not know of any precedent in which an unfinished case was taken from a special Grand Jury. He said that all of the evidence had not been presented, although he and his associates of the Attorney General's office had been before the jury almost every day for a fortnight. His only comment on yesterday's action was to say that the correspondence between himself and the Attorney General "speaks for itself."

Attorney General Jackson said late in the afternoon that the taking of the case away from the jury would not seriously affect the proceedings. It would only cause a delay of several weeks.

The special Grand Jury was appointed in January. It indicted E. R. and O. F. Thomas as a result of the Provident Savings Life Assurance Society investigation, and indicted William R. Mortgomery, ex-President of the Hamilton Bank, and also brought in indictments against ex-Gov. Voorhees of New Jersey and Frederick G. Coombes of the Bankers' Life Insurance Company for making a false report to the Superintendent of Insurance.

WESTERN UNION DIVIDEND.

May Be Declared in Scrip or Stock at To-day's Meeting of Directors.

The Directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company meet to-day to act on the quarterly dividend, which in the ordinary course will be payable April 15. The Executive Committee discussed the matter yesterday, but announcement of the decision reached was withheld until after the meeting of the full board to-day.

Three months ago the company suspended the payment of cash dividends and in their place declared a dividend of 1¼ per cent., the old rate, but payable in stock instead of in cash. Rumor was busy yesterday with the form which to-day's dividend action will take. Should the Directors determine to declare a dividend it was said that it might be partly in stock and partly in cash.

In well informed banking circles it was said that the dividend would be paid either in stock or in scrip.

BRONX CONTRACTS AWRY.

Haffen's Chief Engineer Admits Irregularity in Awarding Contracts.

The testimony given yesterday at the continuation of the hearings being held by the Commissioners of Accounts into the affairs of Borough President Haffen's office, in the Bronx, was largely corroborative of what has already been disclosed.

Chief Engineer J. A. Briggs was questioned at length as to the responsibility for charges entered on the books. He said he was not responsible, but the head of the department, in his opinion, would be. He declared that he was not to be held accountable for systems that had been in vogue in the office for twenty-five years.

It was brought out in the afternoon that there was much irregularity in the matter of awarding contracts. In at least one specific case a second to the lowest bid for improvement work had been accepted. In other cases it was shown that contracts had been readvertised, though why the original bids were not accepted did not appear.

The inquiry will go on to-day.

The Piano Everyone Wants To Hear

The PIANOLA PIANO

YOUR friends don't ask you to play through mere courtesy if your piano is a PIANOLA PIANO.

You can give them real pleasure with this instrument. You can play what they like to hear, whether it be a Chopin Nocturne, a MacDowell sketch or the "Waltz" from "The Merry Widow."

You do not have to make excuses for your playing. You are never out of practice.

The Pianola action in the Pianola Piano gives you faultless technique.

The THEMODIST gives you a touch which enables you to make the melody sing as only the best pianists can.

The METROSTYLE guides you to an interpretation practically as artistic as the composer himself would be able to give.

When alone, you enjoy playing the Pianola Piano owing to the individual expression you can impart to the music.

When you play for others, your enjoyment is increased by the pleasure which you give to them.

It is this UNLIMITED CAPACITY FOR GIVING PLEASURE possessed by the Pianola Piano which has carried it to greater popularity than has ever been achieved by any other instrument.

No one of the many imitators of the Pianola Piano possesses its important features.

RED-SHIRTED RUNNER SETS HARLEM AGAPE

It Was Only Farmer Hartmann Hunting for His Stolen Team.

BUT HE WAS PERTURBED

And So Was Ludwig Haselnusstorte, Who Was Helping Him Decorate the Alhambra Gardens.

The Young Men's Democratic Club of Harlem had a dinner last night in Voll's Alhambra Gardens, Seventh Avenue and 126th Street, but for decorative purposes there were only flowers of oratory. A load of palms and cut flowers was stolen from in front of the Alhambra Gardens yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, while some 200 persons, out of the Alhambra Theatre in an intermission, looked on.

John Hartmann, a florist of Wimfield Junction, L. I., brought to town yesterday 100 palms and cut flowers to decorate the Gardens for the dinner. He brought with him Ludwig Haselnusstorte, a helper. Mr. Hartmann took off his brown coat and vest, in which was a silver watch, and left them on the front seat of the wagon. And then he and Ludwig, each seizing a palm, went down into the Alhambra Gardens.

When they got back to the sidewalk for two more palms the two horses, the black wagon, the 98 palms, the four and a half dozen roses, the brown coat, and all the rest had gone. Somebody among the 200 onlookers said they had seen a boy lead the horses around into 126th Street, where two or three men had jumped aboard. Then the team was driven west in 126th Street.

The figure in a red shirt running up and down 126th Street yesterday afternoon and last night was John Hartmann, who, it may be said, was perturbed. Shortly after 4 o'clock he got into the West 125th Street Police Station. He figured it out that the thieves had taken his wagon to the Fort Lee Ferry at the foot of West 130th Street. The police found out by telephone that the 4 o'clock boat had started for the Jersey shore, and they could get no satisfaction from the ferry house on the other side of the river.

A general alarm was sent out for the wagon and team. The wagon had on its bed the name of its owners in small letters, but Mr. Hartmann found in 126th Street, just west of Seventh Avenue, a pot of black paint and a brush.

All last night Mr. Hartmann in his red shirt was oscillating between the West 125th Street Station and the Alhambra Gardens, accompanied by Ludwig, telling all who would listen about the mean trick that somebody had played upon him. Up to last midnight the police had found no trace of the wagon or the thieves.

RIVAL FOR GERMAN LINES.

Lower Rates on Ships to Ply Between This Port and Hamburg.

Atlantic passenger lines will have a new competitor in the Continental trade next month, when, on April 1, a new steamship, the Volturno, will leave this port for Hamburg under the flag of the New York and Continental Steamship Company.

The new firm has been formed by a combination of C. B. Richard and the Erie Railroad Company to continue the competition now existing between the Russian Steamship Line to Libau and the German companies.

Three steamships have been built, of which the Volturno is the first, of 10,000 tonnage, with accommodation for 150 cabin and 1,400 steerage passengers. The company will run a fortnightly service between this port and Hamburg and carry emigrants at the rate of $23, against $30 now charged by the Hamburg-American Line.

The cabin rate has not yet been fixed, but it will be considerably lower than the other lines.

SAYS SHE FEARS HUSBAND.

Mrs. Baudouine Thinks He's Plotting to Get Rid of Her and Their Child.

Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman gave Mrs. Mai Alden Baudouine $250 a month alimony and a counsel fee of $750 yesterday, pending the trial of the suit for divorce which John F. Boudouine has instituted against her. They were married at Larchmont Manor, Westchester County, on Aug. 1, 1900, and have one son, Alden Boudouine, 6 years old. Since August, 1902, they have lived apart.

The complaint in the action was served on Feb. 24. In an affidavit made by Mrs. Baudouine, she says that the allowance of $250 a month which her husband has been giving her while they have been separated, is insufficient to keep her and their child in the station of life to which they have been accustomed. She gives her husband's income as $35,000 a year, which is derived by him as beneficiary and trustee of the estate of his father, Charles A. Baudouine.

Mrs. Baudouine says her husband lives in lavish style at the Clarendon apartment house, Eighty-sixth Street and Riverside Drive, where he occupies three floors, besides which he has two automobiles and the schooner yacht Marjory. The affidavit goes on:

> The plaintiff has for many years led a fast and extravagant life and spent a considerable fortune yearly, and has many intimate friends among men of questionable character who are likely to back him up in any unconscionable scheme he would undertake to get rid of the defendant and their child; and your petitioner believes he will use every effort to do so, and to meet such schemes and plots she will require the use of considerable money for her own vindication and for the future of their child.

The complaint alleges that on Feb. 11, this year, at the Hotel Remington, 129 West Forty-ninth Street, Mrs. Baudouine was guilty of misconduct. It further charges that in the last three years she similarly misconducted herself both at Larchmont Manor and in this city.

The answer is a denial to these allegations, and further sets up that between 1904 and the present time Baudouine has frequently misconducted himself.

HITCHCOCK TRIAL BEGINS.

Only Five Jurors in the Box at the Close of the First Day's Session.

Though the examination of talesmen went on before Judge Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court throughout both sessions of the court yesterday, only five jurors were chosen to try Raymond Hitchcock, the comedian, who is under indictments charging him with mistreating little girls.

Hitchcock reached the Criminal Court Building early, accompanied by his wife, Flora Zabelle. She was told by the doorkeeper that no women could be permitted in court, but was allowed to sit in the ante-room, where Evelyn Nesbit Thaw spent so much time during her husband's trial.

Hitchcock watched closely the examination of talesmen. Mr. Garvan did not question very closely, but Mr. Stanchfield put each one through a sharp examination.

At the morning session twelve were called, but only two were chosen. They were Louis Schachne, a real estate agent, who lives at 163 East Ninety-fourth Street, and Sidney A. Morley, a paper dealer, of 73 West 130th Street.

In the afternoon session three others were chosen. They were Bernard Hyman, a tobacconist, of 119 East Seventeenth Street; Henry Wolf, treasurer of a publishing house at 2 Walker Street, and Morris M. Green, a broker, of 48 West Seventy-third Street.

Besides Mr. Stanchfield, Hitchcock is represented by H. J. Grey, Herman Fromme, and Carl Fischer-Hansen.

NOT GHOSTS, JUST GIRLS.

Mischievous Inmates of Magdalen Home Give Watchman a Bad Fright.

Jacob Leopold, watchman in the Magdalen Home for Girls at 214th Street and Borden Avenue, the Bronx, cracked his shin against the leg of a table when he was making his way through the laundry on his round of inspection in the dark early yesterday morning. He grunted with pain, and there came from the darkness a sound like a giggle. There should have been no one in the building, however, and Leopold ran out into the street shouting, "Ghosts!"

He got a policeman, and with drawn revolvers the two men went into the laundry. Suddenly they switched on the light, but sprang back into a corner, their pistols poked out in front, as a chorus of giggles greeted their action. Then the policeman and watchman saw protruding from beneath the table a small shoe.

A few pokes with a nightstick persuaded Miss Mary Mullen, 18 years old and pretty, to creep out from her hiding place. With her came Emma Vernon, also 18 and good-looking.

"So you were going to escape, were you?" said Miss Lavinia C. Montgomery, Assistant Superintendent of the Home, whom Leopold called.

"It was worth being caught," tittered Miss Mullen, "just to see how frightened that watchman was."

As it is punishable by expulsion to lead an escape from the home, Miss Montgomery asked the policeman to take Miss Mullen to the Night Court. Emma Vernon, who had gone to the home when she found herself without funds or friends in the city, was allowed to stay.

Magistrate Steinert suggested that Miss Mullen might return to her parents in Richmond, Va., but the girl said she didn't think they wanted her at home, as she had written to her mother three times and got no reply.

The Magistrate finally sent her to the court prison pending instructions from the girl's home in reply to a letter sent by Miss Doyle, the Probation Officer.

PERIL FROM FALLING GLASS.

Police Cordon Guards Crowds at West Eighteenth Street Fire Scene.

It was necessary to keep a police guard in front of the burned building at 38 West Eighteenth Street throughout yesterday to keep people from being injured by the falling glass from the windows broken by the heat of the flames.

Until afternoon the firemen pumped water into the building to put out smoldering embers, and the Hudson Tunnel Company was considered fortunate that no damage was done to the tubes from the volume of water. It was stated that there had not only been no damage to the tubes, but no delay to the trains.

It is estimated that the damage will amount to $250,000, which is covered by insurance. These firemen were injured by falling glass:

Capt. McGUIRE, Engine 8, artery cut in his right arm.

EDWARD RYAN, Engine 3, hands severely cut by falling glass.

WILLIAM GRAY, Engine 72, cut about the face and hands.

FRANK WARDEN, Engine 3, cut about the face.

EDWARD J. SMITH, Engine 19, cut about the head.

All the windows in 32, 34, and 36 West Eighteenth Street were brdoken by the heat of the flames.

FLIP IS IN THE LOST COLUMN.

Try Rockefeller Institute, Letter Advises His Disconsolate Mistress.

"Flip," a Boston bulldog with a blue right eye and a brown left eye, wandered away in his gray sweater on Sunday afternoon. He seems to have fallen into strange hands, and his owner, Mrs. I. H. Lehman of 540 West 143d Street, is so anxious about him that she has been advertising for several days in THE TIMES Lost Column.

Mrs. Lehman went out on Saturday leaving Flip in charge of E. Lubkert of 109th Street, near Central Park West. On Sunday, before he had been sent for by his mistress, Mr. and Mrs. Lubkert started for a walk down Central Park West, taking the dog along. After walking a block Mr. Lubkert looked around. Flip had flown.

Mr. Lehman tried the Lost Column on Monday morning. Yesterday his morning mail was filled with letters relating to Flip. Some of them were from people who represented themselves as past masters in the art of finding lost dogs. "Justice-Compassion," another correspondent, advised Mr. Lehman to try the Rockefeller Institute, where dogs are purchased for vivisection and inoculation experiments, and see if Flip still lived.

Mr. Lehman will investigate the Rockefeller suggestion to-day, though it is his idea that no sane doctor could fail to see that Flip is a dog of high degree and no food for a vivisectionist.

Mrs. Lehman is willing to pay $15 reward for Flip's return, asking no questions. He has a seal-brown body, white head, and four white feet.

AUTO RACE LEADER IN WYOMING SNOW

the roads good had cut down the Thomas lead materially.

The Thomas passed here on its third day out from Omaha, and went on to Sidney the same night. The Zust car was here on its second day from Omaha, and the crew expected to make Julesburg before stopping to-night. This would mean, if they succeed in their purpose, that they would gain a whole day on the leader, except for the forty-two miles intervening between Julesburg and Sidney. The delays of the American car at Cheyenne and Laramie have aided the Italians, so that they may now be regarded as within striking distance of the leader, which is plowing through Wyoming snows on the road to Ogden.

The Italians spent last night at Grand Island, contrary to their expectation. When they reached that point at 11:35 o'clock they found that they had not a sufficient amount of gasoline to carry them on beyond to Kearney, as they had planned. It was impossible to get a fresh supply without too great delay, so they decided to spend the night there and be away by 7 o'clock in the morning. Their day's run showed 154 miles.

They were not able to get started until an hour later than anticipated, but when they were under way they made splendid progress. They reached Kearney at 11 o'clock, covering the forty-two miles in less than three hours and making the best time they have accomplished since leaving Chicago. They made no stop at Kearney, but ran on to Lexington, where the Thomas spent the night on its second night from Omaha. They passed Lexington at 2:34 o'clock in the afternoon, and still gave no indication of stopping. Gothenburg reported the car going through at 3:12 o'clock, making sixty miles it had covered in the four hours. Still it continued and arrived in North Platte at 6:30 o'clock, with thirty-five miles more to its credit.

It took just fifteen minutes for the four men to hurry through a pretense of a meal, and they were all ready to push west once more.

Between bites of a sandwich A. L. Ruland, the American representative of the makers of the car, found time to say that the people in the West were treating them splendidly, and had quite wiped out the bad impression which the ill-treatment in Indiana had created. He said every one was eager to keep on the road and determined that the leader should be overtaken before San Francisco was reached.

"You can say for me," he declared, "that the Zust car will prove the winner of the race. It is going better than at any time in the race, and we are all confident that we can overhaul the Thomas before we reach the coast. The real test will come in Alaska, however, and we will then show what our car is capable of doing. We have had our share of hard luck in our breakdown, which retarded us until we reached Omaha. Then in the shops of the Union Pacific we had a chance to make the trouble right, and since then we have shown our speed. I think we will be in front in another week."

Hardly were the four men in the car before Sirtori threw in the clutch and sent the machine hurtling up the road and it was lost to sight on its way to Julesburg. The Colorado town is eighty-one miles west of this place, but the Italian said he would cover the distance in five hours in the darkness. If they reach there the car will have covered 218 miles to-day.

DE DION TO GO ON TO-DAY.

St. Chaffray Gives Some Impressions of Thomas Car's Crew.

Special to The New York Times.

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, March 10.—The De Dion car will be able to proceed to-morrow morning from this place. St. Chaffray, on his return from Omaha without the extra part which he anticipated finding for his car, ordered a new part made. It will be completed in the morning, enabling the machine to proceed before noon. The extra parts which had not yet left New York were ordered shipped to Cheyenne, and he expects to make the transfer there.

The injury sustained by the car was a broken driving shaft. It was impossible to effect a repair, but a new part could be forged in a day's time. This course was followed.

He expects to reach Omaha by nightfall on Thursday and to cross Nebraska and arrive at Cheyenne by Sunday night or Monday morning. If he succeeds in doing this he will be just eight days behind the Thomas car and five days behind the Zust. It will still be possible, if he can make up some of that time, for him to overtake the two and start with them from Seattle for Valdez on April 1, if the Thomas fails to catch the boat sailing for Alaska on March 24.

Special to The New York Times.

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, March 10.—When Montague Roberts sees that the road is abominable on account of snow and dust he tries to overcome the difficulty. He knows the fields are better than the roads, and that he can obtain permission from the farmers to cut the fences, of course, if he pays for the trouble. Then Roberts is an acute man on the matter of steeplechasing, and had his reputation well established because after he has crossed the country the fences are again in good order when other cars come.

Roberts has found that a fence broken and paid for must be paid by himself twice, once for the trouble and for the right of way, the second for the fun of having the fence repaired on condition that other cars shall not pay another time. Then the others will escape the bad roads.

Get away, Roberts; get away to the Rockies.

Besides Roberts on the Thomas has a man full of resources. He is a good man. His name is Scheuster, and his profession is that of chief mechanic at the Thomas works at Buffalo. He is the mechanic of the Thomas car. When the car has stopped at some place in the middle of a field or a road for repairs to the tires or chains, one finds on the ground the visiting card of Scheuster. It is a large place of oval shane, where the back of said Scheuster is portrayed in the grass as well as on the snow. At once and in any condition of mud the brave mechanic takes the opportunity to go under his car and to survey everything. He also takes the wheel and Roberts gets a rest.

All that is the reputation that the Thomas car has left with the farmers in the country. We cross under other conditions of ice or mud than it had.

GODARD TO GO BACK 80 MILES.

Shipped His Car for Repairs—To Renew Race at De Kalb.

Special to The New York Times.

CLINTON, Iowa, March 10.—Baron Charles Godard, who is driving the Motobloc car in the New York to Paris race, has brought it here from De Kalb, in Illinois, for repairs. Unable to find a place where satisfactory work could be done he determined to ship his car by rail over the eighty miles to Clinton and have it fixed properly before he took the road again. He will remain here for two days until the repairs are effected, and then take the car back to De Kalb and resume the trip at the point where it was interrupted.

The nature of the injury sustained is very peculiar. He picked up a stone in his driving chain, and it was carried into the sprocket. At first he feared the sprocket was hopelessly injured. Later he found the stone had only damaged the ball-bearings, but it was necessary to take the car to an automobile factory.

Godard will also abandon the cushion tires, which he has been using in the race thus far, finding it impossible to travel over the rough Western roads without the protection of an outer shoe. This change also will be effected before he leaves here.

GOOD RUN FOR PROTOS.

Reported at Cedar Rapids—Former Members of Crew in New York.

Special to The New York Times.

CLINTON, Iowa, March 10.—The Protos car, in charge of Lieut. Koeppen of the General Staff of the German Army, left here this morning, heading for Cedar Rapids, expecting to make the eighty-mile run in spite of the heavy roads before nightfall. The car was in splendid condition when it set out, and Lieut. Koeppen was confident of attaining a better place in the race within the next few days. If the roads are hardened up ahead he believes he will reach Omaha in two days more.

Late to-night it was reported that the car had arrived at Cedar Rapids and had stopped for the night, prepared to move westward at daylight to-morrow.

Ernst Maas and Hans Knape, the German engineers who started from New York in the race to Paris in the Protos car and left it at Chicago to return to Europe, arrived in this city yesterday from Buffalo. They intend sailing for Europe on Saturday.

They said that they had differed from Lieut. Koeppen as to important questions of procedure. Since Lieut. Koeppen had orders from the War Department in Berlin to go through, it was impossible for him to leave the car, so the other two gave up the trip, leaving Lieut. Koeppen to follow his own course in the race.

Maas and Knape were greatly disappointed at giving up the undertaking, declaring that they had sacrificed much for the opportunity of making the trip. Both had contributed $3,000 with Lieut. Koeppen, while The Berlin Zeitung am Mittag and the Protos Company each contributed a share. All three men were amateurs, and made the trip purely in the interest of sport.

Knape and Maas were the originators of the German expedition, obtaining the car from the Protos factory and determining to start out alone. Lieut. Koeppen later joined them, contributing an equal share of money. He carried a commission from the War Office and from the Berlin newspaper, while they were to conduct the car. When the disagreement came they gave way on account of Lieut. Koeppen's military place.

PILOT CAR'S REMARKABLE RUN.

Frederickson Returns from Cheyenne to Omaha in 29½ Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., March 10.—H. E. Frederickson, the pilot who showed the way for the American car in the New York to Paris race from Omaha, reached here in his forty horse power Thomas Detroit at 4 o'clock this afternoon. He had covered the 516 miles from Cheyenne back to Omaha in 29½ hours without a stop except for meals.

He left Cheyenne at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, and made two stops on the road before nightfall, but during the night the motor ran all the while, bringing him into Columbus at daybreak. After breakfasting there he started again for Omaha, and arrived at 4 o'clock in the afternoon without another delay, having averaged eighteen miles an hour without allowing for any stops.

ROW OVER FOOD AT COLUMBIA.

Students Say Campus Restaurant Charges High for Poor Quality.

Once more Columbia students are up in arms about the high price and poor quality of the food served in the Commons, the only eating place on the campus and the only restaurant even partly under the management of the university. The Spectator, the student paper, has taken up the fight, and yesterday made these dreadful charges against the management of the Commons:

1. That only five chocolate cakes are given for a nickel, whereas the grocer gives ten; and the Commons cakes have no nuts in them.
2. That an 18-cent pie is cut into eight portions, and these sold for a nickel apiece; profit, more than 100 per cent.
3. That the Commons gives only eight graham wafers for a nickel, the grocer twelve.
4. That the steaks and roasts are tough and tasteless, and the meat in the sandwiches is absolutely dangerous.

J. J. Cowan, manager of the campus eating place, said yesterday that he would give The Spectator only until Monday to eat its own words, and hinted at a libel suit if it didn't do so.

The Spectator men said they stood ready to back up their charges if called upon.

The air on the Heights was tense with expectation last night.

NEW INQUEST INTO W. F. BAKER'S DEATH

Physician Tells Coroner He Found Young Man Dead at the Home of Frank H. Hurd.

BROTHER AT THE HEARING

Undertaker Admits He Ignored the Law by Embalming the Body Before Coroner's Arrival.

A start was made last night in the official investigation of the death of Walter F. Baker of Boston when Coroner Demund began an inquest in the Court House at Hackensack. Baker died at the home of Frank H. Hurd at Bogota, N. J., early one Sunday morning, after an auto ride from New York with Mr. and Mrs. Hurd and the latter's sister, Mrs. George W. Young, former wife of a New York banker.

Edward F. Baker of Boston, who declares that his brother was murdered, was present at the inquest, but the Boston chemists and physicians, who rereported, after an analysis of the dead man's stomach, that it contained enough arsenic to kill a dozen men, were unavoidably absent. Mr. Baker told Coroner Demund and Prosecutor Koester that the experts would be at Hackensack on Thursday, when the inquest will be continued.

Malcolm Lawrence of New York, counsel for the Hurds, who, since the death of their little daughter, Natalie, are beneficiaries under Baker's will to the extent of about $100,000, was at the inquest, together with Senator E. W. Wakelee and Cornelius Doremus, who were legal representatives of Howard College and other beneficiaries under the will.

Dr. G. Howard McFadden of Hackensack, who was the first physician called to the Hurd house when Baker's condition seemed serious, was the first witness.

"When I was first called on the 'phone I was told that Baker was dying, and while I was dressing Hurd 'phoned me that Baker had apparently died," said the witness. "I found that Baker was dead. Hurd and his wife and Mrs. Young, who were all in their bathrobes, gave me a history of Baker's mode of living. They said that Baker's mother and father had died suddenly from heart failure, and I concluded that the probable cause of death was heart and kidney disease.

Baker Had Been Drinking.

"When Undertaker Ricardo reached the house I told him it was a Coroner's case, and that he should notify Coroner Lees. He said he would. I remained at the Hurd home about two hours, and while there but brief reference was made to Baker's visit to New York on the night in question.

"They said he had been drinking, but not with them, for he had left them shortly after they reached New York. Hurd said he had been called to Brown's chop house after Baker first became ill. He told me that while on the way home in the auto Baker complained of feeling cold, and the women gave him their wraps.

"Hurd informed me that Baker and his brother in Boston were not on good terms, but I told him he should telephone to the brother in Boston to tell him of Walter's death.

"Some one said that Baker had called for a glass of water, but I did not hear that it was given to him. The women seemed much affected while I was present."

Dr. Charles F. Adams of Hackensack, who was called to the Hurd home at 3 A. M., said he concurred in Dr. McFadden's diagnosis after hearing the history of the case from the Hurd's. Dr. Adams said he had understood that Baker was alone at the time of death.

"Were you not told that Mrs. Young was with Baker and held his hand when he died?" asked Prosecutor Koester.

"No, Sir, I was not," was the answer.

Undertaker William F. Ricardo, who admits he made a mistake in embalming Baker's body before Coroner Lees viewed it, was questioned by Coroner Demund.

"You have been a Coroner, Mr. Ricardo?"

"Yes, Sir."

"You know the law in respect to Coroners viewing bodies in cases of sudden death?"

"Yes, Sir."

"Did you embalm Baker's body before Coroner Lees viewed it?"

"I did, Sir."

"Then you did so in spite of the law?"

"Yes, Sir."

Little Heed to the Law.

"Are you in the habit of embalming Coroner cases before the Coroner views the remains?"

"Yes, Sir."

"And you want to go on record to that effect?"

"Yes, Sir."

Prosecutor Koester asked the undertaken why he embalmed the body after Dr. McFadden had ordered him to first notify the Coroner, and the undertaker said he was anxious to prepare the body after he learned it was to go to Boston, and he gave it a double dose of primerine and dioxin. Ricardo insisted that he embalmed the body upon his own responsibility and not upon any suggestion from Hurd.

"Isn't it a fact that Mr. Hurd, Mrs. Hurd, or Mrs. Young requested you to embalm Baker's body, and put it in shape to send to Boston?" asked Prosecutor Koester warmly.

Ricardo replied in the negative.

"You knew you could reach Coroner Lees on the 'phone from the Hurd home, and that the Coroner only lived a mile away, and could get to Bogota in ten minutes; then why didn't you notify him before you embalmed the body and took a chance?"

The undertaker repeated that he often did embalming on his own responsibility.

When asked about the cost of the coffin Ricardo said that Hurd did not want him "to rub it in," but Mrs. Hurd wanted no expense spared. The funeral expenses were over $800.

Ex-Coroner Lees of Ridgefield Park, who viewed Baker's body the day after it had been embalmed, was next called as a witness, but was not in the room, and Coroner Demund adjourned the inquest until to-morrow afternoon.

Prosecutor Koester is anxious to find the servant girl who was employed by the Hurds when Baked died.

BOSTON, March 10.—Three persons who have been summoned as witnesses by the Bergen County, N. J., authorities to testify in connection with the investigation into the death of Walter F. Baker, at Bogota, N. J., left here to-day. They were Dr. George F. McGrath, Medical Examiner of Suffolk County, who performed an autopsy on young Baker's body; Dr. W. F. Boos, a chemical expert, who claimed to have found evidence of arsenic in the organs of the body, and Dr. C. T. Underhill, the Baker family physician.

It was said that a mass of evidence collected under the direction of the attorneys for the Bakers will be given to the New Jersey authorities.

NO HOPE FOR POOR, SAYS FELIX ADLER

He Tells Sociologists That Relief Methods for City's Congestion Are Futile.

PUTS BLAME ON RENTS

Says They Are So High That Many Are Forced to Live Under Intolerable Conditions.

Dr. Felix Adler not only administered a sharp rebuke to a brilliant audience which packed the large assembly hall at the Museum of Natural History last night for the conference on the congested population of New York, but flatly told those interested in the work that their efforts would not solve the problem.

"I have been in touch with settlement work twenty years," he declared, "and I am familiar with the problems involved and the suffering of the poor. Only recently I was informed of a case where three women and three men, all unmarried, were found huddled in one small room."

There was an audible titter in the hall, Dr. Adler paused, his face flushed hotly, and, turning squarely to the front, he cried:

"You laugh! You laugh! I wonder you do not cry out in horror that such conditions exist."

There was a hush for a moment, and then came a burst of applause.

In the latter part of his address he threw a bomb squarely into the camp of those who are engaged in the work of trying to bring permanent relief to those in the overcrowded sections of the city.

"This terrible crowding of human beings into places not fit for them to live in," declared Dr. Adler, "is caused by the high rents which the poor are forced to pay. They are compelled to occupy one, two, or three rooms, because the burden of rent is so heavy upon them they cannot obtain more or better rooms.

"I understand that many of the poor pay one-fourth of their income in rent. The proportion of the rent paid by the poor in the congested districts to their income is greater than that paid by the well-to-do and infinitely greater than that paid for shelter by the wealthy. The burden falls on the shoulders of those least able to bear it.

The Problem Unsolved.

"You have been told to-night what has been done and is being done in the public schools. But the public schools will not bring relief. You have been told about the parks, but they will not solve the problem. It is a pretty picture of the tired mother taking her infant out to the park near her home on the hot August night, but think also of the hot hole to which she has to return to sleep."

Dr. Adler said he had thought that the tunnels under the rivers and the improved transportation to near-by and less populous places would afford relief to the poor, that the factories and the workers could be moved together, but with the increase in transportation facilities came higher land values there, so the poor were as bad off as before.

Eugene A. Philbin, President of the Metropolitan Parks Association, was evidently much surprised at the tenor of Dr. Adler's address. He said briefly that he could not permit the audience to leave without saying that he did not regard the problem by any means hopeless or the method adopted for its solution ineffective.

Dr. Adler left the hall immediately after his address and did not hear Mr. Philbin's statement.

Other speakers of the evening were Dr. E. R. L. Gould and Dr. Henry M. Leipziger.

"I believe the problem of play in the streets is one of the great problems of congestion," declared Joseph Lee of Boston at the first business session of the conference yesterday morning.

Mr. Lee spoke on "Play and Congestion," on which he is an international authority. In the opening of his address Mr. Lee declared that New York's lower east side was not only exceptional but unique, and would not be considered in his discussion.

"There is no place like it in America or in any other country," he declared, "and it is uncharacteristic of New York itself.

"I do not see why the practice of setting aside streets for play, as is done in the case of coasting, cannot be carried much further," continued the speaker. "If we allow our streets to be used for the play of grown-ups in the form of riding bicycles and driving automobiles, why should we not allow them to be used for the play of children, which is a matter of vital necessity, not only to the children themselves, but to the future progress and success of our democracy?

"I know the traditional thing is to talk against the street as an educational institution. People say it is a place where children learn to swear; but a child who cannot acquire that linguistic acomplishment in the school—or even in the home—must as a rule be so lacking in the gift of language that even the most brilliant opportunity would be thrown away on him. And the evil of the street will certainly be lessened in proportion as it is converted into a playground."

The Speakers.

Others speaking at the morning session were Howard Bradstreet, Secretary of the Metropolitan Park Association, and Dr. George W. Goler, health officer of Rochester. Discussing "Child Value and Land Value in Congested Districts," Mr. Bradstreet said:

"I know that playgrounds cost much, but I cannot see why the city should not buy up land before contemplated improvements have been made and get the benefit of the rises in value. This would provide money for playgrounds without expense to the city."

"Home Conditions in Congested Districts" was the theme considered at the afternoon session. Dr. Lee K. Frankel, manager of the United Hebrew Charities; Leonard G. Robinson, General Manager of the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid Society; Dr. Antonie Stella, and Miss Amy A. Bernardy of Smith College were the speakers.

"If I were asked to characterize the present era of Jewish history," said Mr. Robinson, in discussing "The Jew and the Land," "I would, in all probability, name it the era of colonization. Never did the desire of the Jew to return to the soil manifest itself more strongly than to-day. Never has so much individual and organized effort been exerted toward the consummation of that desire.

"The Alliance Israelite Universelle, the Jewish Colonization Association, the Baron De Hirsch Fund, the Zionist Movement, and the Jewish Territorial Organization have each in their way launched movements of world-wide scope, in order to put the Jew back upon the land and in a position of independence and self-respect."

He declared that there were 5,000 Jewish farmers in this country and that it was not the Jew's fault there were not 25,000.

Miss Bernardy pleaded for fair treatment in this country for the Italian.

The conferences will continue to-day, with morning, afternoon, and evening sessions. The State Consumers' League will have direction of the exercises, and luncheon will be served.

APPEAL FOR TCHAYKOVSKY.

Eminent Britons Urge Clemency for the Russian Prisoner.

The Friends of Russian Freedom have just received a copy of a memorial which was presented to the Russian Ambassador in London, respecting Nicholas Tchaykovsky, who is confined in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, and who was well known in many cities of America, where he had worked for several years in behalf of the movement for Russian freedom.

This memorial is signed by over 850 of the most eminent men in Great Britain. It states that "during thirty years' residence in England and the United States Mr. Tchaykovsky has won for himself a high position in the esteem of people of all shades of political opinion.

"The fate of such a man cannot be a matter of indifference in the countries in which he is well known. We would venture at least to hope that his treatment may be regulated with consideration for his age, indifferent health, and liability to recurrent attacks of malaria."

Among the signatories are seven members of the House of Lords, eight Bishops, the Deans of Durham, Winchester, Lincoln, and Manchester, and over forty members and ex-members of the House of Commons.

The most eminent scientists in the country also have signed, including Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir William Ramsay, and Alfred Russell Wallace.

SUGAR SCALES DOCTORED?

Government Agent Tells Court They Were Fixed to Show Short Weight.

Attempted bribery of United States Secret Service agents was charged yesterday before Judge Chatfield in the United States Circuit Court, Brooklyn, when the first of the trials of employes of the American Sugar Refining Company was resumed. Special Agent Richard Parr, the Government's chief witness, said he had been approached by Oliver Spitzer, now on trial on the charge of defrauding the Government, and an offer of any sum of money he might name if he would drop the case. Parr alleged that Spitzer had pointed to the Masonic emblem on the lapel of his coat and exclaimed:

"You are a Mason. We are all Masons here. This thing must be fixed up."

Then the witness related in detail how the scales at the Havemeyer & Elder docks had been doctored so as to show short weight. He said that wire springs were inserted in the scales so as to press against the lever and thus alter the weight shown on the scales when sugar was being weighed for revenue.

MORSE INDICTED BY U. S. GRAND JURY

One or More Bills Returned Against the ex-Banker Before Judge Hough.

HE WILL BE IN COURT TO-DAY

Charges Will Be Made Public Then—Indicted Man's Lawyers Have Arranged for Bail.

The Federal Grand Jury, which came in with the January term of the United States Circuit Court, returned one or more indictments yesterday against Charles W. Morse. All the indictments which the jury found were handed to Judge Hough yesterday afternoon, and the Morse papers were in the bundle, but no announcement was made and none will be made of the charges against the ex-banker until the March term of the United States Circuit Court, Criminal Branch, opens this morning. This is according to custom in the Federal courts.

Reports were in circulation that Morse indictments had been found late yesterday afternoon after the Grand Jury was discharged. It only became known definitely when notice was served upon Mr. Morse and his counsel to appear in court at 10 o'clock this morning to answer the charges. Arrangements were made for bail last night, and it is likely therefore that this proceeding will not cause Mr. Morse much inconvenience.

It was said on good authority last night that an indictment had been found against another ex-banker, an associate of Mr. Morse in his deals in the National Bank of North America. The Grand Jury spent several weeks upon the investigation of Mr. Morse's doings in various institutions, and some time ago it was ready to report indictments against him. It became known then that the Grand Jury had drawn five indictments, but the Department of Justice at Washington sent Oliver C. Pagan over here to go over the proposed indictments, with a view to making them demurrer proof, and the result was a long delay. It is believed that Mr. Pagan changed the form of the charges materially from the shape in which the Grand Jury first had them, and hence it is not known whether they now are contained in several indictments or in one indictment of many counts.

It is understood that the Federal authorities have had for some time the benefit of the disclosures that form the basis of Receiver Hanna's suit against Mr. Morse and the Directors of the National Bank of North America for upward of $800,000 alleged to have been obtained from the bank by Mr. Morse through the juggling of the books.

Mr. Morse was in Wall Street most of yesterday trying to accomplish something toward adjusting his tangled affairs. It is understood that he has not made any marked progress with his plan of getting the stockholders of the National Bank of North America to underwrite its deposits for a trust company, and thus take the bank out of a receiver's hands. He had a new proposal for the National Bank of North America yesterday, however. That was contained in an offer of some of his wealthy relatives who live in Maine to settle the second suit brought by Receiver Hanna against Mr. Morse personally by paying $50,000. Mr. Hanna, it is understood turned down the proposal, as the suit asks for the recovery of $405,000.

OPPOSE ORIENTAL BANK PLAN.

Attorney General to Urge That Law Bars Metropolitan Trust Advance.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court took a hand in the row over the control of the Oriental Bank yesterday, and decided to grant a postponement of the argument on Attorney General Jackson's appeal from the decision of Justice O'Gorman, of the Supreme Court, dismissing the receivers of that institution. The matter will now come up on Friday.

It became known yesterday that one point to be emphasized on behalf of the Attorney General is that it would be illegal for the Metropolitan Trust Company to go into the scheme to advance upward of $4,000,000 to pay the depositors and the amount due the New York Clearing House in accordance with the plan announced. The Attorney General advances the proposition that no vote of the Trust Company is in evidence as committing that institution to the scheme, and that there is nothing more than the affidavit of Brayton Ives, its President, which does not even set out that the Directors have approved the liquidation plan.

AUERBACH SUMMONED.

Jackson's Investigator to Appear Before Grand Jury in Vidaver Case.

Herbert T. Auerbach, a special investigator for the Attorney General's office, was served yesterday with a subpoena to appear before the Grand Jury to tell what he knows of certain money transactions which William R. Montgomery, ex-President of the Hamilton Bank, alleges took place between himself and Nathan Vidaver, a special Deputy Attorney General.

Mr. Auerbach was told to attend the hearing of Vidaver's case before Magistrate Herrman in the Tombs Court, where Vidaver is being tried on a charge of extortion. Mr. Auerbach was referred to by Mr. Montgomery as the go-between who stood closer to Jackson than did any other man.

BARCELONA WARMLY WELCOMES ALFONSO

Police Troubled Only by Royalist Students Overcome by Their Enthusiasm.

CITY IS GAYLY DECORATED

Great Demonstration in the Streets and at a Gala Performance of the Opera.

BARCELONA, March 10.—The first day of King Alfonso's visit to Barcelona was unmarred by a single regrettable incident; the Republicans and Separatists not only refrained from any hostile manifestation, but all classes among the people apparently joined in acclaiming the sovereign.

There was an imposing display of troops and police throught the city, which, while testifying to the nervousness of the authorities, seemed to be out of place amid the numerous friendly demonstrations of the multitude. The King was greatly pleased over the enthusiasm, which he believes will have a marked effect in winning over the affections of the Catalonians.

The King's day was one of remarkable activity. Among the notable features was a grand reception at the residence of Captain-General Linares, where the King is staying, followed by a dinner in honor of the officers of the Austrian warships lying in the harbor. At the conclusion of the dinner King Alfonso, accompanied by a mounted escort, proceeded to the Opera House to attend a gala performance. The theatre was crowded, and the seats and boxes commanded fabulous prices. Time and again the Spanish King was compelled to bow his acknowledgments of applause and cheers that greeted him.

The programme for to-morrow has not been published, but it is known that the King will visit the warships and the new technical school.

King Alfonso, who left Madrid last night, arrived in this city at 9 o'clock this morning. As the royal train drew into the station salutes were fired from the Austrian and Spanish warships in the harbor. The big square outside the railroad station was lined with troops and the Civil Guard, which had difficulty in keeping back the crowds. As the King emerged from the station, accompanied by Gen. Linares and the members of his personal suite in brilliant uniforms, he was warmly greeted. Smiling his acknowledgments, he entered the royal carriage in waiting.

As the King left the station Royalist students, cheering wildly, attempted to make their way to the royal carriage with the idea of unharnessing the horses and dragging it themselves, but they were driven back by the Civil Guards. The popular demonstration continued throughout the short ride to the Church of La Merced, where a Te Deum was sung. When the King passed the aristocracy of Barcelona, who had gathered in automobiles in the Paseo de Cataluna, he was enthusiastically acclaimed. Women on the balconies with difficulty were restrained from disobeying the strict injunction against throwing flowers at the King.

After entering the residence of Gen. Linares, next to the church, the King appeared on one of the balconies and reviewed the troops of the garrison, who filed through the Paseo de Colon.

Barcelona was gayly decorated. The tiers of balconies along the route traversed by the King were hung with bunting and flags and thronged with women wearing the black mantillas, for which the beauties of Spain are famous. There were flowers in profusion. The public buildings bristled with the red and golden colors of Spain, the City Hall alone displaying 150 flags. All the foreign consulates, including that of the United States, flew the Spanish colors. From the Carlist clubs, however, black flags flew, in memory of the men who lost their lives in the Carlist wars.

FIRED ON ROYAL CASTLE.

Insane Swede Thought King Haakon's Pay Was Too High.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, March 10.—Johannes Gren, a Swede, who had been confined once in an asylum, fired a dozen bullets at the Royal Castle here at noon to-day. Several bullets crashed through the windows and imbedded themselves in the interior walls. King Haakon and Queen Maud were absent from the Castle.

The man was promptly seized by the police. He declared that it was his intention to kill King Haakon. He still had forty or fifty cartridges in his pockets. His grievance appears to be that the King received too large a salary, and that the King had no right to be in this country. He is a blacksmith and has lived here several years.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

VALPARAISO, March 10.—As a result of the precautions taken by the authorities the bubonic plague at Antofagasta and Iquique is diminishing. Ships coming from India are obliged to disinfect at Arica, while vessels coming from the North Pacific are disinfected at Callao, Peru.

PARIS, March 10.—The last act of justice in the famous Dreyfus case was performed this afternoon when the Chamber of Deputies passed a bill restoring Joseph Reinach, the historian of the case, to his rank in the territorial army.

BERLIN, March 10.—Colonial Secretary Dernburg declared to-day before the Budget Committee of the Reichstag that order had been so far restored in German Southwest Africa that the Government considered it safe to permit the reduction of the German troops there by 25 per cent. This will be done in the Autumn.

HAMBURG, March 10.—Prince Ludwig Menelik of Abyssinia has been expelled from Germany as an undesirable foreigner. The Prince is a near relative of the King of Abyssinia and a negro. He has been making unsuccessful efforts to organize companies for the exploitation of mines, rubber, and cotton. He has been charged repeatedly with drunkenness and disorderly conduct in various parts of Germany and has already been expelled from Saxony.

PARIS, March 10.—In the last fight in Morocco between French forces and the Madrakas and Mzab tribesmen, the French losses were one man killed and seven wounded. The enemy were routed and abandoned everything in their flight. The tribesmen continue to gather in large numbers on the Algerian frontier.

PARIS, March 10.—Arrangements have been completed to send the body of Thomas B. Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, who died suddenly in this city March 2, home on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II., which leaves Cherbourg for New York March 18. The body will be accompanied by Rodman Wanamaker, brother of the deceased, and Mrs. John Wanamaker.

BERLIN, March 10.—It is reported that Sir Gerard A. Lowther, at present British Minister to Morocco, will succeed Sir Frank Cavendish Lascelles, the British Ambassador at Berlin, when the latter's term expires in the Autumn. The report, however, cannot be confirmed.

ALDRICH BILL FOES ORGANIZE

They Need Six More Republican Votes and Solid Democratic Support.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The Republican insurrection against the Aldrich bill in the Senate was organized to-day at a meeting of several of the Western men who are determined to defeat the railroad bond proposition if possible. The insurgents need sixteen Republican votes to win, counting on the solid support of the Democratic Senators. The indications are that some of the Democrats will vote for the bill if necessary, and since the speech of Senator Bailey yesterday he has been counted as one of them. Senator Teller is another.

The Republican insurgents have ten votes already lined up against the railroad bond paragraph, with good prospects of obtaining more. Their situation is complicated somewhat by the evident preparation of the President to interfere in the fight on the side of the Aldrich bill. He summoned seven of the Western Senators to the White House on Saturday and talked to them about the Currency bill, but at that time he did not go so far as to ask any of the Senators to support it. He contented himself with merely informing them that the Administration was not opposed to the bill.

While they were talking with the President some of the Western Senators were meeting at the Capitol and counting noses. They found that they could count on Burkett and Brown of Nebraska, Borah and Heyburn of Idaho, La Follette and Stephenson of Wisconsin, Smith of Michigan, Dixon of Montana, Curtis of Kansas, and Nelson of Minnesota. These ten are prepared to stand against the railroad bond feature of the bill, even if the White House pressure is brought to bear on them.

Their understanding goes no further than the bond paragraph, and how they would vote on the passage of the bill after the vote had been had on that paragraph was not considered.

REUTERDAHL UPHELD.

Capt. Winslow Says Armor Belt Is Too Low on All of Evans's Fleet.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—At the naval inquiry to-day, before the Committee on Naval Affairs, Capt. C. McR. Winslow, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy Department, said all the ships under Admiral Evans were over draft when they left Hampton Roads, and that the armor belt on each was too low.

Capt. Winslow, in defending Admiral Rojestvensky, used the fate of the Russian fleet as an illustration of the danger of going into action with the armor belt too far under water. But he said that the ships should carry at least two-thirds their capacity of coal and full ammunition and stores, which would make all American battleships too low, and therefore the armor belt should be raised.

Commander A. L. Key, formerly naval aide to the President, had an experience similar to that of Commander Sims, the present naval aide. He was not permitted to follow his own inclination as to the form of presenting his views. He said he expected to show by comparison that there were defects in American ships as to the location of the armor belt, the height of free board, and the character of ammunition hoists, and that he would be compelled to point out inaccuracies in the testimony of Rear Admiral Capps, Chief Constructor, and some other officers who have been before the committee.

ALBANY'S CREW BEST SHOTS.

Break National Record and Still Fly Shooting Trophy.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 10.—An aerogram received last night at Point Loma from Magdalena Bay announced that Admiral Swinburne's fleet, consisting of the cruisers California, St. Louis, and Charleston and the destroyers Perry and Preble, left yesterday for San Francisco.

The cruiser South Dakota arrived at Magdalena Bay Sunday from San Francisco on her shake-down trip, making an average speed of from 11 to 12 knots, using eight boilers.

The Albany started north Sunday evening, flying the cruiser trophy. She broke all previous records of this country in rapidity of fire and accuracy. Her average was 10 hits per minute with five-inch guns. Her performance is considered wonderful. Accurate figures cannot be given at this time.

The Atlantic fleet is expected at Magdalena Bay about March 13.

LOSSES OF MISSOURI PACIFIC.

Dropped Behind in Six Months $255,339 on Nebraska Lines.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 10.—During the last six months the Missouri Pacific Railway has lost the sum of $255,339.97 on its lines in Nebraska. In a protest against a reduction in freight rates the officials of the road filed a general financial statement with the Railway Commission today.

Every department met with a loss, it is reported.

ANTARCTIC PARTY IN ROW.

Lieut. Shackelton, Head of Explorers, Knocked Down by Sailing Master.

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand, March 10.—The barkentine Nimrod has returned here from the south. Early in January she sailed from New Zealand with Lieut. Shackelton's antarctic expedition. She brings a tale of dissension in the exploring party. It seems that Lieut. Shackelton attempted to take charge of the ship one day when she was in a dangerous position. This was resented by Capt. England, sailing master, who promptly knocked him down.

The Nimrod left the Shackelton party encamped at the foot of Mount Erebus, a point they reached with considerable difficulty on account of the ice.

It has been necessary to give up the extensive magnetic surveys that the Nimrod was going to make in antarctic waters.

AMBASSADOR QUITS PERSIA.

Turkish Diplomat Resents Attacks—More Russian Troops for Caucasus.

ODESSA, March 10.—The Turkish Ambassador to Persia, Chems ud Dim Bey, passed through this city to-day on his way from Teheran to Constantinople. He is accompanied by his five wives and two secretaries. The embassy at Teheran is closed.

The Ambassador declared that he had been temporarily recalled from Teheran by the Sultan on account of the recent outrageous attack upon his embassy. He had received in the last few months several letters threatening him with assassination. The ill-feeling in Teheran against the Turkish Ambassador arises from the fact that Turkish troops have invaded Persian territory in the vicinity of Urumiah and committed depredations.

Two steamers containing war material and having on board two battalions of the Fifty-sixth Russian Infantry left here to-day for ports in the Caucasus. The actual destination of the men and arms is not known.

TIFLIS, March 10.—It is reported here that three Turkish army officers, attached to the General Staff, have been arrested in Yelizavetpol Province while engaged in making maps of the country. This province borders on the Turkish frontier.

New Ministry in Colombia.

C. M. Sarria, Consul General of Colombia in New York, yesterday received a cablegram from Bogota saying that a new Ministry had been formed in Colombia, as follows: Government, Francisco José Urrutia; Foreign Affairs, Marceliano Vargas; Finance, Ricardo Destrepo; War, Gen. Victor Calderon; Public Instruction, Emiliano Isaza, and Public Works, José Maria Ruiz.

WIRELESS COMPANIES FIGHT THE HALE BILL

Object to Plan to Force Them to Handle Messages from Rival Concerns.

NO WAY TO COLLECT TOLLS

Bill Seeks to Carry Out Proposal Adopted at the Wireless Convention in Germany.

Both the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America and the United Wireless Telegraph Company are opposed to the passage of the bill introduced by United States Senator Hale on March 6, which is designed to regulate the use of wireless telegraphy. The bill has been referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

According to Vice President Bottomley of the Marconi company the new bill aims to carry out to a large extent the recommendations of the United States delegates to the International Wireless Telegraph Convention, held at Berlin in November, 1906, which was brought about, he declares, by German makers of wireless instruments, who wanted to get the use of the many Marconi stations without having contributed to their building.

The representatives of the United States recommended that this country sign an international treaty for the regulation of wireless telegraphy, and the advisability of doing this came up in the Senate the first of this year. No action was taken by the Senate, and it was said at that time that it had been decided to let the matter drop.

The fact that Senator Hale has offered this new bill seems to bear out that conclusion. It seeks to accomplish in this country, said Vice President Bottomley yesterday, what the German-inspired treaty aimed to accomplish.

Briefly, the Hale bill provides that all wireless telegraph companies operating in this country or upon any United States vessel shall have licenses, to be issued under rules of the Department of Commerce and Labor. The part of the bill most objected to by the Marconi people follows:

> Section 8.—That it shall be the duty of every person or corporation using or operating a wireless telegraph apparatus pursuant to a license granted under this act to answer wireless calls and signals from and for any other person or corporation so licensed; to receive all messages or signals tendered for transmission to any other neighboring or connecting apparatus, and at the price customarily asked and received for such service; to transmit the same to such neighboring or connecting apparatus without discrimination and without regard to the system of telegraphy by which such calls, signals, or messages are made, and a neglect or refusal to observe the requirements of this section, when practicable, shall be cause for revocation of license.

According to Vice President Bottomley, the Marconi Company has spent years in perfecting wireless telegraph instruments, and has spent large sums in obtaining patents on them; it has spent much money in establishing shore stations all over the world for the handling of international messages; and it has established a great international system.

"And now to force us to take up and transmit messages from any little wireless company that wants to establish one or two stations, under heavy penalty for failure to do so, is manifestly unfair," went on Mr. Bottomley. "We maintain that by reason of our harder work and our expenditure of money for improving inventions we have built up a system that is better than any system now in use, and we want the advantage of it. Some 7,000 stockholders all over this country want a square deal in this.

"Suppose a Marconi operator picks up a message out on the Atlantic, and suppose that to get it to its destination we must make use of telegraph and cable lines part of the way? Now, we who give these lines the message must be responsible for its transmission over their wires. But how are we to force payment for even the tolls we have to pay to the telegraph and cable companies if the little fly-by-night wireless company concludes to deny that one of its operators sent the message in the first place? Our operator can say that he got it out in the open sea from a vessel said to be so many miles away, but he didn't see the ship. Think of the trouble of adjusting that claim.

"The bill provides for a sort of enforced partnership to which other companies need contribute little of capital, invention, or skillful enterprise. I don't believe that the bill will pass if the Senate will give the matter serious attention."

Vice President Bogart of the United Wireless Telegraph Company, which supported the ratification of the International Wireless Treaty, said the bill was arbitrary. His company is working on some amendments, he said, which will be suggested for the improvement of the Hale bill.

FEDERAL WIRELESS MONOPOLY.

Bill in the House to Legalize None but Official Stations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Representative Andrew J. Peters of Massachusetts introduced a bill in the House to-day which if passed will have the effect of making wireless telegraphy a Government monopoly. The bill provides that it shall be a punishable offense to originate or transmit a message falsely purporting to be official.

The second section forbids the emitting of electro-magnetic waves in lengths between 375 and 425 meters except from an official station. As electro-magnetic waves shorter than 375 meters or longer than 425 meters do not register wireless messages, this provision will prevent the transmission of all wireless messages except by official stations.

A fine of $2,000 is imposed for violating the first section and a fine of $100 for each violation of the second.

HUDSON OPENS FOR TRAVEL.

Steamer Leaving Newburg Has Little Trouble with the Ice.

NEWBURG, N. Y., March 10.—Navigation of the Hudson River between Newburg and New York was opened to-day by the steamer Homer Ramsdell of the Central-Hudson Steamboat Company, which left here at noon.

While there is considerable ice in the river, the steamer plowed through it without much trouble.

NORTH EXPLAINS HIS FIGURES.

Says He Obtained Prices on Paper from New York Expert.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Director S. N. D. North of the Census Bureau to-day made the following statement in reply to the charges preferred against him yesterday by Herman Ridder of New York of furnishing misleading figures as to the cost of print paper.

"Last November Representative Dalzell asked for the prices of news paper for each year since 1890. I replied that the census office did not compile prices of any kind. He asked me if there was no way in which I could obtain these prices for him, and I replied that I would try to do so.

"I thereupon wrote Mr. C. W. Rantoul of New York, who was the expert who prepared the special report on paper and pulp for the twelfth census. Mr. Rantoul sent me a statement compiled from the regular quotations of the Paper Trade Journal with the statement that these were the figures at which news paper in ordinary quantities was sold in the open market during these years. I transmitted the figures to Mr. Dalzell in a letter dated Dec. 3, 1907, in which I informed him that they were compiled from the list published by the Paper Trade Journal.

"I had no reason to believe that the figures were not correctly copied, nor had I any doubt that they were. It is the business of the census office to furnish information. When information is asked for that cannot be supplied from the official files we obtain it from the best obtainable source and state the authority. My conduct in the matter was absolutely proper, and there is nothing more to be said about it."

LAND GRAB NEAR CAPITOL.

Revelation of Congressional Grants to Sidney Bieber Causes Sensation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—A land grab that already has resulted in the loss of a valuable stretch of territory to the Government and that threatened to result in further loss was unearthed to-day. A sensation was caused in the Senate when Senator Carter of Montana reported that alleged fraudulent raids on Government property in the District of Columbia, within sight of the Capitol, had been engineered in Congress.

As a result, he declared, the Government's title to part of the Congressional Cemetery, in which lie of the bodies of many historic dead, is jeopardized, and the same would have been the case with the Government Asylum for the Insane and the navy yard had the last raid not been checked.

The man who is declared to have benefited by the transfers of public land is Sidney Bieber, ex-Fire Marshal of the District of Columbia and prominent in Republican politics. He was recently selected by the Republican National Committee to take charge of the election of district delegates to the Chicago Convention, and is a close friend of Speaker Cannon and other Republican leaders in Congress.

By vote of Congress plots of lands in the District were voted to Bieber at very small prices.

ROOSEVELT TALKED GERMAN.

Received Leader of Jewish National Party in Austria.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—President Roosevelt talked for ten minutes in German to-day with Dr. Nathan Birenbam of Vienna, leader of the Jewish National Party in Austria, who was accompanied to the White House by Representative Goldfogle of New York. Dr. Birenbam told the President he was in the United States studying political conditions.

The President remarked there was no occasion for political division in this country along racial or other lines. "We are all Americans," he said to his visitors. Then he stated that in his "Rough Rider" regiment there were a number of Hebrews. He said that the only question was as to whether they were Americans and brave men, and he found that they were both.

NIGHTRIDERS SHOOT NEGROES

Kentucky Raiders Also Burn 15,000 Pounds of Tobacco.

PADUCAH, Ky., March 10.—One hundred masked "night riders" rode into the town of Birmingham, Marshall County, late last night, shot six negroes, and whipped five others. The riders took possession of the town and shot into every negro cabin in the place. In one of these, John Scruggs, his wife, and three children, and a granddaughter were struck by bullets. Scruggs was fatally wounded and his two-year-old daughter was killed.

Fifty or more night riders came into Brooksville early to-day in buggies and on horseback, and before they left, 15,000 pounds of tobacco belonging to Robert Stanton, one of the wealthiest planters in this section, had been burned.

Stylish Clothes of Poor Fabric?

Yesterday we spoke of "Good Clothes Without Style" which are not Brill Clothes.

There are other kinds.

There are the clothes that are overburdened with tailoring far more expensive than the fabric warrants.

These clothes are stylish in appearance, perfect in visible tailoring and cost high.

But the outside fabric, the most important element, is wrong.

The yellow streak is sure to show.

In Brill Clothes the fabric is worthy the tailoring.

In Brill Clothes, Fabric, tailoring, trimmings and style are consistently and properly balanced, so that Brill Clothes are clothes of style, of quality and of value.

Brill stores show over 120 models for Spring, 1908, of Suits, Raincoats, Auto Coats, Spring Coats, &c., at $15 to $45.

Crafts Says H. T. Oxnard Tried to Dissuade Him from Pushing Gambling Bills.

BINGHAM UPHOLDS THEM

Promises to Close Poolrooms if They Are Passed—Protest Against Alleged Agricultural Delegations.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—While it is regarded as probable that the Assembly Codes Committee will report the anti-race track betting bills favorably either to-morrow or at its meeting next week, the attitude of the Senate still remains in doubt. Agents of the race-track interests and the bookmakers are swarming the hotel lobbies, the corridors of the Capitol, and every place where legislators gather.

A message was received here to-day from Wilbur F. Crafts, head of the International Reform Bureau, in which he said that a few days ago he was approached by H. T. Oxnard, the beet-sugar man, who is a member of The Jockey Club. Mr. Oxnard, Mr. Crafts declares, urged him to stop his opposition to the credit betting plan proposed by the representatives of the club.

"Half a loaf is better than nothing at all," Mr. Oxnard said, according to Mr. Crafts. "If this compromise plan is turned down, we will fight to the bitter end."

Senator Agnew, who introduced the bills in the upper house, to-day made public a letter sent by R. G. H. Speed, Secretary of the Tompkins County Fair Grounds Association, expressing his indignation that at the last hearing a delegation purporting to represent the Tompkins County agricultural interests were introduced as opposed to the bills.

In his letter Mr. Speed says that at the annual meeting of the society a year ago local saloon keepers and horsemen took control of the society organization by electing as Secretary the proprietor of a street lunch wagon who owned a "trotter;" as Treasurer the proprietor of a liquor saloon, as Vice President the proprietor of a livery stable, and as President a tenant farmer, who does not own an acre of land, but who affiliates with the horsemen. At the annual fair these men by subterfuge had pool selling and liquor selling on or near the fair grounds.

"The Grange of this county is strongly in favor of the repeal, and this organization, composed largely of actual farmers, represents the farming sentiment of the county."

Police Commissioner Bingham of New York sent a letter to Senator Agnew, in which the Commissioner said he was in favor of the anti-gambling bills. He promised to suppress the poolrooms in New York City if the Legislature would stop the betting at the tracks.

In the letter Commissioner Bingham wrote:

"It is evident that if there be no racing there will not be any poolrooms to bet on racing which does not exist. New York, Louisiana, Kentucky, and California appear to be the States which provide racing. It is hardly to be expected that if racing be abolished in New York and not in other States that racing poolrooms will come to an end, because these poolrooms have elaborate facilities for information from races of other States.

"It is true there are more poolrooms (in operation in New York City) during the racing season (in New York State) than at any other times. Poolroom gambling is already both a felony and a misdemeanor, but, after all, the main trouble is that none of these pool people have ever been sent to jail. They apparently get off with a fine, which is no punishment at all."

TO STOP DANCE HALL EVILS.

Assembly Passes a Bill Prohibiting Liquor Selling Among Other Things.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—The bill framed to put a stop to the evils in dance halls in New York, which was introduced by Assemblyman Graubard early in the session, was passed in the Assembly to-day, with only two votes against it. The two were Glore (Republican) and Holbrook (Republican) of Brooklyn.

The bill provides for the licensing of dance halls by the police, the fee being $50, and for a strict system of supervision. Girls under 16 must not be admitted unless accompanied by parents or legal guardians. Liquor must not be dispensed, and all questionable persons must be strictly excluded. Infraction of the law carries with it loss of the license.

SESSION MAY END APRIL 9.

Leaders Hope So—Others Think Legislature Will Remain Till May.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—Some leaders in the Legislature to-day predicted that the final adjournment would come on April 9, two days before the Republican Convention. Others believe that the session will not end until May, with a week's adjournment for the convention.

Mobile Road's Meeting Postponed.

The adjourned annual meeting of the Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City Railroad, which was to have been held yesterday, was indefinitely postponed. It was explained that the meeting had been put off to await the completion of the road's financial plan, which is now being worked out.

FOOD.

THE DOCTOR'S GIFT

Food Worth Its Weight in Gold.

We usually expect the doctor to put us on some kind of penance and give us bitter medicines.

A Penn. doctor brought a patient something entirely different and the results are truly interesting.

"Two years ago," writes this patient, "I was a frequent victim of acute indigestion and biliousness, being allowed to eat very few things. One day our family doctor brought me a small package, saying he had found something for me to eat at last.

"He said it was a food called Grape-Nuts, and even as its golden color might suggest, it was worth its weight in gold. I was sick and tired, trying one thing after another to no avail, but at last consented to try this new food.

"Well! It surpassed my doctor's fondest anticipation, and every day since then I have blessed the good doctor and the inventor of Grape-Nuts.

"I noticed improvement at once, and in a month's time my former spells of indigestion had disappeared. In two months I felt like a new man. My brain was much clearer and keener, my body took on the vitality of youth, and this condition has continued."

WILLIAMS TO KEEP OFFICE.

Superintendent of Banks Has Not Yet Thought of Resigning.

ALBANY, March 10.—A bill creating the place of Third Deputy State Superintendent of Banks, to have charge of the New York office, was passed by the Senate to-day. In the debate Senator Grady declared it to be the understanding in financial circles in New York City that Clark Williams, the present State Superintendent of Banks, would resign as soon as he could provide a proper deputy for the New York office. He admitted he had no authority for the statement.

This statement was called to the attention of Supt. Williams this afternoon. He declined to discuss it. There is sufficient authority, however, for the statement that Supt. Williams has not considered the subject of relinquishing his office, although he holds it at a large sacrifice. His friends understand that he intends to remain in office until he has carried out various plans which he has in mind.

The Senate and Assembly Committees on Banks to-night voted to report eight of the bills recommended by Supt. Williams, two of which establish new reserve requirements for banks, individual bankers, and trust companies. Others provide that no trust company shall open a branch office without the approval of the Superintendent of Banks; that a Director who hypothecates the stock necessary to make him eligible as a Director shall cease to be a Director, and that the Superintendent of Banks shall have power to pass upon the character and fitness of persons desiring to establish banks.

GRADY ATTACKS McCARREN.

Resents His Bolt of Hearst and Defends Independence League.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—Senator Grady defended the Independence League and denounced the action of Senator McCarren in bolting the Hearst ticket in 1906, in a debate to-day upon Senator Cassidy's bill prescribing new rules for the management of political parties. The measure provides that a Chairman of a State committee must be an elected member of the committee, that a member of a State committee cannot be expelled unless he has committed a felony, and that independent or incorporated parties shall not be recognized as political parties.

"There should be some power to punish political perfidity," said Grady. "In Kings County 126,000 Democrats voted for Lieut. Gov. Chanler, while Mr. Hearst received 111,000 votes, so that the organization, in bolting the head of the ticket, represented 15,000 voters. This minority would have an advantage over the 126,000 under this bill.

"It is just such measures as these that led to the incorporation of the Independence League. That league is cleaner than any political party to-day. It can reject any candidate who is objectionable."

TO BRING FARMS TO CITY.

Big Agricultural Fairs Desired by Sociologists in New York.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—At the beginning of this session, when Senator Gilchrist of Brooklyn introduced a bill providing for an appropriation of $500,000 for agricultural fairs, half of the amount to be given to the county fair associations and the other half for agricultural fairs in cities of the first and second classes, his action was greeted with good-natured derision by a great number of his colleagues.

When the Senate Finance Committee gave a hearing on the Gilchrist bill yesterday the members of that body got a big surprise. Senator Gilchrist brought forward letters favoring his bill from men like Bishop Potter and R. W. B. Bruere of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. He announced that if it passed 3,000 boys from the schools of New York City would be sent into the country to pass their vacation periods working on farms.

C. W. Larmon of the Bureau of Information and Statistics in the State Agricultural Department made a plea for the bill.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

One to Put Telegraph Companies Under Control of Utilities Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—Bills introduced in the Senate to-day included the following:

SENATOR HARTE—Placing telegraph and telephone companies under the supervision of the Public Service Commission.

SENATOR HASENFLUG—Placing a stamp tax of 25 cents a thousand on the manufacture of cigarettes.

SENATOR CORDTS—Establishing a State Department of Commerce. The Governor is authorized to appoint three Commissioners, the Chairman of which is to receive $7,500 a year, and the other members $6,000. The commission is to have supervision of transportation on the canals.

Senator Gates introduced a bill providing for the deduction from special franchise taxes of the value of water, gas, and electric light, heat and power furnished to a city or town by the corporation taxes. This value is to be computed at the same rate as charged private consumers.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Tariff on "Colors" Is Held Not Applicable to "Vegetable Green."

In a decision by W. F. Lunt the Board of United States General Appraisers sustained yesterday a claim filed by Magnus & Lauer of New York regarding the rate of duty to accrue on importations of merchandise invoiced as "vegetable green" and "carmine red."

The customs authorities classified the merchandise under the provision in the tariff for "colors" with a tax of 30 per cent., whereas the importers alleged that the correct classification should be as "unenumerated manufactured articles" at 20 per cent. ad valorem. The action of the Collector is set aside, and a reliquidation ordered.

Other importers' claims sustained were filed by the Chelsea Fibre Mills, Tai Lung & Co., Tuck High, New York, and the E. De F. Wilkinson Company of Providence.

The board overruled protests filed by F. B. Vandegrift & Co. and others; Mensel & Co., Ungerer & Co., New York, and Y. Takakuwa and other Japanese importers at Honolulu.

STOCK EXCHANGE NOMINEES.

President Thomas and the Governing Committee Named for Re-election.

The ticket which members of the Stock Exchange will vote upon at the annual election to be held on the second Monday in May was announced yesterday. President R. F. Thomas and Treasurer F. W. Gilley, the only two elective officers, were nominated for re-election. The ten members of the Governing Committee whose terms expire this year were also renominated, as were the retiring Trustees of the Gurantee Fund.

The Nominating Committee for 1909 is as follows: John A. Black, Walter J. Currie, Stanley D. McGraw, Arthur Whitney, and Robert D. Wrenn.

MOTHERS SUPREME, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Tells Them They Are of More Use Than Any Successful Man.

BIG FAMILIES SAVE NATION

Pleads for Practical Training for Boys and Girls, Proper Playgrounds, and Abolition of Child Labor.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The White House was the scene to-day of the formal opening of the first International Congress on the Welfare of the Child, which is being held under the auspices of the National Mothers' Congress. Two hundred delegates, representing all the States and Territories and a dozen or more of the leading countries of the world, were received at the White House this afternoon when President Roosevelt delivered an address.

The President's Speech.

The President said in part:

"This is the one body that I put even ahead of the veterans of the civil war, because when all is said, it is the mother, and the mother only, who is a better citizen even than the soldier who fights for his country. The successful mother, the mother who does her part in rearing and training aright the boys and girls who are to be the men and women of the next generation, is of greater use to the community, and occupies, if she only would realize it, a more honorable, as well as a more important, position than any successful man in it.

"Nothing in this life that is really worth having comes save at the cost of effort. No life of self-indulgence, of mere vapid pleasure, can possibly, even in the one point of pleasure itself, yield so ample a reward as comes to the mother at the cost of self-denial, of effort, of suffering, of the long, slow patience-trying work of bringing up the children aright. No scheme of education, no social attitude can be right unless it is based fundamentally upon the recognition of seeing that the girl is trained to understand the supreme dignity, the supreme usefulness of motherhood.

"Unless the average woman is a good wife and good mother, unless she bears a sufficient number of children, so that the race shall increase and not decrease, unless she brings up these children sound in soul and mind and body—unless this is true of the average woman, no brilliancy of genius, no material prosperity, no triumphs of science and industry will avail to save the race from ruin and death. The mother is the one supreme asset of National life; she is more important by far than the successful statesman or business man or artist or scientist.

Abhors Selfish Men.

"I abhor and condemn the man who is brutal, thoughtless, careless, selfish with women, and especially with the women of his own household.

"The man is a poor creature who does not realize the infinite difficulty of the woman's task, who does not realize what is done by her who bears and rears the children. I abhor and condemn the man who fails to recognize all his obligations to the woman who does her duty.

"But the woman who shirks her duty as wife and mother is just as heartily to be condemned. We despise her as we despise and condemn the soldier who flinches in battle. A good woman who does full duty is sacred in our eyes, exactly as the brave and patriotic soldier is to be honored above all other men. But the woman who, whether from cowardice, from selfishness, from having a false and vacuous ideal, shirks her duty as wife and mother earns the right to our contempt, just as the man who, from any motive, fears to do his duty in battle when the country calls him.

Wants Practical School Work.

"I want to ask your assistance for two or three matters that are not immediately connected with the life in the family itself, but that are of vital consequence to the children. In the first place, in the schools see that the school work is made as practical as possible. For the boys I want to see training provided that shall train them toward, and not away from, their life work; that will train them toward the farm or the shop, not away from it.

"With the girl, see that it is not made a matter of mirth that the girl who goes to college comes out unprepared to do any of the ordinary duties of womanhood. See, in other words, that with the higher education which she should have—for she should have a right to just as much education, to just as high an education, as any man—see that with that goes the education that will fit her to do her fundamental work in the world. As regards our public schools especially I want to put in a special word in behalf of the right kind of playgrounds.

"No school is a good school if it has not a good playground. Help the children to play, and remember that you can often help them most by leaving them entirely alone. I misread them if they themselves do not often know how to play better than we old folks can teach them.

To Stop Child Labor.

"It is the gravest kind of wrong, not only to the children, but to the whole community, to turn out the boys and girls, especially in the congested part of the city, with no place to play in but the streets.

"You cannot have good citizens, good men and women of the next generation, if the boys and girls are worked in factories to the stunting of their moral, mental, and physical growth. Wherever the National Government can reach, it should do away with the evils of child labor, and I trust this will be done, but much must be done by the actions of the several State Legislatures, and do, each of you, in your several States, all that you can to secure the enactment, and then the enforcement of laws that shall put a stop to the employment of children of tender age in doing what only grown people should do.

"Do not forget that love is what the family is based on, but don't do children, don't do grown people, the dreadful injustice—through a love that is merely one form of weakness—of failing to make the child, or I might add, the man, behave itself or himself. A marriage should be a partnership where each of the two parties has his or her rights, where each should be more careful to do his or her duty than to exact duty fom the other partner, but where each must, in justice to the other partner no less than to himself or herself, exact the performance of duty by that other partner."

A HUGHES BILL KILLED.

Measure for Permissive Direct Nominations Dies in Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—The bill providing for permissive direct nominations at primaries, a measure the passage of which Gov. Hughes greatly desired, was killed to-day in the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Assemblyman Phillips of Allegheny, Chairman of the committee, led the attack. It was Assemblyman Phillips who last year introduced a ballot bill on the plea that it had been framed to carry out recommendations for ballot reforms contained in the annual message of Gov. Hughes.

This bill passed the Assembly, but was killed by the Senate after Gov. Hughes in an interview had openly and directly accused Mr. Phillips of duplicity.

The action of the Judiciary Committee on which is a majority of the members of the once all-powerful machine, is regarded as a direct slap at Gov. Hughes.

"Let him send along some more of his new-fangled reform ideas and we will tend to them, too," said an influential member of the committee to-night.

RACE FOR LIPTON CUP.

Brooklyn Yacht Club Announces Conditions for Event on July 4.

The Regatta Committee of the Brooklyn Yacht Club yesterday announced that July 4 had been selected as the day for the sailing of the ocean race for the thousand-dollar cup presented by Sir Thomas Lipton. The race is open to sailing yachts not measuring more than 100 feet extreme length, any rig, belonging to any organized yacht club in the world.

The course will be from a starting line opposite the Brooklyn Yacht Club, in Gravesend Bay, to and around the Southwest Spit buoys, leaving them on the port hand; then, passing to the south'ard of Scotland Lightship, to and around the Fire Island Lightship, leaving it on the starboard hand; then to and around the Northeast End Light Vessel, off Cape May, N. J., leaving it on the port hand, and returning over the same course, leaving buoys and lightships on the reverse hand.

Entries must be received by the committee not later than noon of June 15, and must be accompanied by a measurement certificate.

All yachts will sail in one class, with the regular allowance for the difference in rigs.

In addition to the cup presented by Sir Thomas Lipton, the Brooklyn Yacht Club will offer handsome prizes for second, third, and fourth boats.

GEORGE ADE AUTO DELEGATE.

Will Represent Indiana at Federal Bill Hearing in Washington.

George Ade, the playwright and humorist, who has assisted in making the Hoosier State famous, will appear in the halls of Congress to-morrow as an advocate of the Federal Automobile bill, which seeks to obtain a uniform system of identification and registration for motor vehicles throughout the country. Mr. Ade has been an enthusiastic motorist for years. He is a member of the Terra Haute Automobile Club, and has been appointed by the Indiana Automobile Association as the delegate at the hearing before the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives, which will be held at Washington to-morrow.

A large delegation from this city will leave this morning for Washington. From the American Automobile Association, through whose efforts the bill was introduced by Congressman Cocks of Long Island, will be President William H. Hotchkiss, Charles T. Terry, Secretary F. H. Elliott, A. G. Batchelder, Lewis R. Speare of Boston, and S. L. Haynes of Springfield, Mass. They will be accompanied by the New Jersey delegates, consisting of J. H. Wood, W. C. Crosby, and J. H. Edwards of the Associated Clubs of New Jersey; President Mason of the Board of Trade of Passaic, and W. Barnell of Atlantic City. In Philadelphia the party will be joined by Robert P. Hooper and S. B. Davis of that city, and Jacob D. Rider of Lancaster. More than a dozen States will send delegates.

The Federal bill provides that upon the payment of a fee of $5 the owner shall be exempt from the provisions of State laws in reference to the registration of motor vehicles, but such motor vehicles shall not be exempt from any of the provisions of the law of the State which is the residence of the owner of such motor vehicle.

$15,000,000 DEAL AND NO CASH PAID

Revelations in Wind-Up of Hearing of the Insolvency Suit Against City Railway.

NO WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE

"Cash" Paid by an Exchange of Checks by the Securities Company, City Railway, and the Metropolitan.

The suit of Attorney General Jackson to forfeit the charter and franchises of the New York City Railway on the ground that the corporation has been insolvent for more than a year, ended, so far as the taking of testimony is concerned, before Justice Davis, in the Supreme Court, yesterday afternoon. Herbert R. Limburg, the special counsel for the State, will submit certain stipulations upon which he and Mr. Cravath expect to agree. Mr. Cravath announced that the defense would call no witnesses. The matter will be submitted to the court on briefs, without oral argument.

Mr. Limburg devoted yesterday's hearings to showing what actually took place between the New York City Railway, the Metropolitan Securities Company, and the Metropolitan Street Railway around May 22, 1907, when a general adjustment of accounts was decreed and a fresh start undertaken in connection with the agreements under which the Interborough-Metropolitan Company was to provide on the notes of the Metropolitan securities $15,000,000 new money for the Securities Company to distribute, $8,000,000 to the Metropolitan Street Railway direct, and $7,000,000 to the City Railway. Something over $3,000,000 has been provided under these contracts, and the Securities Company is being sued by the Federal receivers for the balance of the $8,000,000 promised to the Metropolitan Street Railway.

The inquiry into the adjustment of accounts between the three companies was predicated on two statements in the affidavit of Auditor Brown, accompanying the company's contention before Justice Seabury last Fall that it was solvent in June. The balance sheet, on which the claim of solvency was made, consisted of certain items out of the June 30, 1906, balance sheet, which were entitled "current" assets and liabilities by Mr. Brown. Included in the asset side was $8,658,527 of stocks and bonds held, and on the liability side there were $6,850,000 of loans due.

Of the first of these items, Mr. Brown said in his affidavit:

"Substantially all these securities were subsequently sold for actual cash at an amount $367,528 in excess of that at which they were carried on the books."

Of the item of loans payable, Mr. Brown said:

"All but about $300,000 of these have since been paid and canceled in cash."

It was for the purpose of finding out in just what these cash payments consisted that Mr. Limburg went to work yesterday on the minute book of the New York City Railway for the meeting of May 22, 1907, its ledger showing the corresponding date and four checks and vouchers which he had called for previously.

Mr. Limburg examined the checks, the first of which showed a payment of $3,638,500 by the Securities Company to the New York City Railway, dated May 21 on the check and entered May 20 in the company's ledger. Mr. Brown said that somebody must have made a mistake in dating the entry. Then in quick succession Mr. Limburg brought out checks showing payments of $1,232,700 and $1,862,295.77 by the New York City Railway back to the Securities Company and another payment by the City Railway of $900,000 to the Metropolitan Street Railway. All the checks were drawn on the Morton Trust Company, and it appeared that the Metropolitan Street Railway, on receipt of its $900,000, had drawn one check for $543,524.23 to the Morton Trust Company and one for $356,495.77 back to the City Railway.

"Now," said Mr. Limburg, "that whole transaction was merely an exchange of checks, wasn't it, and didn't mean the payment of any cash whatever?"

Mr. Cravath objected on the ground that the transaction was a settlement of accounts, which, as Mr. Cravath put it, had become "somewhat complicated," but the court let the attorney for the State proceed. Mr. Limburg accordingly worked out this table showing how the apparent payments all balanced and offset each other:

Metropolitan Securities Company pays City Railway	$3,638,500.00
Metropolitan Street Railway pays City Railway	356,495.77
Total received by City Railway	$3,994,994.77
City Railway pays Metropolitan Street Railway	$900,000.00
City Railway pays Metropolitan Securities Company	1,862,295.77
City Railway pays Securities Company	1,232,700.00
Total paid by City Railway	$3,994,995.77

Mr. Limburg and Mr. Cravath stipulated that all the stock transferred from the City Railway to the Securities Company under the contracts of May 22 was transferred at certain values fixed between the companies. Mr. Limburg called these fictitious. Mr. Cravath dissented from this view.

"But no cash was passed?" asked Mr. Limburg when Mr. Cravath was done for the moment. The witness answered in the negative.

In the same way Mr. Limburg brought out the cancellation of the $6,850,000 of loans as being a matter of bookkeeping and exchange of securities.

Come and Take Away the Goods That Smell of Smoke!

We Shall Not Waste Any Time or Count Any Loss in the Process of Cleaning Up This Store After Monday Night's Fire

As you will learn from the news columns of this paper, there was a very bad fire opposite this store on Eighteenth Street Monday night. Practically every window on our Eighteenth Street front was broken by the heat, and all the merchandise on that side of six floors got the full benefit of the smoke. There was also some water damage, but not much, and no flames at all inside the store.

At this writing we have not had time to go through the stock and measure up the damage, but we can see that there are thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of goods that cannot be sold as fresh and perfect.

Come and Take These Goods Away---We Do Not Want Them Here and We Will Make Heavy Sacrifices to Get Rid of Them

So far as you are concerned, the majority of the articles are practically as good as ever. A smell of smoke or a trace of soot doesn't greatly affect the usefulness of a garment or a piece of furniture. But we cannot have even slightly damaged goods here, and, at the threshold of our busiest season, we cannot lose any time in getting rid of them and in getting new goods to take their places.

Don't get the idea that the whole store suffered. Most of our stock is entirely undamaged. It was only the departments on the Eighteenth Street side of the house that were affected.

Can't mention stocks or give details now—come in and see for yourself!

UNLAWFUL CAMPAIGN METHODS.

Mr. Acheson of Pennsylvania, who has introduced a bill to take fourth-class Post Offices out of politics, has, according to the Washington dispatches of The Evening Post, received ample testimony that Postmasters in Texas have been assessed 5 per cent. of their salaries by officers of the Republican State Committee. If this has been done it is a question whether it is not a distinct violation of the law of 1883, Section 12 of which runs as follows:

> That no person shall, in any room or building occupied in the discharge of official duties by any officer or employé of the United States mentioned in this act, or in any navy yard, fort, or arsenal, solicit in any manner whatever or receive any contribution of money or any other thing of value for any political purpose whatever.

It has just been decided by the Supreme Court that this is a prohibition of all solicitation, whether by personal application or by letter or circular addressed to an employé of the Government at his place of employment. If it can be shown that any member of the State Committee has asked within an office in person or otherwise of any Federal official a contribution to the campaign funds he can be fined or imprisoned. It is highly improbable that all communications of this sort have been made outside of the offices of the victim of solicitation. Of course all solicitation everywhere should be stopped, and Mr. Roosevelt could, if he chose, stop it at any moment, but if he fail to do so, it is a matter for Mr. Bonaparte to take up. Incidentally it may be remarked that campaign assessments are a form of moral "peonage" which should attract his particular attention.

MR. FLAGG'S BUILDING IDEAL.

We have received from Mr. Ernest Flagg a most interesting statement of his plan for regulating building in this city in such manner as to secure safe, handsome, sanitary structures with the greatest advantage to the owners and occupants and to the general public as well. His plan is called out by the obvious fact that the present want of regulation permits and, as it continues, will in a degree compel structures of exactly the opposite character, buildings that are unsightly, that lack needed light and shut it out from others, that will feed fires, and may easily make them terrible in their extent and uncontrollable.

Mr. Flagg's exceedingly ingenious and apparently simple and efficacious plan is based on strict limitation of height for construction on three-fourths of the ground area of a building, and no limitation whatever of height for construction on the remaining fourth of the area. To this he adds prohibition of the use of wood in construction in any manner or to any extent in the unrestricted portion of the building. The limitation he proposes for height is once and a half the width of the street, with a maximum of 100 feet, and a provision that the taller construction shall not be permitted within a fixed distance from the building line. In connection with this combined restriction and liberty Mr. Flagg would make the right to go beyond the limited height over one-fourth of a given area negotiable, so that higher buildings could be constructed by extending the limitation over the remaining area. Within any given plot of ground covering, let us say, a city block, there might be high construction for one-fourth of that block, but for one-fourth only. On each of the four sides the limitation would be observed, light and air would be secured for the adjacent property and for the public, protection against fire would be attained, while the greatest possible utility from the area covered would be had. With a characteristic respect for the aesthetic requirements of his profession, Mr. Flagg advocates a provision that every side of any structure passing beyond the limit of height "must be treated architecturally," since under the proposed plan each side becomes visible.

These recommendations come with especial force from Mr. Flagg, not only because of his high general reputation and his thorough professional training, but because he is the architect of the Singer Building, and is intimately acquainted with the conditions presented by the present system of regulation. Of this building he says:

> The Singer Building is not a complete illustration of what I propose, because the low part of that building is far higher than the limit of height here proposed, but in other respects it may serve as a sample. The high part occupies even less than one-quarter of the area of the plot; it interferes with no adjoining property; it depends on its own land for its light; it presents an ornamented façade to every point of view; it stands well back from the street line, so as not to mar the façade, and no wood whatever has been used in its construction. It is what all tall buildings ought to be—really fireproof.

A concrete illustration is worth much more than any amount of mere description. We think it would be the general verdict that a plan of regulation which made the Singer Building—actually restricted as proposed for future construction by Mr. Flagg—a type would be acceptable. Certainly the advantages sought by this plan are of immense importance, and if they can be reached by the means suggested they would safeguard the city from real and extensive perils.

"SOLD OUT."

The Agricultural Department's report of grain reserves emphasizes the fact that this country is in the happy condition known to commercial persons as "sold out." We have 58,000,000 fewer bushels of wheat on hand than last year, and 336,000,000 fewer bushels of corn. The decrease is less striking if compared with average stocks than with last year's exceptionally large reserves. It was the concurrence of that large supply with foreign necessities in successive years which enabled the farmer to rival the amazing progress of our mechanical industries. This comparative exhaustion of supplies now comes just at the planting season, when anything encouraging liberal planting is timely. There has been no nonsense about "holding" the grain crops, and there ought to be none about reducing acreage, prices being so satisfactory.

The sold-out condition of the farmers corresponds to the condition of the iron trade, with similar suggestions regarding the necessity of stocking up sooner or later, however it may be delayed. In the slump of 1893 there were 1,000,000 tons piled up in Pittsburg. That was a very much larger amount relatively fifteen years ago, yet now it is to be doubted whether the pig iron for sale in the United States equals much more than half as much, or, say, 600,000 tons. That is not a week's supply at last year's rate of consumption. Sooner or later home buyers will realize that if they do not take it others will, for our exports are growing now as they did when last we were embarrassed with iron not wanted here.

This state of depletion of stocks is wholesome compared with the cotton corner, still surviving in some degree among the planters, and with the efforts of the tobacco growers to pile up one unsold crop on another, and equalize supply and demand by not planting this year. Panics do not lessen wants. Empty cupboards mean work ahead to fill them.

RUSSIAN FINANCES.

A year or two ago the financial balance of the world rested upon Russia's solvency. That is no longer true, but it may become true whenever the representatives of the people stop the supplies of the bureaucracy. This hypothesis, once so unimaginable, is now so far from preposterous that the French Ambassador has been recalled within the month for suggesting that Russia would never pay the loans the present Government is floating. Just as France did not pay the debts of the Bourbons, so Bompard thought the Russians would not pay the debts of the Romanoffs. The Ambassador frankly declared he believed it his duty to stop Russia's credit in France. That would be an event big with other events, and the Ambassador made his declaration just upon the eve of Russia's usual budget statement now nearly due. An examination of the budget of 1907 is a necessary preparation for understanding the budget of 1908 and the Duma's debate upon it.

It will balance, of course, but there is no present hope for return of the ante-bellum conditions when budget after budget showed a surplus, and the Bank of Russia held gold enough to pay off all its currency and deposits, and in fact all liabilities except the Treasury's. In the five years before the Japanese war, and ending with 1903, the last normal year, the smallest surplus was 170,000,000 rubles, or half as many dollars. Even including all expenditures for the country's economic development, relief of famine, and so on, there was realized in those five years an aggregate surplus of 893,000,000 rubles against an aggregate of deficiencies in the extraordinary budget of 654,000,000. To this peaceful and solvent period succeeded the years of the war, the revolution, and famine upon an unusual scale. This troubled time witnessed the increase of the debt to 8,746,078,339 rubles, by the addition of a trifle over 2,000,000,000 rubles, which is nearly enough the cost of the war. The realized budget for 1907 is not yet known, but the first half of the year was better than expectations, and upon the whole there is reason to expect an increase of 125,000,000 in ordinary revenues, and a decrease of 180,000,000 in extraordinary expenditures. The account should balance at 2,471,000,000 rubles, against 2,031,000,000 in 1903.

The solvency of the Government is maintained, but at the cost of the people. In the five years ending with 1903 there was a similar growth of the budget, but it corresponded to the normal growth of prosperity, there being no increase of taxes. But the post-bellum growth is due to fresh burdens, and not to the profits of the immense businesses which Russia conducts. The alcohol monopoly shows a reduction of 24,500,000 rubles, and the transfer and legacy taxes reflect anything but thriving conditions. Not only do the railway receipts show a decline per verst compared with 1906, or even with 1903—the expenses are as unmanageable as with ourselves, with the accustomed decrease of maintenance account to provide for wages. The result of the war lessened the strategic value of the railways, and the loss of the Manchurian extension weakens their economic position. To resume, the Russian financial situation seems good only when considering the manner in which difficulties have been surmounted. Borrowing is still desirable for stability, and France is warned not to lend. The result to the Russian people of France's accepting Bompard's advice is not pleasant to contemplate.

THE KAISER'S LETTER.

The London Times's bomb has fizzled and burned out. There has been no explosion. To change the simile, the weapon hurled from Queen Victoria Street into St. Stephen's has turned out to be a boomerang. It has struck the thrower with a resounding whack. The Liberal Government may retire this year, or next, but the retirement will not be because the Kaiser and the First Lord of the Admiralty exchanged letters. All the world listens while Rosebery from his seat in the House of Lords denounces "yellow journalism"—meaning the Thunderer of old.

The letters of Wilhelm II. and Lord Tweedmouth have not been made public and "the incident is closed." The leader of his Majesty's Opposition approves the attitude of the Cabinet in this matter. King Edward, according to the latest reports, has written a cordial letter to his imperial nephew assuring him that public opinion in Great Britain does not approve the attempt of The London Times to make a "sensation" out of an interchange of private letters between German and English gentlemen.

Sober-minded English folks have been wondering a long while if The Times really wants an Anglo-German war. It has missed few opportunities to stir up ill-feeling between the two countries.

SEWING MACHINE AND MOTOR CAR.

The Mayor of Cincinnati, a man of large experience and broad intelligence, believes that women should not be permitted to run motor cars. To run a motor car properly calm nerves, muscular strength, extreme caution, and special skill are required. Many women run motor cars and comparatively few of them, thus far, have killed pedestrians. A Cincinnati woman, running an automobile, happened to kill a city official. Naturally there is strong feeling in that city against women chauffeurs, and the Mayor expresses it in a message to the City Council.

Skillful, carefully trained chauffeurs are needed whether they are men or women. Some women can sail yachts and ride across country. A woman with strong nerves and a good muscular development might run a motor car as well as a competent male chauffeur, with no greater risk to the car, to herself, or to the unwary pedestrian. Probably ninety-nine women in every hundred might better leave such work to men. But it is a deplorable fact that many men who run motor cars are not competent for the work.

Mayor Markbreit says: "The only proper machine for a woman to run is a sewing machine." Humane persons have been hoping a long while for the disappearance of all sewing machines not self-moving. Running a sewing machine by pushing the treadles is not a healthful occupation for women. It is much better work for men, if it must be done. Electric motors for sewing machines ought soon to be cheap and in common use.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Report from Beyond.

It must have been jealousy of our Dr. Quackenbos, whose sufficiently large claim is only that by the simple expedient of ordering her to live he made a young woman change her previous determination to die of pneumonia, that moved the three eminent but unnamed French physicians about whom we printed a dispatch yesterday to attempt the resuscitation of a young woman who had been "dead" for several hours.

They, too, appealed by what the dispatch called "hypnotic passes"—thereby showing how thoroughly up to date the eminent but unnamed ones are—but their main reliance seems to have been on a warm bath and applications of electricity, and, as is well known, electricity can do and explain anything. The teller of the tale, Comte Leonce de Larmandie, Director of the Société des Gens de Lettres, incidentally mentions "applications of sulphuric acid" as a part of the treatment, but that, presumably, was because he didn't know how the electrical conductivity of water is increased.

Anyhow, the girl whom the relatives believed dead and whom the doctors agreed to call so, for the edification of the Comte and other easily impressionable people, did regain consciousness and did describe the sensations of death and the just-after in terms practically identical with those that have been used by a dozen romancers, notably by the author of "The Gray World." Then she proceeded to die for good and all, despite—or because of—a hasty dose of morphine administered to calm the excitement produced by her vaguely remembered experiences in the "borderland."

That was a pity, for if she had really recovered, those same memories would have been accepted as Great Truths by no end of folks, and would have supplied us with further studies in the limitlessness of human credulity—a subject of inexhaustible interest for those of us who happen to have a taste for it. Properly manipulated, they could have been made the basis of a new religion, or at least of a new system of medicine, and, surely, we need more of both, having no more than a few thousand of each now. The significant fact that the "revenant" said not a word indicative of any new knowledge acquired during her travels, and many that showed she hadn't severed a single bond of the flesh while in a state of more or less profound coma, would not have interfered in the slightest degree with the exploitation of her delusions. It never does.

Weather as a Roadmaker.

Both the Thomas and the Zust car reported that on Monday they found comparatively good roads, so that each was able to make from ten to twenty miles an hour for a long day! Thereat, no doubt, the States of Nebraska and Wyoming will swell with pride and point the finger of scorn at Iowa and Illinois, to say nothing of Indiana, Ohio, and New York. Both States will know in their hearts, however, that the apparent superiority of their highways was partly a matter of soil and the rest a matter of weather, and that really they are not a bit better than their Eastern neighbors, if they are as good, in regard to providing for the needs of wheeled vehicles.

The truth is that, all over the country, the condition of a vast majority of the roads depends on whether the weather is hot or cold, wet or dry, and as much as that can be said for Alaska and Siberia. In other words, most of our so-called roads are not roads at all, but simply parts of the general landscape, set apart for the use of people who want to move beyond the limits of their own land. When it has rained just enough and not too much, and when it has frozen hard without a lot of snow, hours and even days come almost everywhere when the "going" is considered good by those who have never seen anything better, and at other times—well, errands of necessity can still be performed, though with difficulty and discomfort, and other business can wait a more convenient season.

That is still the plan throughout the greater part of every State and throughout the whole of many of them. It is, in brief, the American system. It costs us untold and almost incalculable millions each year—millions that could just as well be saved if we wanted to and had the sense—but the argument seems to be that we have been able to get along fairly well with the roads as they are and always have been, so what's the use of making a change to get rid of troubles with which we are familiar?

And yet the once common custom of lighting street lamps according to the calendar has been for the most part abandoned, though it was supported by every consideration that can be brought forward in defense of our substitutes for roads. For it was not less sensible to let the streets go dark when they might have shone, but didn't, than it is to trust the rain and the frost to keep our roads in travelable condition.

Fresh Air Is Not Appreciated.

Brooklyn is not alone, it seems, in sleeping with its windows tightly closed, and the surprise we expressed the other day when a Brooklynite accused the majority of his neighbors of still being afraid of "night air" apparently only proved that we don't know much about how the other half—or nine-tenths—live. And that is deeply humiliating.

The particularly well-written and intelligent letter on the subject, printed on this page yesterday, from a woman whose profession of nursing takes her into many houses, more than confirmed all that our first informant had stated. The "night air" superstition, she said, not only lingers, but it is widely held by multitudes of people who would bitterly resent the charge of being grossly ignorant of the first laws of health and comfort. And, according to this high authority, fresh air seems to be almost as much disliked and feared as night air, and those who certainly ought to know better actually prefer stuffy rooms to those that are well ventilated.

Even more discouraging than this was what our correspondent said about the negligence of many doctors to enforce, or even to suggest, the rule of the open window. That is hard, indeed, to believe, and we are half tempted to suspect that the charge is somehow connected with the curious antagonism which has come to be so often displayed when nurses are talking about doctors, and hardly less often when doctors are talking about nurses—especially when the nurses have been so well, or so long, trained as to be half doctors themselves. Yet there was the case of the Home for Consumptives, with only two of its windows open, to support even this amazing statement, so it may be that the half suspicion is as ill-founded as it is unkind.

From a Horseman.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having read your account of the accident of an equestrian (Mr. Hahn) in this morning's edition, and having been personally subjected to like dangers repeatedly by careless and lawbreaking chauffeurs, permit me to call the attention of our Park Commissioner and equestrians to the matter, as a speedy and drastic remedy is sorely needed.

Central Park is perhaps the only place where a horseback ride may be enjoyed in this city, as Seventy-second Street and Seventh Avenue are so fraught with danger that Riverside Drive and pleasant roads beyond 155th Street lose their attraction. While I am in no way an automobile hater, it does seem to me that the speed of motor cars in Central Park should be considerably reduced, and that their drivers should be compelled to keep on the right side of the road—two rules which are constantly and persistently violated; also that a chauffeur should be obliged to slow down or halt when signalled by a horseman.

Regulation Better Than Prohibition.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see in Monday's issue of The New York Times notice of a movement on the part of the New York Brewers' Association to decrease the number of undesirable saloons in this State.

The men composing this association are for the most part Germans who know the results of proper regulation in the sale of beer in their own country, where drunkenness is so rare as to be practically a negligible quantity.

Similar restrictions and precautions incorporated into the laws of our Southern States, coupled with high license, would, in the opinion of the writer, be more conducive to real temperance and less harmful to the morals of the community than all the total prohibition laws, which do not prohibit, and which are so prolific in creating evasions and disrespect of all law. Such regulative action on the part of our Legislatures would restore a measure of that boasted personal liberty once so dear to the people of these United States.

A. E. BOARDMAN.

New York, March 5, 1908.

A Foreign-Born Citizen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Assuming that a son is born abroad to parents who are American citizens while traveling, is such child eligible to the office of President of the United States? J. G.

New York, March 6, 1908.

[A son born abroad to American parents is constructively a native American citizen, and is eligible to the Presidency.]

WHO NON-CHURCHGOERS ARE.

Result of Dr. Carter's Analysis of His Theatre Service Audience.

The Rev. Dr. William Carter of the Madison Avenue Reformed Church completed yesterday his analysis of the answers to questions sent out at the Belasco Theatre services on Sunday night.

"One man in the audience wrote," said he, "that he was from Shoreditch, London, and had been two nights without a bed. He was seeking work and so far had been unable to find it. I saw his card that night and at once saw to it that he had a good supper and a place to sleep."

Dr. Carter says a woman wrote that years ago she belonged to a church in Paris and had backslidden. "I intend from to-night to lead a different life," she added.

"These meetings were designed especially for those who have no church and for strangers," said Dr. Carter; "and here's what I learned from the cards returned: In the audience were two persons from London, one from Paris, one from Edinburgh, one from Glasgow, one from Aberdeen, one from Buchie, Scotland; one from Aalborg, Denmark; one from Germany, one from Tung Chow, China, and two from Canada. There were representatives from these States: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Missouri, Ohio, Kansas, Nebraska, Maine, Oklahoma, Montana, Connecticut, Massachusetts, West Virginia, Oregon, Wisconsin, and Michigan."

LEARY INQUIRY WINDS UP.

Final Testimony Related to Convictions Obtained by Elections Superintendent.

The so-called Leary investigation ended yesterday, as far as the public sessions are concerned. Nathan Vidaver, for the Independence League, and former Justice Whitman, attorney for Mr. Leary, will submit briefs to Judge Clinch later.

It was brought out yesterday that between registration days and Election Day last year the Superintendent of Elections convicted seven persons of infractions of the election law. Deputy Colin H. Woodward testified that this was the largest number of such convictions ever obtained by a Superintendent in the time specified.

It was also shown that fourteen convictions had been obtained up to date in cases growing out of the last election, and that twenty-two convictions had been obtained within a year for fraudulent registration.

Mr. Vidaver contended that the convictions were due to the activity of Attorney General Jackson.

SAFETY OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Have the Parochial and Other Schools in New York Been Inspected?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a great comfort to parents having children attending our public schools to have the assurance of both the fire and school authorities that a repetition of the awful catastrophe of the Collinwood school is next to impossible in these schools. We all know the attention given by the public school teachers to the fire drill, and the splendid discipline maintained by the pupils in their dismissal both at the drill and also in the face of smoke and fire.

But we have in our midst thousands of children who are daily attending other schools, and whose safety of life must not be overlooked. What assurance can our Fire or Health Department or the authorities of these schools give that in case one of their schools should be threatened with fire the little ones will reach the street in safety.

Take for instance the children attending the parochial schools in this city, of whom there are nearly 55,000, what safeguards are they surrounded with in case of fire? I have two children attending one of these schools, which has an attendance of over 1,000 pupils, and the fire drill is not in operation in this school. Just imagine what a death trap this school would be in case of fire with a thousand confused children running wild throughout the building in their efforts to gain freedom. It would be well for the above departments to proceed at once and see that the necessary fire precautions for the safety of the children are taken at every school, public or otherwise.

JOHN A. JOHNSON.

From The World.

The only hope of the Democrats in the coming campaign lies in the nomination of a candidate like John A. Johnson, whose life-history will appeal to the imagination of everybody, who has no record of defeat and disaster to explain away, who has nothing to defend, who has not been identified with the old vendettas of his party, and who has demonstrated his ability to get votes.

To nominate Mr. Bryan is to throw away the election in advance.

From The Sun.

What we know of Mr. Johnson is very favorable. He is fresh, clean, enthusiastic, and strong, yet impressionable. At the least he does not lecture and attempt to dominate. It is very evident that, with his own ideas quite clear within him, he would nevertheless permit the legislative and judiciary departments of the Government to attend to their own affairs and not molest them with criticisms and importunities.

Johnson is only a possibility, of course. Bryan is not even that. Bryan is a thrice told tale and always a loser. He simply obscures the Democratic prospect with his shadow.

Mrs. Pell's Name Used Without Authority.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You will greatly oblige me by publishing the fact that Mrs. S. Osgood Pell is indignant that her name should be used as a candidate for the automobile carnival. She knew absolutely nothing of it until her name appeared on the list, and feels that it is a great imposition to use her name without her permission.

Can't Find Alaska.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note with interest letters from children in public schools concerning the motor contest between New York and Paris under the auspices of your paper.

This matter appeals to me very much, indeed, because my son desires to be informed as to the country covered by this marvelous trip.

On referring to the school geography at hand I was unable to find that Alaska appeared on the map of the United States. Why this omission? PARENT.

VERB. SAP.

With flounders, salmon, shad, or trout,
With oysters and a glass of stout,
I shall be, there is not a doubt,
Content!

With haddock, whiting, bloater, sole,
With turbot, shrimps, and buttered roll,
I am not sorry on the whole
It's Lent!

For, as the connoisseurs all say,
Fish makes the matter known as gray,
Then, if I eat it day by day,
Mayhap

My brain will grow to such a size,
When Easter comes I should surmise
That I'll be really awf'lly wise!

LA TOUCHE HANCOCK.

SALE OF OLD AND NEW ART.

Paintings from Ehrich and Oehme Galleries on View.

A sale of old masters from the Ehrich Galleries and of modern masters from the Oehme Galleries, will be held on Thursday evening, March 12, at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries, 546 Fifth Avenue, at Forty-fifth Street. The collection offered comprises many examples that not only have technical merit, but appeal also to the general public on the ground of their pleasant human interest, their historical associations, and their charm of subject.

Several of Mr. Ehrich's pictures are portraits of important personages by the noted painters of their day. George IV., for example, is present as he was painted by Sir Thomas Lawrence in his robes of state, with the Golden Fleece, and other orders hung about his neck, the Order of the Garter at his left knee, the crown on the table beside him, his graceful figure, handsome, self-complacent face, and pompous attitude echoing his mental and moral characteristics. There is also a portrait by Lawrence of Kemble in his character of Hamlet and one of the lovely and gifted Marguerite Power, Countess of Blessington, the friend of Byron and editor of The Keepsake. Adrian Hanneman, a Dutch painter who painted in England some hundred and fifty years before Lawrence, is represented by his portrait of Lady Earle, in which the textures of the gray satin gown, of the glossy hair, and pearl ornaments are given with much delicacy of rendering.

Another painter of the Dutch school in the seventeenth century, who worked only in Amsterdam and in Antwerp, is Nicholas Maas, the pupil of Rembrandt, and in certain examples of his middle period nearly if not quite his master's equal. The picture in the present collection, a "Portrait of a Gentleman," is notable for the beauty of the painting in the silk gown, for the animated expression of the keen, intelligent eyes, and for the slender, pallid hands, painted with characteristic precision and expression. Other important numbers in the catalogue are del Mazo's "Portrait of a Man," rich in color and broad in treatment; Regaud's "Portrait of the Painter Van Loo," a sumptuous portrait of the sister of Charles I., by Sir Peter Lely, and a portrait by Raeburn of Neil Gow, the Scottish fiddler. Among the paintings that are not portraits is an excellent example of Morland's now popular art.

Mr. Oehme's pictures include among others a water color by Anton Mauve, "The Wood Cart," which is eloquent of that master's tranquil and slightly melancholy charm; a water color by Josef Israels of a Rabbi bending a noble head over the book in which he is reading by an open window, the light streaming across his scholarly face and delicate aged hand; two examples by Evert Pieters, one of the younger painters of Holland—a brilliant beach scene and an interior with figures—the latter particularly good in color and one of the intimate household subjects that belong by tradition to Dutch art.

Kever is represented by a richly toned interior. Of the French paintings Jules Dupré's "La Fermière" has a sturdy rustic beauty, Henner's "Thusnelda" and "The Red Shawl" are interesting as examples of a strongly individual painter, and Corot's "Italian Landscape," which was sold with the pictures found in his studio at his death, is of a quiet gray tone certain to bear the test of familiarity. The finest of the modern pictures, however, is the Troyon—a sheep scene in which the flock is returning at evening under the waning light. The massing of the sheep and the perspective of the landscape are admirable, and the drawing of the uncouth anatomy of the individual animals is the outcome of inevitably long and close study, since no beast of the fields is more difficult to render with accuracy and spirit.

NAST PICTURES SOLD.

His "Head of Christ" Brings $1,200, the Top Price of the Night.

The highest price at the sale by the Anderson Company last night of the late Thomas Nast's collection of paintings, water colors, and engravings, was $1,200, paid for a "Head of Christ," an oil painting by Nast. It was bought on order. The name of the successful bidder was withheld.

Nast's well-known civil war oil painting, "Saving the Flag," sold for $420. It represents a Union officer on a battlefield holding aloft the flag, which floats from a broken staff.

A full length portrait in oil by Nast of Gen. Robert E. Lee in uniform awaiting Gen. U. S. Grant at Appomattox brought $150.

An oil painting by Nast of a laughing housemaid standing at a window, said to be a likeness of the cartoonist's daughter, Julia, sold for $150. The well-known oil painting of St. Nicholas, full length, holding in his right hand above his head a foaming tankard, and in his left hand a long clay pipe, from which the smoke is ascending, brought $200.

A three-quarter-length oil painting of the Rev. Robert N. Merritt, "St. Peter's Faithful Servant," sold for $185.

Mary Anderson as Hermione, a full-length paintings in oil by Nast, dated 1890, sold for $125.

The sale will be continued this evening, when the paintings of other artists, which Nast secured for his collection, will be auctioned off. The total for the night, 104 pictures, was $3,500.

ART FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Education Committee Gives a Demonstration in Model Building.

The Art Committee of the Public Education Association held a meeting yesterday afternoon to show plans for putting pictures and casts in one of the public schools of the city. There was an exhibit of pictures in color, suitable for school room decoration, one of them being a gift from the Chairman of the committee of Public School 20. Water color sketches, made by Thomas Tryon, indicated how these pictures could be put in even the small rooms so as to produce restful and pleasing compositions.

There were addresses by John W. Alexander, Mrs. Anna Garlin Spencer, and Frederick L. Stoddard, whose mural paintings will be unveiled at the Hebrew Technical School for Girls on March 19. The meeting was held in this school, at Second Avenue and Fifteenth Street, because it was felt by the committee that it was a model school, and might well be copied by others.

SUES TO ENJOIN MAGAZINE.

Woman Writer Asserts That Her Article Has Been Mutilated.

Dorothy Richardson, a writer, applied to Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman yesterday for an injunction restraining the Butterick Publishing Company from distributing copies of the Delineator magazine for April containing an article over her signature which she alleges has been mutilated. Decision was reserved.

The Butterick Company said through counsel that they bought Miss Richardson's article through a syndicate, paying $195 for it. The article has been incorporated in their forthcoming number, and to remove it would mean the destruction of the plates, thereby making it impossible to get the issue out at the usual time.

Atherton Brownell, who is connected with the syndicate that placed Miss Richardson's story, says that he sold it to the Delineator, after revising it in the usual way.

Richard Watson Gilder in an affidavit in support of Miss Richardson's application said that it was his experience during twenty-seven years as editor of The Century Magazine that the adding of new matter to an article is inadmissible, and that it is not the custom in the publishing trade for an editor of a magazine to add to articles purchased by him without the consent of the author.

WASHINGTON ELM CUT DOWN.

Last of Famous Trees in St. Paul's Churchyard Gone.

The last of the famous Washington elms in old St. Paul's churchyard fell under the axe yesterday afternoon. Tradition has it that in Colonial days Washington, when he arrived at the church invariably tied his horse to one of the old elms, of which there were a number in front of the church at the time.

HUGHES FOR CAUTION IN REVISING TARIFF

Should Be Done, He Says, Not as a Political Manoeuvre.

ADHERES TO PROTECTION

Thinks the People Are Tired of Bossism and Will Insist on Fidelity and Efficiency.

BOSTON, Mass., March 10.—Gov. Charles E. Hughes of New York delivered three addresses here to-night before business and college organizations. As his visit was regarded as social rather than political, none of the party leaders here was at the station to greet him.

Early in the evening the Hughes Club of Harvard, composed of 300 students, headed by a brass band, escorted Gov. Hughes to Tremont Temple, where the annual banquet of the New England Dry Goods Association was held

Gov. Hughes's Speech.

Gov. Hughes said in part:

"Business is American life—a myriad of interdependent activities. Good business spells contentment and a diffusion of happiness. It means that the American people are at work; that the opportunities for labor are increasing; that our productive energies are more and more largely employed, and that interchanges of commerce are multiplying, signifying a greater utilization of our resources, a more complete satisfaction of wants, and a gratifying realization of the gains of effort.

"We want no drags upon American industry; no obstacles to its extension; no arbitrary governmental interference to prevent its growth. That American industry may flourish, and that we may enjoy to the maximum the blessings which flow from wholesome activity, we must have peace, order, fair laws, and honest administration.

Criticises Some Office Seekers.

"Men who will prey upon minority stockholders or abuse the trusts that are committed to them in our great financial enterprises, will prey upon the people if they have a chance. Whether powers of supervision and regulation will be wisely exercised depends, not upon the words of the statute book, but upon the character of the supervisors and regulators.

"Between the man who attempts to fool the people in order to get rich and the man who attempts to fool the people in order to get office; between him who seeks his personal profit through an abuse of his trust as Director, and the man who uses public office to serve himself or his personal friends, there is nothing to choose.

"The people are tired of bossism; of the use of political machinery to place men in office for the purpose of serving special interests; of the use of public prerogatives for private gain, and of the prostitution of grants of power to selfish advantage. The people will insist that the watchwords of every department of government must be fidelity and efficiency.

"With regard to railroads, it is not to be denied that they are public enterprises, conducted under public authority. The American people will not tolerate unjust discrimination or improper service, and they will insist upon demonstrating that the will of the people is supreme.

"But the people are too intelligent not to recognize the vast importance of the development of our railroad enterprises.

"That grievances may be settled, unfair discriminations avoided, reasonable and impartial service secured, without committing on the other hand the egregious blunder of stifling needed enterprise, it is essential that the facts should be understood. The concerns of these great businesses are too closely related to the welfare of the people in their thousandfold activities to permit them to become the subject of arbitrary action.

Tariff Revision Important.

"It is considered important, I believe, by the majority of our citizens, that we should have a revision of the tariff. It should be accomplished fairly, promptly, without log-rolling, not in any sense as a matter for political manoeuvring, but in the interest of the American people as a whole. We shall adhere to the policy of protecting American industry. We are not prepared to surrender our scale of wages, or to permit our standards of living to be reduced to those which prevail in other countries.

"Upon a complete and just examination of the facts any needed readjustment may be had to the end that the schedules may harmonize with the principle underlying the protective policy and the reasonable necessities of American production as compared with production abroad.

"We must be just as zealous to avoid disturbing honest enterprise as we are anxious to stamp out dishonest practices. Unjustly discriminating rates, rebates, preferential allowances, improper privileges obtained through Governmental favoritism, unfair practices in competition, dishonest financiering, the betrayal of fiduciary trust, and every means employed to gain advantages which talent, skill, economy in organization and honorable enterprise do not suffice to give, are the proper subjects of attack; and legitimate business will not suffer but rather gain from the vigor of the pursuit."

At the conclusion of his address Gov. Hughes went to Young's Hotel, where he spoke to the members of the Delta Upsilon Society, of which he was an active member while an undergraduate of Brown University. The society held its annual banquet to-night.

At the American House he addressed the sons of Brown University of Boston and vicinity, who held their thirty-fifth annual reunion and dinner.

SUFFRAGETTES GIVE A PARTY.

Meet and Play Bridge to Raise Money for the Cause.

The Suffragettes, (emphasis on the last syllable,) not the Suffragists, (emphasis again on the last syllable,) made a grand leap for high life yesterday afternoon, and all in a moment became fashionable. They gave a bridge whist party to support open-air meetings, Sunday parades, or anything else of a militant order that the Progressive Woman's Suffrage Union, the name in which they ask for "Votes for Women," may demand.

Mrs. Sophia Loebinger gave the whist party at her home, 32 Edgecombe Avenue. The players were most of them members of a reading club to which Mrs. Loebinger belongs and who have been pressed into work for the "cause." The returns will go to swell the treasury of the union, which will need more money to support its enlarged headquarters at 122 East Twenty-third Street.

The union made its Spring moving ahead of the season, and yesterday at the new rooms the Suffragettes were showing their domestic qualities. Mrs. Lydia Commander blackened the grate of the new establishment, while Mrs. Borrman Wells, better known to New Yorkers on the Suffragette rostrum at Union Square, hung the curtains. The mail brought the Suffragettes letters of encouragement. One which arrived yesterday from Mrs. Alice Locke Park of Palo Alto, Cal., was enthusiastic, and the writer sent a check as a proof of sincerity.

A young woman from Indiana also wrote to say that she was musical, and that she would like to become an Indiana Suffragette and start the movement in her State.

Widow Gets Letters of Administration for Fireman's Estate.

Letters of administration to the estate of Charles W. Kruger, the Deputy Chief of the Fire Department who was killed four weeks ago while attending a fire in Canal Street, were granted to his widow, Mrs. Gertrude C. Kruger yesterday by Surrogate Thomas.

Mrs. Kruger, who lives at Arverne, L. I., says in her petition that her husband left no real property, and only $3,000 in personal property. There are two children, Irene F. Kruger and Emma C. Kruger Chief Kruger was thirty-six years in the Fire Department.

OPERA BENEFIT NETS $7,000 FOR CHARITY

Brilliant Audience Sees Performance at the Manhattan in Aid of Italian Societies.

TWO OPERAS WERE GIVEN

Gold Baton Presented to Conductor Campanini—Mayor McClellan Occupies a Box.

Nearly $7,000 was netted for the Society for Italian Immigrants and the Italian Benevolent Institute last evening at a special performance of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" at the Manhattan Opera House. Between the two operas Cleofonte Campanini, who conducted the orchestra, was presented with a gold baton by the members of the societies.

"Pagliacci" was sung by Mme. Zeppilli and Messrs. Zenatello, Sammarco, and Crabbé, and "Cavalleria" by Mmes. Agostinelli and de Cisneros and Messrs. Bassi and Crabbé. The theatre was crowded.

Mayor McClellan occupied Box 34, which was presented to him by Ernesto G. Fabbri, President of the Society for Italian Immigrants.

In Proscenium Box 13, at the left of the stage, were the Italian Ambassador, Baron Mayor des Planches, and others, while the Italian Consul, Count Massiglia, occupied Proscenium Box 14, just opposite.

Box 1, next to the stage, was taken by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mackay, who gave a small dinner beforehand and then took their guests to the opera. The Duchess of Marlborough and Mrs. William Douglas Sloane were with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri occupied Box 30 in the horseshoe, Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, the subscriber for it, being abroad. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn and Mr. and Mrs. William Church Osborn also had boxes here. John V. Trevor had Box 31. Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt also took one of the boxes, but was not present.

Others having boxes in the horseshoe were Mrs. James Gayley and a party, Mrs. Emanuelle Gerli, Mrs. Paul Gerli, Mrs. Joseph Gerli, Caesar Conti, Mrs. Guidone, Celestina Piva, President Commendatore of the Italian Benevolent Institute; J. B. Martin, Mrs. Perera, Mrs. Edward Robinson, and Luigi Solari.

Thomas F. Ryan had Proscenium Box 16, Mme. Cavalieri had Box 15, Timothy D. Sullivan's box was No. 12, and Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Gary were in Box 10. M. Henry Maillard had Box 3, next the Mackay box, and Mrs. Charles Polifeme had Box 5. Signor Bonci had the box furthest from the stage. In the second tier, Box 9, Paul Gerli had a party.

Box 2, next the stage, on the right, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, and Box 4 was taken by Mme. Tetrazzini and Signor Campanini, and was occupied by the diva and Mme. Campanini, who is her sister, and some friends. Signor Caruso had Box 6.

Among others in the boxes and orchestra chairs were Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Schirmer, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Dr. Harold Barclay and Mrs. Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Choate, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Gilder, Miss Anna M. Good, Dr. Antonio Stella and Mrs. Stella, Mrs. James T. Leavitt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hopkins Smith, Mrs. H. G. Roelker, Miss Sybil Kane, Miss Mary Livingston Willard, and many other well-known people.

COTILLION ON ROLLER SKATES.

Feature of the Winter's Last Session of the Tuesday Skating Class.

The tenth and last meeting for the Winter of the Tuesday Evening Roller Skating Class, managed by Arthur L. Doremus, Howard S. Borden, and others, occurred last night at the Metropolitan Rink.

The feature of the evening was a cotillion on skates, led from one end by Howard S. Borden, skating with Mrs. Borden, and from the other by A. L. Doremus, skating with Miss Florence Barker. It began at 9 o'clock, being preceded by plain skating. There were ten figures in it, and in five of them favors were given. There was also a pyramid figure, and last of all a grand march.

The rink was specially decorated and a buffet was served. This Winter's class has been large and successful, and included some of the débutantes.

MISS PARSONS A BRIDE TO-DAY.

Wedding of John E. Parsons's Daughter to Montgomery Hare Set for Noon

The wedding of Miss Constance Parsons, youngest daughter of John E. Parsons, and Montgomery Hare, son of J. Montgomery Hare, will take place at noon to-day at the home of the bride's father, 30 East Thirty-sixth Street.

The wedding will be quiet, as Mr. Hare is in mourning, and only the immediate families and a few intimate friends will be invited. Miss Parsons will have no attendants. Meredith Hare, a brother of the bridegroom, will be the best man.

Nahan Franko and his orchestra will give a special musical programme before and after the ceremony, among the selections to be played being Gounod's hymn, "St. Cecile"; a Chopin nocturne, Albumblatt, Wagner, and a serenade by Saint-Saëns.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, and the Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church, will perform the ceremony.

Miss Grace Ruggles to Wed April 29.

Miss Grace Ruggles, daughter of Mrs. Henry M. Johnson of 26 East Sixtieth Street, and George Lane of Troy, N. Y., will be married at 4 o'clock on Wednesday, April 29, at the home of the bride's mother. It will be a quiet wedding, and only a limited number of friends and relatives will be invited. Miss Louise Johnson will be the maid of honor.

COHEN—HEYMAN.

The wedding of Isaac F. Cohen and Miss Julia I. Heyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heyman of 840 West End Avenue, occurred at 6:30 o'clock last night at Delmonico's. The Rev. Dr. Guttman performed the ceremony.

The bride wore white satin and carried lilies of the valley. Miss Dora Cohen, sister of the bridegroom, was the maid of honor, and Bert Cohen, a cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

A dinner for the bridal party followed the ceremony at Delmonico's.

Mrs. E. D. Godfrey Gives a Luncheon.

Mrs. Edwin Drexel Godfrey entertained at luncheon yesterday with music at her home, 21 East Sixty-sixth Street. Among those present were:

PLAY AUTHOR HIDES IDENTITY.

Won't Declare Himself Unless Audience Approves His Satire for Charity.

The authorship of "The Simple Life," a satirical play, which will be given by amateurs on March 19 in the ballroom of the Plaza for the benefit of the Riverbend Home for Convalescent Children, is to be concealed till the author has a chance to hear the verdict of the audience. If the play succeeds he will reveal himself, but if it fails he will remain incognito.

By this plan the author hopes to get an unbiased opinion of the merit of his work. Those who have read the play are loud in praise of his satire and epigram. The action of the play takes numerous flings at metropolitan foibles.

Second in interest only to the identity of the playwright is the first appearance of Tommy Russell, brother of Annie Russel, the original Lord Fauntleroy. Mr. Russell, who is now an insurance agent, takes one of the leading rôles.

Evert Jansen Wendell, Jacob Wendell, Jr., Theodore Steinway, and Harold W. Gould are also in the cast. Edward Fales Coward, who played with Mrs. James Brown Potter when she was an amateur, is one of the comedians. Miss Marie Huntington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Huntington, Mrs. Isabel Ehrhardt Lee, and Miss Olive Hitchcock are others who will take part.

The Convalescent Home, for the maintenance of which "The Simple Life" is being presented, was formerly the country seat of the late Harvey Fisk. At his death his daughters, the Misses Evelyn and Mary Fisk turned over the house to this charity. The list of patronesses has been augmented by the addition of Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, Mrs. Richard Gambrill, Mrs. Victor Sorchan, Mrs. Frederick W. Whitridge, Mrs. Charles Shaw, and Miss Alice Loundsberry.

Social Notes.

Miss Katharine Schley will give a bridge party at the Plaza on March 20.

Miss Florence Warner of 250 Lexington Avenue will give a large bridge party this afternoon.

Mrs. Charles P. Warren of Woodcliff, N. J., will give a card party at the Plaza on Friday, March 13.

Mrs. Henry Moses yesterday celebrated her ninety-first birthday at her residence, 135 East Sixtieth Street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. V. B. Hoffman and Mrs. Lindley Hoffman Chapin sail for Europe to-day for a motoring tour.

Prof. Fenellosa will give his second lecture on Chinese and Japanese art at the Colony Club at 11 o'clock to-day.

Mrs. William Alexander of 14 West Thirty-seventh Street will give a dinner to-morrow night, followed by a theatre party.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Guy Ridpath of London, England, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Henry Barbour of Cambridge, Mass., are at the St. Regis.

The engagement has been announced of Ernest Rosenfeld and Miss Florette M. Rosenheim, daughter of Philip Rosenheim of 113 West Seventy-fourth Street.

Mrs. Samuel M. Jarvis, who had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Edmund G. Vaughan, in Havana, returned to New York yesterday on the steamship Havana.

Bruno Huhn gave a concert yesterday at 12 East Fifty-third Street. Mrs. Edith Chapman Gould and Reinald Werrendth sang, and Charles Scheutze played the harp.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Rhinelander were in town yesterday to look over their new home in Fifty-fourth Street. They intend making New York, instead of Lakewood, their Winter home.

Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" and Brahms's Hungarian dances were among the numbers played yesterday afternoon by the Russian Quartet at the daily tea now being held at the St. Regis.

The members of the Colony Club, including its President, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, and the other officers, will give a reception from 3 to 6 to-day, to which each member is entitled to ask two men guests.

About seventy-five members of the Fresh Air Sewing Class met yesterday at Mrs. Richard Irvin's. Mrs. Edison Lewis sang and Mrs. James Otis Post played the violin. The next meeting will be at Mrs. Frederic Elliot Lewis's, 22 West Thirty-eighth Street.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Emily R. Wolff and Ernest A. Cardozo, on Tuesday, March 31, at 4:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Julius G. Wolff, mother of the bride. Mr. Cardozo is a member of the firm of Cardozo & Nathan. Owing to the death of his father, Michael M. Cardozo, the wedding will not be large.

NAME FOR BABY ELEPHANT.

Woman Wins Box at the Circus Opening by Suggesting "Abe Lincoln."

The managers of the Barnum & Bailey Circus yesterday decided to name the baby elephant born recently at the Winter quarters Abe Lincoln. The suggestion came from Miss B. Livingston of 1 West 114th Street. When the circus people invited suggestions for a name and offered a box to the person submitting the most appropriate one they did not know what a tempest they had invited.

The letters which came in swamped the office force, and it was a relief when the contest was closed last night. Hundreds of letters and cards came from children. Many of the suggestions were humorous, and, of course, many were impossible. Seven out of every ten writers made some combination of the letters in the names of Barnum and Bailey. Fifty-six persons suggester Barley, as an obvious combination of the two names.

Many of the suggestions were of political significance. A Custom House employe suggested that the baby elephant be called Bill Taft. Lots of people suggested "Roosevelt," "Teddy," and "Little Big stick." One man wrote that if the circus men dared call the baby Murphy, McGinnis, or any name that suggested the Irish he would have every Irish society in America boycott them. One woman wrote suggesting that the elephant be called John L. Sullivan, "the grandest man that ever lived."

The winning suggestion was as follows: "In regard to your request for a name for your baby elephant, I suggest Abe Lincoln. 'Abe' may mean 'American-born elephant,' and 'Lincoln' was the first President of the Republican Party, which is symbolized by an elephant."

For her suggestion Miss Livingston will receive a box for the opening of the circus at the Madison Square Garden.

ANNEXED HER IDEAS, SAYS HILDA ENGLUND

GRACE ELLISTON TOOK ROLE

The Production Was Miss Englund's Idea Originally and Naturally She Feels Aggrieved.

Henrik Ibsen's "Love's Comedy," a rhymed satirical play in three acts, is to have its first professional presentation in America at the Bijou Theatre next Thursday afternoon, with Warner Oland, recently a member of Nazimova's company, and Grace Elliston in the leading rôles. The offering is to be made under the management of George Ford, and its preparation has been complicated by entanglements.

Until last Saturday morning it was supposed that the principal female rôle would be played by Hilda Englund, a Scandinavian actress, who appeared in the piece some years ago when it was produced by the Scandinavian actor, August Lindberg. Miss Englund, who has recently been on tour with Wright Lorimer, is known in New York chiefly in connection with various Ibsen readings and a production of one scene of "Peer Gynt." She declares that the ideas for staging the piece have practically been adapted from her, without her consent.

For more than a year Miss Englund has been talking about the merits of "Love's Comedy" and striving to plan a production. She says that some time ago, when she had arranged with friends for the funds to make a small offering Mr. Oland came into the matter and, so to speak, stole her thunder.

"I met Warner Oland when nobody knew him and gave him his first chance in the scene from 'Peer Gynt,' which we did together," said Miss Englund, almost in tears, yesterday afternoon. "Some weeks ago he came to me and suggested that we make a production of Strindberg's 'Countess Julie,' an idea which I refused to entertain, as the title part is not one with which I should wish to be identified.

"I suggested that he might play with me in 'Love's Comedy.' The next day he came back and said I was right; that 'we' would produce the Ibsen comedy.

"Pretty soon there came some talk about our doing the piece at a benefit under the auspices of Mrs. George Gould, and a friend of mine, who had intended to back the production withdrew, saying it was much better to have such a patroness as Mrs. Gould. After that Oland said he was making the production. A friend of his, George Ford, seemed to be in charge.

"We rehearsed in my house, and I told the people everything I knew about the production as done abroad. The stage manager came here, and we discussed many points. I even wrote out the make-up for the characters, and described the settings and the music. Then one night I received a telegram saying that the next rehearsal would be at a theatre in Forty-second Street. We rehearsed there next day, and Grace Elliston sat in the theatre and watched me. I did not know who she was.

"After that we rehearsed at the Bijou, and one afternoon at Wallack's, and Miss Elliston was always there, watching. I began to be afraid that something was wrong, and did not 'play up,' though they continually urged me to do so. One of the men warned me not to 'give the part away' too much. On Saturday morning they asked me more questions about the music and other details. Then they told me that I was no longer required and that Miss Elliston, who would close her engagement in 'The Rector's Garden' that night, would play the part. Of course, there is no copyright on the Ibsen plays, and I had no legal hold on the piece."

Mr. Ford declared yesterday that he was the manager of the production, and that Miss Elliston was not its backer.

"I first became interested in the piece through Miss Englund a year ago," he said. "But the idea of the present production originated with me, and I proposed it to Oland. I do not know what previous plans Miss Englund may have had. I went to Miss Elliston simply because I knew her.

"It is true that she went to at least one rehearsal and possibly to others, but I doubt if she got much from Miss Englund. The truth of the matter is that the other members of the company insisted that Miss Englund, who is a character actress, was not suited for this part, and I tried two other women before going to Miss Elliston. I was the last to stand out for her, and I do not wonder that she feels she has a grievance."

HENRY MILLER'S NEW PLAY.

"The Servant in the House" to be Produced at the Savoy March 23.

Henry Miller's production of "The Servant in the House" will be seen for the first time in New York at the Savoy Theatre on Monday evening, March 23.

The piece is the first offering of Mr. Miller's new company of Associate Players, and includes in the cast Edith Wynne Matthison, Walter Hampden, Tyrone Power, Charles Dalton, Arthur Lewis, Gawley Herbert, and Mabel Moore.

After the run of "The Servant in the House" at the Savoy these same players will be seen in another drama, which is now in readiness.

Society Pantomime for Vaudeville.

After serving as a vehicle for the histrionic art of Mrs. Waldorf Astor recently in the luxurious ballroom of the Plaza, the pantomime "Le Reveillon de Pierette" will be sent to Hammerstein's Victoria for a two weeks' engagement. Professionals will act instead of the originals, Mrs. Astor, Lydig Hoyt, and Buell Hollister, and recruits from the ballet will be seen in the Parisian restaurant scene. The piece consequently will not be presented by Nahan Franko at the Plaza.

Sothern to Aid Actors' Fund.

Daniel Frohman, President of the Actors' Fund, announces that the annual benefit performance in aid of the association will be given this year by E. H. Sothern, who will present an entire programme of acts from the plays in his répertoire. The programme will include scenes from "Lord Dundreary," "Hamlet," "If I Were King," "The Merchant of Venice," "Twelfth Night," "Don Quixote," "The Fool Hath Said," and a new one-act play in verse written by an 11-year-old boy. The performance will take place before the end of Mr. Sothern's engagement at the Lyric.

THE KNEISEL QUARTET.

Franck, Strauss, and Beethoven on Its Fourth Programme, Played Last Night.

At the fourth concert of the Kneisel Quartet, which took place last evening in Mendelssohn Hall, there was the audience of music lovers that always fills the auditorium at these concerts, and there was a sense of relief that two of the members of the quartet, Mr. Kneisel and Mr. Willeke, had recovered from their physical ills sufficiently and in time to make the concert possible. Then relief turned to admiration at the manner in which both of them acquitted themselves of their part in the programme.

Mr. Willeke's was in Richard Strauss's youthful sonata for violoncello and piano, in which the piano was played by Miss Katharine Goodson. It was his first appearance in New York as a solo performer, and although he had already certified the excellence of his musicianship in his quartet playing, there was something much more shown in this performance. It was most artistic, full of the romantic and buoyant spirit that is in the work expressed through a tone of rich and vibrant quality, big and modulated with subtle skill, phrasing of exquisite finish and a technique at all points masterly.

Miss Goodson seconded him with a performance of the piano part conceived in the same vein of buoyancy and vital freshness. The work itself is a remarkable one for a boy of nineteen years in the grasp it shows on the material, although it is naturally under the influence of other men, being considerably less strong and original than the composer's violin sonata, and having no suggestion of his present style whatever.

The quartet played two movements—the larghetto and scherzo—from César Franck's string quartet, and Beethoven's great C sharp minor quartet. It is some years since Mr. Kneisel played Franck's quartet here, and the language no longer seems strange or repellent, but rather full of beauty and euphony, and, in the slow movement, of nobility. There is here, reappearing in the midst of the filmy grace of the scherzo, a phrase that is not so much a reminiscence as an actual reproduction of one of the most characteristic "Tristan" harmonies. The playing of these movements was of exquisite perfection.

The performance of Beethoven's C sharp minor quartet is the highest and in many ways the most difficult task to which such an organization as Mr. Kneisel's can address itself. It requires not only a high technical skill and perfection of ensemble, but also even more, musicianship that can rise to some of the loftiest conceptions of the master and identify itself with a spirit that in its search for expression bursts the bonds of the accepted forms and the accepted limitations of the quartet style.

Its difficulties are quite as much in intellectual and emotional sympathy and comprehension as in technical mastery. Many have believed that the ideas in this quartet are beyond the power of four instruments to express, and have thought to give them a fuller utterance by a multiplication of the strings, or even by turning the work into a symphony for full orchestra. All such attempts have only gone to prove that, even though he strained their resources to the utmost, Beethoven's thought is conceived for the unassisted quartet, and is to be expressed by it alone, when it is guided by the discernment and the right feeling that can follow him in his transcendent utterance.

Mr. Kneisel has before now shown that he possesses these qualities, and that he can give an interpretation of this music that shall fully reveal its power and its significance. The performance last evening was one of rare beauty at many points and of sustained power. If it did not in technical perfection wholly equal some of his performances of it in the past it may have been due to the lingering results of his recent inquiry. But as it was it was an event to be noted with more than ordinary gratitude.

NEXT WEEK'S OPERAS.

Tetrazzini to Sing in Philadelphia—Carmen in Concert Form.

Mme. Calvé will make her second appearance in "Carmen" at the Manhattan Opera House next Monday evening. The other bills for next week are: Wednesday, "Louise"; Thursday, Mme. Tetrazzini in "Lucia" at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia; Friday, "Pelléas et Mélisande," and Saturday afternoon, "Crispino e la Comare."

At the Sunday night concert the second act of "Carmen" and the finale of the third act of "La Gioconda" will be given in concert form.

The list of operas at the Metropolitan next week will include "Fidelio," which will be revived on Friday evening under the direction of Gustav Mahler. The title rôle will be sung by Berta Morena and the cast will include Miss Alten and Messrs. Burrian, Goritz, Blass, Reiss, and Van Rooy.

"Tannhäuser" will be sung on Monday evening, when Miss Morena will be heard for the first time here as Elizabeth. The operas for the rest of the week will be "Mignon" on Wednesday, "Il Trovatore" on Thursday, "La Traviata" on Saturday afternoon, and "Marta" on Saturday evening.

Mr. Hertz will conduct the concert on Sunday evening. The soloists will be Mmes. Farrar and Kirkby-Lunn and Messrs. Burgstaller, Goritz, and Blass.

Tetrazzini's Notes to be Canned.

Following the example of other famous singers, Mme. Tetrazzini signed contracts yesterday to sing for a song record manufacturing company. Her voice will soon be reproduced in her favorite parts as are those of so many others.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

The bill for next Saturday night at the Manhattan Opera House has been changed. Instead of "Un Ballo in Maschera," which was announced, "La Navarraise" and "Pagliacci" will be sung.

Lisette Frederic, a young Roumanian violinist who has been a pupil of Joachim, will make her first New York appearance to-day at Keith & Proctor's Harlem Opera House.

"The Redemption" will be sung by the New Festival Choir of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine to-night.

BARNARD PRODUCES A CLASSIC PLAY

RECEIVED WITH ENTHUSIASM

Gestures and Elocution Sufficiently Graphic to Convey Meaning of Latin Text to Audience.

The Classical Club of Barnard College presented some scenes from Plautus's "Menaechmus" at the Brinckerhoff Theatre yesterday. The play was under the supervision of the Faculty of Classical Philology of Columbia and Barnard. Mrs. Helmina Jeidell, President of the club, delivered an address of welcome in Latin, which was followed by a short introductory speech by Prof. Charles Knapp, who has worked untiringly to make these plays a possibility. Miss Lilian Closson gave an outline in English of the play, which is presumably the original of the "Comedy of Errors."

The performance was marked by much enthusiasm and liveliness. The gestures, facial expression, and elocution were so excellent that even those of the audience who were not Latin scholars could catch the trend of the conversation and enjoy the performance. This was the cast:

Adulesceus Menaechmus II	Maria Young
Servus, Messenio	Anna Anthony
Cocus, Culindrus	Elizabetha Back
Meretrix, Erotium	Hilda Wood
Parasitus, Penticulus	Esther Hellin
Ancilla	Elisa Smith
Matrona	Josephine Dempsey
Adulesceus, Menaechmus I	Elizabetha Toms
Senex	Mildreda Kerner
Medicus	Maria Hufeland
Pedisequi:	Maria Crowell, Gladys Quinby, Alicia Grant.

Two perforances were given, afternoon and evening.

RUSSIAN PLAY AT DALY'S.

Mme. Komisarzhevsky in Girlish Mood as Heroine of "A Child of Nature."

In "A Child of Nature," a drama of Russian life produced by Mme. Komisarzhevsky at Daly's last night, the actress appeared in the rôle of Varya, a girl of unrestrained impulse, who, while promised in marriage to one suitor, finds more satisfaction in the attentions of another.

The play, by A. N. Ostrovsky, is rather a talkative affair—or so it, at any rate, appears to one unfamiliar with the language. But the audience, which was small, appeared to be amused.

This afternoon the actress will again be seen in Sudermann's "Battle of the Butterflies," the final novelty in bill for this week coming on Saturday night, when Gorky's "The Children of the Sun" will be given.

Bertha Kalich to Play Here.

Harrison Grey Fiske announced yesterday that Mme. Bertha Kalich will be seen in "Marta of the Lowlands" at the Garden Theatre, beginning on March 24. Mr. Fiske's original plans for Mme. Kalich's tour in this play did not include a New York engagement, but the success of the piece out of town has brought about the rearrangement of bookings so as to make the metropolitan run a possibility.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Paul Kester is attending rehearsals of Sothern's production of "Don Quixote" at the Lyric.

William H. Crane will deliver the principal address at the graduation exercises of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, to be held at the Empire Theatre to-morrow afternoon.

It was reported yesterday that Dr. H. S. Durant of Rochester, N. Y., is to marry Gladys Claire, now playing with William Courtleigh in "Peaches" at Keith & Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre.

A. W. Dingwall, manager of the Broadway Theatre, signed a contract yesterday for Frank McKee's production of the new opera by Victor Herbert are Glen Macdonugh, which will open the next theatrical season at the Broadway, following the engagement of "A Waltz Dream."

Williams and Walker will celebrate the sixteenth anniversary of their theatrical alliance with a special performance of "Bandanna Land" at the Majestic Theatre on Tuesday, March 31. Into this performance they will introduce songs and scenes from previous successes.

E. H. Sothern's season at the Lyric Theatre has been prolonged for another month. The repertoire for next week is: Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights, "Lord Dundreary"; for the rest of the week, "If I Were King." An extra matinee of "The Fool Hath Said There is no God," will be given on St. Patrick's day.

NEW JERSEY GIANT DEAD.

Newark Hotel Keeper Once Known as Largest Man in the State.

Thomas Miller Wells, once known as the biggest man in New Jersey, and the last of the family for whom Wellsville, England, was named, died yesterday in Newark of apoplexy. He was 81 years old. For thirty-five years he had been a hotel keeper in Newark. He was 6 feet 7 inches in height and weighed 364 pounds.

He went to Newark from this city, having formerly conducted a tavern and pleasure park on the site of the Plaza, Netherland, and Savoy hotels. He is survived by a daughter.

Gen. McAlpin's Wife Dies at St. Regis.

Mrs. Anne Brandreth McAlpin, wife of Gen. E. A. McAlpin, died at 1 o'clock yesterday at the Hotel St. Regis. Gen. McAlpin, who is President of the National League of Republican Clubs, is now in the West in the interest of the league. Mrs. McAlpin, who was a native of Ossining, was an active worker in prison-reform movements.

TWO NEW RECORDS AT N. Y. A. C. MEET

Smithson Reduces Time for 70-Yard Hurdles—McGrath Tops 56-Pound Weight Figures.

RECORD-BREAKING CROWD

Eight Thousand Wildly Enthusiastic Spectators Witness the Greatest Indoor Athletic Meet of Season.

Record-breaking performances marked the thirty-first annual indoor carnival of the New York Athletic Club at the Madison Square Garden last night. Never before in the history of indoor athletics has a greater crowd been drawn to a meeting than that which witnessed the stirring finishes and remarkable work of the leading athletes of America. The big building was packed from floor to roof with a wildly enthusiastic gathering of members of the Mercury Foot organization and their friends, who were frequently electrified and brought to their feet with frantic cheering by speed and endurance shown by the contestants. From an athletic standpoint it was replete with thrilling interest and a glowing tribute to the popularity of indoor athletic sports.

With a single exception the Garden was barren of any kind of decoration. The big Mercury Foot flags draped both ends of the building, with the American flag suspended above each. At the Madison Avenue end of the building the box which the delegates from the Athletic Club of Paris, Secretary Silas H. Jenkins, and Assistant Secretary A. Von der Ende, with a party of friends, occupied, was tastefully decorated with the colors of the United States and France, and attracted considerable attention.

Forrest Smithson, the crack New York Athletic Club hurdler, started the record-breaking, when in the third heat of the 70-yard hurdle handicap he ran the distance in 0:08 4-5, clearing each of the five hurdles in the neatest and cleverest possible manner. The best previous time was 0:09 1-5. The announcement of the record-breaking performance was greeted with prolonged cheering. In the final heat Smithson scored an easy victory. His time was 0:09.

Matt McGrath, another New York Athletic Club member, established new figures for throwing the 56-pound weight for height. McGrath's throw was 15 feet 7 inches, which supplanted James S. Mitchell's old record of 15 feet 6⅝ inches. Although he established a new record, he failed to secure a prize, owing to severe handicaps.

In the 600-yard special match race between Guy Haskins, the Pennsylvania and inetrcollegiate champion, and Harry L. Hillman, Jr., New York Athletic Club, the former took the lead for the first three laps, with both men running well within themselves. As the men rounded the turn in the last lap Hillman drew up on Haskins, and ten yards further was in the lead. The men came home at a terrific pace, with Hillman gradually increasing his lead. At the home stretch Hillman led by three yards, and, despite Haskins's determined effort to overtake the New York A. C. flier, the latter held his own, and won, amid a babel of applause, by two yards, in rather slow time.

The second special event was the 1,000-yard run, in which Melvin W. Sheppard and C. J. Bacon, Irish-American A. C., and T. S. White and C. Walther, New York A. C., ran. When Sheppard was introduced he was received with mingled cheers and hisses. Sheppard went out in front, attended by his clubmate, Bacon, the Mercury Foot pair close behin. In the third lap Walther closed up and challenged Sheppard, but the latter drew away and won by ten yards, looking over his shouler. The struggle for second place was a close one, Walther and Bacon finishing together, the judges deciding it a dead heat.

The one-mile walk, which furnished plenty of amusement to the big crowd of spectators, was won by A. Arnold, West Side Y. M. C. A., with 1 minute handicap, from Sam Liebgold, Pastime A. C., who was scratch.

Forrest Smithson, formerly of Portland, Ore., broke the world's indoor record for the 70-yard hurdles in the third heat of the event. Starting from scratch, Smithson quickly overcame the handicaps of his opponents and won by three yards in 8 4-5 seconds, clipping two-fifths of a second from the previous best figures. A. B. Shaw, the Dartmouth College crack, got a raw deal in the second heat. He started from the back mark, but D. Robbins of Yale, who had five feet, beat the pistol by two yards, and Shaw was beaten by two feet after a desperate effort to overtake the leader. Smithson evoked a storm of applause by his magnificent performance in the final heat. D. Robbins, who beat the pistol in the second, was set back a yard in the final for a false start. When the men got away, Smithson at once showed his superiority as a timber topper, and at the third hurdle led the field. He jumped clean and showed great speed between the hurdles. At the finish he was easily 5 yards ahead of Robbins, who was a foot in front of King. The summaries:

BROOKLYNS START SOUTH.

Manager Donovan and Players Sail for Jacksonville on Comanche.

The members of the Brooklyn Baseball Club left yesterday afternoon on the Clyde Line steamer Comanche for Jacksonville, Fla., where they will get into condition for the opening of the championship season. Preparatory to leaving the players met President Ebbetts and Manager Donovan at the club headquarters, Washington Park. Both Ritter and Pastorius signed contracts before departing. This leaves Stricklett and Wilhelm still unsigned.

There was quite a crowd of rooters at the dock to see the players off. The party consisted of Manager Donovan, Ritter, Pastorius, Bell, Jordan, Alperman, Hummel, Burch, Murch, Pattee, Maloney, Hunter, Bergen, Lewis, and Trainer Commerford. Besides these players several others are already in the South and others will go direct from their homes in the West by rail. On the arrival of the players at Jacksonville they will be put to work on the field of the South Atlantic League Club there. Hard work will be the order until March 31, when the team will break camp and start on the homeward journey, playing the following exhibition games:

April 1 and 2, Montgomery, Ala.; April 4, Birmingham; April 6 and 7, Atlanta; April 8 and 9, Nashville, Tenn.; April 10 and 11, Evansville, Ind. On April 12 they will reach home.

Washington Heights A. C. Bouts.

Andy Williams met Harry Stone in the main bout at the Washington Heights Athletic Club, 167th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, last night. For six rounds the two slugged away in relentless style, and at the expiration of the bout the crowd voted it a draw. Both were strong boys, and they made their punches tell. For three rounds Williams seemed to have a slight advantage. After that Stone reached his rival's body, and evened matters. The last round was particularly fast, and when the final gong clanged, both were tired and groggy. The semi-windup brought together Billy Reynolds and Sammy Poff. The result was also a draw. Young Hopkins made young Gibson quit in just one round in the opening essay of four rounds. Young Wagner did not have much trouble in winning from young Shaughnessy, and Tony Bender and Kid White drew after four spirited rounds.

AUTOISTS DISCUSS ALCOHOL AS FUEL

Great Future Ahead for Use in Commercial Wagons, Says Prof. Lucke.

TESTS WITH MOTOR TRUCK

E. R. Hewitt Tells Engineers of His Results with Gasoline and Alcohol in Same Engine—Officers Elected.

Prof. Charles Edward Lucke of the Columbia University Engineering Department, and Edward R. Hewitt were among the chief speakers yesterday at the annual meeting of the Mechanical Branch of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers. They both discussed the use of alcohol as an available fuel for internal combustion engines. Prof. Lucke, telling of the experiments he has made during the last year in the laboratory with stationary engines and those designed for motor vehicles, while Mr. Hewitt gave an interesting account of the practical tests he has made with alcohol in a motor truck for city use.

The vagaries of alcohol as a fuel were carefully explained, and Prof. Lucke showed that conditions sometimes developed to an amusing standpoint. One incident noted in some of his experiments was that on a two-cycle motor with crank case compressor, he found that the excess vapor which had not exploded with the first charge of the in-take escaped through the crank shaft and could be ignited.

Mr. Hewitt, whose experiments have been directed toward tests of alcohol for commercial motor wagons, stated that he had reecntly adapted an engine to the use of alcohol for a five-ton truck. With gasoline he obtained four and one-half miles to a gallon with a full load, while without any readjustment to the motor he only obtained two miles to the gallon with alcohol. On raising the compression, however, from 75 to 120 pounds, it was possible to obtain over five miles to the gallon. Mr. Hewitt pointed out that it was necessary in the latter case to place the carbureter as near the engine as possible in order to send the mixture into the cylinder at a temperature of not less than 72 degrees. In cold weather he was able to overcome the loss in the vaporization by surrounding the in-take pipes with the water jackets, which kept an even temperature for the vapor until discharged into the cylinder.

A. L. Riber of the Locomobile Committee was re-elected Chairman of the Branch and the other officers chosen for another year were:

Coler F. Clarkson, Secretary; Henry Souther, Metallurgist, and H. E. Coffin, (Thomas-Detroit,) Chairman of the Test Committee. Among those present were John A. Baumgardner, (Autocar,) A. N. Manross, (Corbin,) H. P. Maxim, (Electric Vehicle,) J. H. Becker, (Elmore,) John Wilkinson, (Franklin,) Charles Lohr, (Haynes,) E. R. Hewitt, (Hewitt,) H. G. Farr, (Knox,) E. F. Russell, (Locomobile,) Charles R. Greuter and V. N. Gunderson, (Northern,) George B. Dunham, (Olds,) Allen Loomis, (Packard,) L. H. Kittredge, (Peerless,) David Ferguson and Robert Jardine, (Royal,) Alden Sampson, 2d, (Sampson,) E. T. Birdsall, (Selden,) Henry Hess, (Stearns,) John G. Utz and F. P. Nehrbas, (Thomas,) F. D. Howe, (Waltham,) and C. D. Smith, (Winton.)

START OF BRIARCLIFF RACE.

Cars Will Be Sent Away at 4:45 A. M.—Six New Entries Assured.

The Briarcliff Cup race for stock cars in Westchester County, on April 24, will be started from Briarcliff Manor at 4:45 o'clock in the morning. This was definitely decided yesterday at the meeting of the Manufacturers' Committee, held in the Bryant Park Building, Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street. Chairman Robert Lee Morrell, who returned from Ormond on Monday presided. The distance of the race by miles or a time limitation by hours will be determined at a future meeting. General Passenger Agent Vosberg of the New York Central Railroad was present, and stated that for one month prior to the event he would have extra flagmen placed at the four points on the thirty-mile course, where the cars will cross the railroad tracks from daylight until 7 P. M. each day. Arrangements were also completed for special trains from this city, which will arrive at Briarcliff Manor before 4:30 o'clock on the morning of the contest. The grand stand privileges were sold outright to a contracting firm, and the money so obtained, with the entry fees, will insure the financial success of the race.

Mr. Morrell stated that he had received assurances of six additional entries, which will be formally made before April 1, the time for the closing of the lists. Twenty-four cars will start in the long road race.

Two More Autos for Savannah Races.

Two more cars have been entered for the Savannah stock car races on March 18 and 19, a Stearns four-cylinder machine in the 360-mile event, making the eighth car for that contest, and an Apperson high-powered car for the heavy-weight event at 180 miles. This brings the total list of entries up to nineteen. It was said yesterday that before the time for making entries closes, Saturday night, the list will be considerably over twenty. It is expected that a Studebaker, Simplex, and Renault will be entered for the big stock car race of 360 miles

Lively Scraps at Brown's.

The star bout at Brown's Gymnasium, West Twenty-third Street, last night brought together Eddie Wallace and Billy Barrett. The contest was for six rounds, and while it was not fast, it interested the large crowd of members present. The result was a draw. Joe Coster and Willie Schumacher contributed a lively exhibition for six rounds. Both come under the caption of clever, scientific boxers, and each period was full of action. Schumacher was best at long range, but at close quarters Coster had the call. It was an even affair. Joe White sailed after Burt Collyer like a demon for two rounds, and in the third reached his man with a crushing right to the jaw. Collyer went down and out. Joe Gordon had no trouble in outpointing Al Allen in a hurricane six-round mill, while Frank Burns had to be content with a draw in his scrap with Clarence Burnes.

Men to Meet Hackenschmidt.

W. W. Wittig, who will manage George Hackenschmidt's wrestling tour in this country, is experiencing considerable trouble just now finding suitable contestants for the "Russian Lion's" reappearance in America, which takes place at the Grand Central Palace next Monday night. Alex Swansen, the Swede, and recognized as one of the cleverest catch-as-catch-can experts in the world at his weight, and August Faust, a well-known local Graeco-Roman grappler, have been suggested as probable opponents. Mr. Wittig is in communication with both men, and expects to arrange a match to-day.

Cassignol Loses a Game.

There was a decided difference in the form displayed by F. Cassignol, the French billiard champion, against George F. Slosson at the latter's academy last night, as compared with the fine effort of the Frenchman on Monday. Cassignol seemed to be unable to control the ivories, his average being only 13 1-17. Slosson was not at his best either, but his aim was more consistent, and he took advantage of most of his opportunities. Slosson was in a good position to make a much higher run than 74 in the sixth inning, but he missed a hard masse shot by a hair. This was the sixth game between the pair. Slosson has won five games and Cassignol one.

Leidig and Baldridge Win with Cue.

Two games were decided last night in the three-cushion billiard tournament at Maurice Daly's Academy. P. Leidig (scratch) played G. Martin, (scratch,) and after fifty innings won, 25 to 8. Leidig's highest run was 4 and Martin's 3. W. Baldridge (3) and L. Oblatt (scratch) furnished a fine exhibition, although it lasted seventy-five innings. Baldridge was the winner, 25 to 28. Baldridge had a high run of 4, against his opponent's 5. To-night S. Dittman (5) will endeavor to defeat both J. Harris (5) and L. Oblat, (scratch.)

CRESCENT WINS AGAIN.

Brooklyn Hockey Team Finishes Season Without Losing a Game.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn had won the championship of the Amateur Hockey League, the meeting of the "New Moon" representatives in their last game of the season with the last year champion St. Nicholas team drew one of the largest and most enthusiastic crowds of the season at the St. Nicholas Rink last night. After winning seven straight games and with no defeats charged against them it was not expected that St. Nicholas could show such a reversal of form as to defeat the newly-made champions by overcoming its previous 7 to 3 beating, but while last year's champions did not succeed they were responsible for the best and fastest played game of the campaign, and when the last whistle blew they were beaten by only one goal, the score being 6 to 5 in favor of the Crescents.

It was a hurricane game from start to finish. The magnificent team work of the Crescents was the only thing that saved them from defeat. At times even the combination play of the Brooklyn men was completely paralyzed by the vigorous onslaught of the St. Nicholas men, who took desperate chances to gain their point. The playing was rough, but not intentionally so, the only man of the fourteen engaged in the game who was punished for a willful violation of the playing rules being Putman, who St. Nicholas gave the first chance to play at rover. He was ordered off the ice in the second half for deliberate tripping immediately after making a rather sensational goal, and a short time afterward he was banished again for hitting Shirreff.

Summary:

Crescent A. C., 6.	Position.	St. Nicholas, 5.
Laing	Goal	Hayward
O'Flynn	Point	Carruthers
Wall	Cover Point	Souther
Shirreff	Rover	Putnam
Liffiton	Centre	Gordon
Kennedy	Right wing	Wilder

Goals—First Half—Liffiton, (2,) Dobby, Shirreff, Kennedy, Gordon, Thompson, Southern. Second Half—Liffiton, Souther, Putnam.. Referreff, Kennedy, Gordon, Thompson, Souther. Assistant Referee—J. A. Fenwick, New York Athletic Club. Goal umpires—Bert White, New York Athletic Club; Ben Phillips, Hockey Club of New York. Time of game—Twenty-minute halves.

HENDRICKSON WINS CUP.

Long Island City Gunner Makes Best Total for Stone Trophy.

John H. Hendrickson of Long Island City, who won the amateur championship of America at the traps of the New York Athletic Club at Travers Island two years ago, annexed the handsome silver cup presented by Fred J. Stone to his string of important victories at the third competition for the prize shot at the Bergen Beach Gun Club grounds yesterday. Under the conditions of the shoot the victor must have the greatest total of three competitions at fifty targets each, and while Lowell M. Palmer, Jr., of the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn led off with a total of forty-six in the first shoot, he was ultimately beaten by Mr. Hendrickson, who made a total of forty-six in the second and forty-three yesterday, a total of eighty-nine.

A special match was shot immediately after the principal event between J. H. Hendrickson and the runner-up, L. M. Palmer, Jr., Palmer beating the Stone trophy victor by a score of forty-four to forty-one out of a possible fifty targets. Two setter puppies of high breeding, presented by E. W. Reynolds, were the cause of a spirited competition, R. B. Craufurd of the Jersey City Gun Club taking his pick after a shoot-off with W. F. Simpson of New York, while the second puppy went to Dr. F. Hunter.

HEALTH RULE IN SCHOOLS.

Boys Competing in Elementary Meets Must Be Examined by Their Doctor.

In the future every youngster desiring to compete in any athletic meet under the auspices of the Public Schools' Athletic League will be compelled to produce a certificate from his physician to the effect that he is physically fit to participate. Otherwise his entry will be rejected. This was decided on yesterday afternoon at a special meeting of the Elementary Games Committee, held in the Board of Education Building.

The rule was offered by Gen. Wingate, President of the league, and applies directly to any boy attending the elementary schools. It is likely that a similar rule will be adopted in regard to the High Schools.

The new rule is the result of a hue and cry raised recently by some of the detractors of the league against the "training-down" evil, which seems to have gained a strong foothold among the grammar school boys. It was said that in their enthusiasm to become excellent athletes many of the boys indulged in too much training to get to the required weight at the expense of their undeveloped bodies. Gen. Wingate now believes that the new order will eliminate all possibility of any of the boys endangering their health, or at any rate pave the way for intelligent and judicious methods in training.

There will be an elementary school baseball tournament for the championship of the Public Schools Athletic League again this this year, and all schools desiring to participate must have their entries with Mr. Haug no later than April 1, when a schedule will be drawn up.

Goldman Wins at Pool.

In the second game in the pool tournament at John T. Doyle's Billiard Academy, Broadway and Forty-second Street, last night, H. Goldman did not have much trouble in defeating W. Ghent. The contest was a fast one, being finished in eight innings. The final score was: Goldman, 50; Ghent, 6. Goldman's highest run was 24, and Ghent's 2. Ex-Jockey Tod Sloan and C. Perrin will play to-night. The score:

Goldman—0 2 1 9 2 24 0 12. Total, 50; high run, 24; scratches, 0.
Ghent—0 1 2 0 2 0 1 0. Total, 6; high run, 2; scratches, 1.

De Witt Clinton Shot-Putter Ill.

Stanley Samuel, the champion shotputter of De Witt Clinton High School, is seriously ill in Mount Sinai Hospital. Some few weeks ago he was operated on for appendicitis. While convalescing he was attacked with typhoid fever, and, although very low, the physicians say he will probably recover, unless complications set in. Samuel, in addition to being the best shotputter in the school, was the leading punter on last year's high schools' football teams.

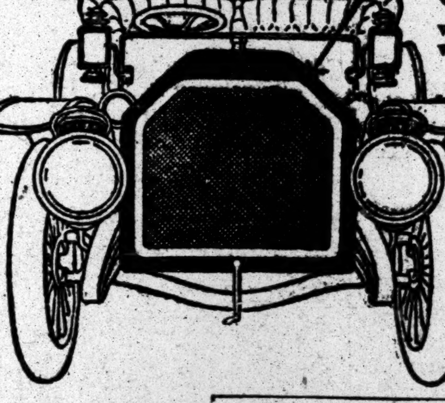
The Stearns
Best of the World
The White Lined Radiator Is Still a Stearns Feature.



¶ As heretofore it represents progressiveness towards a perfect type—a type which stands for no makeshifts nor substitutes of the best materials and appliances known to motoring.

¶ A Stearns rule is the prompt adoption of every new and tested improvement, the sole aim being always to simplify rather than multiply parts.

¶ The new Stearns is a silent car, largely owing to its simplicity of construction and the universal use of D. W. F. imported ball bearings.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

LUDWIG KONDELKA.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Ludwig Kondelka, buttons, show liabilities of $2,347, and assets of $1,228, consisting of stock and machinery.

ALBERT ROTHERMEL.—A petition in bankruptcy was yesterday filed against Albert Rothermel, builder, 869 Whitlock Avenue, by Theodore T. Chabot, $194; Thomas A. Cryan, $5, and North Brothers, $481. Preferential payments are alleged as an act of bankruptcy.

GEORGE P. BUTTERLY.—George P. Butterly of 758 West End Avenue, formerly of the George P. Butterly Company, real estate, 949 Broadway, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $3,546 and no assets. The principal creditors are Thomas B. Ackers, $1,080, and the H. H. Fuller Realty Company, $1,193.

ISADOR FEINBERG.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against Isador Feinberg, clothing, 319 Canal Street, by Abraham L. Yavelow, $900; Max Yavelow, $600, and Milton M. Sittenfield, $100. It is charged that the alleged bankrupt has admitted in writing his inability to pay his debts, and his willingness to be declared a bankrupt. He started in business in January, 1905.

COOPER BROTHERS.—Justice Fitzgerald of the Supreme Court has appointed the Royal Bank temporary receiver for Cooper Brothers, clothing manufacturers, 147 Wooster Street, in a suit brought by David Cooper against Jacob B. Cooper for a dissolution of partnership. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against the firm on July 12 last, and they subsequently settled at 25 cents on the dollar. Their liabilities are reported to be $8,000. The assets consist of stock, outstanding accounts, and an interest in leasehold premises, 117 to 123 East 125th Street.

Out of Town.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—H. Gilbert Dill and Lloyd Dill, contractors, to-day filed in the District Supreme Court a petition in voluntary bankruptcy, with liabilities of $109,890, mostly unsecured, and assets estimated at $91,805, of which $75,000 is in open accounts.

CHICAGO, March 10.—The Shourds-Adcock-Teufel Company, a large jewelry firm, was declared bankrupt yesterday, and Judge Landis appointed the American Trust and Savings Bank as receiver. The concern's assets are said to be $93,000 and its liabilities $100,000.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Light, Featureless Trade—Closes at 6 to 9 Points Net Decline.

Cotton was easier yesterday, with prices lower. The close was barely steady at a net decline of 6@9 points. Sales were estimated at 125,000 bales.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 2 points. Receipts continued light, and spot news from the Eastern belt was conflicting. Bagging manufacturers say that their season is about a month late, but dispatches from the Southwest suggest better progress with new crop preparations and an increased area. There are further reports of cotton coming here for May delivery, providing samples received meet the requirements of the Inspection Bureau.

The range of contract prices in the local market yesterday was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Monday's Close.
March	10.66	10.60	10.57@10.59	10.63
April	..	..	10.60@10.63	10.67
May	10.77	10.65	10.68	10.75
June	..	..	10.52@10.54	10.61
July	10.52	10.41	10.42@10.43	10.51
August	10.35	10.30	10.25@10.27	10.32
October	9.96	9.90	9.90@ 9.71	9.96
December	9.96	9.94	9.92@ 9.93	9.98

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, with prices 5 points lower at 11.50 for middling upland and 11.75 for middling Gulf. Sales, nil.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Mobile—Quiet, unchanged at 11⅛c; sales, 50 bales. Savannah—Quiet, unchanged, at 11c; sales, 739 bales. Norfolk—Dull, ⅛c lower at 11⅝c; sales, 127 bales. Augusta—Quiet, unchanged at 11 7-16c; sales, 760 bales. Little Rock—Quiet, unchanged at 10 13-16c; sales, nil. Galveston—Quiet, unchanged at 11⅜c; sales, 150 bales. New Orleans—Firm, unchanged at 11⅛c; sales, 2,375 bales. Houston—Steady, unchanged at 11¼c; sales, 415 bales.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

Copper metal, which has been reduced several successive times within the past fortnight, was moved up ⅛c per pound in the asking price for all grades at the New York Metal Exchange yesterday, making lake 12⅜@12⅝c, electrolytic 12¼@12½c, and castings 12⅛@12⅜c.

In the London market prices declined 2s 6d from the last quotations of Monday for both spot and future delivery, leaving the former at £57 12s 6d per ton and the latter at £58 2s 6d. Pig tin closed weak at a recession of 15s for spot and 5s for futures, at £134 and £131 10s respectively. Lead and spelter were unchanged at £13 17s 6d and £20 17s 6d. Iron warrants were easy at 50s 3d for standard foundry and 51s 6d for Middlesboro.

The closing bid and asked prices of copper and other metals, for spot delivery, on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compared as follows with those of the previous day:

	Tuesday.		Monday.
	Bid.	Asked.	Bid.	Asked.
Lake	12.37½	12.62½	12.37½	12.50
Electrolytic	12.25	12.50	12.25	12.37½

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Heavy on Profit Taking —Call Money Rates, 2@1¾ Per Cent.

BANKS RETURNING DEPOSITS

Over $8,000,000 Paid In Since Friday—Wheat Prices Decline Again.

After five consecutive days of advancing prices the stock market was called upon yesterday to digest a considerable volume of profit taking. It passed through this ordeal, upon the whole, with much success, for at the close of the day, while the range of prices was somewhat under that at the end of business on Monday, the average loss was insignificant. With realizing sales under way almost constantly from the opening to the close of business the movement of prices was bound to be irregular. In the forenoon part of the session their irregularity was very marked and at times the market appeared to be on the verge of a sustained decline, but the support accorded to the Steel shares through this interval, as well as at other critical moments in the day, was so pronounced as to work strongly upon sentiment and eventually to bring the list through with the small recessions noted. The trading was almost exclusively professional. The small cliques at work in various issues provided a good part of the buying power which supported the general market, while the larger interests, which have apparently selected the Steel stocks for a pivot in the present movement, conducted their operations upon an even larger and more effective scale. At bottom the movement itself is, of course, based upon belief, held by those at work in the market, in the shadowy evidences of business improvement which are coming to hand from day to day. They are obviously and necessarily making use of a large and stubborn short interest to assist their plans in their initial stages, but for eventual success they must depend upon visible proof of better trade conditions. Market movements of this kind are entirely familiar in Wall Street, and have their place in the financial scheme, but the machinery should at all times be kept in mind. There was little or no news of immediate interest to markets, but the void in this respect was filled by discussion of old topics. The most was made of reopenings of manufacturing plants here and there through the country, and of an advance in the price of copper metal, while such incidents as the reduction in time in New England cotton mills and the poor condition of the bituminous coal trade were swiftly passed over.

Payments which the banks have been making to the Government in answer to the call for the return of United States deposits resulted yesterday in a loss by the local institutions of $7,238,000 to the Sub-Treasury, bringing the total loss since Friday last up to $8,141,000. Money rates were practically unaffected by these withdrawals, however, and even the more active stock markets of the last few days seem to have made little difference with either time or call quotations. European markets were little changed, although some unsettlement was reported from Paris. In response to the Government figures on wheat still in farmers' hands grain prices on produce markets fell sharply during the course of the day, the losses amounting to 2 cents or more a bushel.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Sentiment became very bearish yesterday, and after midday there was very little demand from any quarter, although bulls at times tried to rally the market with reports of Hessian fly damage in the Southwest. Liverpool early in the day was 1d lower, but rallied on German buying of Argentine cargoes, and closed only ¼d net lower. Slight declines occurred at Paris and Berlin, while Budapest was ⅝c higher on unseasonable weather and decreasing stocks in Hungary. Only 58,000 bushels of wheat and flour were shipped from the seaboard. No actual export business was reported. Cash wheat in New York closed weak, as follows: No. 2 red, 95⅝c, elevator, and $1.00½, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.13¾, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.10¾, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—Prices made new high records for the crop yesterday on small car lot estimates for Wednesday, light interior receipts, and an advance of ¼ to 1d at Liverpool. In the late afternoon the market eased off with wheat. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted at 73c, elevator, and 66c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 66½c, and No. 2 yellow, 66½c, free on board, afloat.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Wider Market with Ascending Scale of Prices in the Curb Market.

"RIGHTS" SHORTS PINCHED

Subscription Privileges to Nevada Consolidated Bond Issue Sent Up from 3 to 15—Coppers Strong.

Curb stocks found a wider market yesterday, and the course of prices was upward with few exceptions. Interest in the market centred in the rights to the new $3,000,000 bond issue of the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company, in which a considerable short interest was forced to climb to cover. The rights have been traded in in a desultory way since the bond issue was announced. After an opening at 3 yesterday they rose to 15 and sold as low as 1½. The close after reported transactions of 47,000 shares was at 10. Cumberland-Ely was again active yesterday, and sold 10,100 shares from 7⅛ up to 7⅞, closing at 7⅝. Standard Oil sold 41 shares up to 515.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—Prices as a rule closed lower, but in no cases were there any breaks of importance—simply a sagging movement. The selling of Lehigh Valley again attracted some attention, but the stock was well taken at a recession of only half a point from the top price. Cambria Steel also reflected the effect of profit-taking sales.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Speculative Sentiment Uncertain.

It is very good speculative logic to assert that after an advance of several points in the general list, covering a period of three or four days and following a period of extreme apathy, a reaction is probable. That, at least, was the argument offered yesterday by those who would construe the reaction during a part of the session into the preliminary evidence of a more substantial decline. It is not difficult to impress on the average trader the possible accuracy of such argument and assuming that he has some profit, he is willing to convert it into cash. Part of the reaction, traders on the floor say, was due to this kind of selling and to the gossip which had for its burden the certainty of a reaction equivalent to the advance. Brokers were noncommittal for the most part. Their first thought just now is not commissions, but rather the possibility of profit for their customers. It is their desire to eliminate the existing feeling of depression, and jumping traders in and out of the market simply serves to make them more nervous than confident. It would not be accurate to assert that sentiment as reflected yesterday in the various offices throughout the district was any less hopeful than on the preceding day, but undoubtedly the reactionary gossip had a tendency to limit its effectiveness.

Running Into Good Times.

No one is debarred from an expression of opinion regarding the stock market, but as a matter of fact, the ordinary opinion expressed off-hand is about the least consequential piece of information any one could obtain. After all, the keen professional trader comes as close as any one else to analyzing the situation and pointing out the factors that may make or mar a market. One operator of this class who limited his activity to his own office yesterday expressed this view for the benefit of his friends who were listening: "It is perfectly natural to include the present betterment in the market in that list of false starts which have been made many times in the last two months, and to assume that it is a certainty that the gain which has been made will be lost quickly with several points to boot. A month or so ago, I would have been disposed to accept that view, and possibly it is right to-day. But I believe that there are certain facts which must be taken into consideration. First of all, we are getting further away from the panic, and while the aftermath of depression is still with us, we are not running toward bad times; we are running toward good times, and the question only is how far distant such good times are. The political situation is a bugaboo, but any one who knows the stock market will realize that it is not at the moment of facing such problems that weakness develops. Rather have they been discounted long before."

Buying Speculative Bonds.

Ordinarily, it might be assumed that the securities of companies in the hands of a receiver would not be very attractive to anybody; but there is a class of speculators or investors who pick up such securities, presumably with the intention of making money out of them. For example, there were inquiries yesterday for more than $200,000, face value, of the bonds of a certain road which is now in the hands of receivers, and, so far as could be learned, the prospective purchaser was not a dealer or an institution of any kind, but an individual, whose order was placed with a free-lance bond man. The bonds in question had sold a year or so ago above 80, and, in fact, during their existence have been very near par. The market now is approximately 25 to 35. The would-be purchaser was willing to pay 30, or possibly more, for the bonds, but only obtained a very small lot. Undoubtedly, it can only be his intention to hold these bonds until a reorganization is affected or until some plan is adopted whereby the bonds will have a definite value. There is no chance of these securities being reorganized out of existence, and if he is willing to wait he will undoubtedly make a substantial profit. Nevertheless, if the average investor were offered such a security by a bond house he would be likely to have a queer opinion of their conservatism.

Retail Business Improving.

Keen interest is manifested in the news from the business world, but there is this difference in the attitude of the ordinary speculator at the moment and a little while ago. Whereas nowadays he is willing to emphasize the good report, or that part of the report which is good, a month or so ago it was the adverse element in the situation that attracted his attention most. This mental change is suggestive of an improvement in sentiment, and those who note it hope that it means that the improvement is permanent. There are many men in business who are more or less constant frequenters of brokerage offices, men who do not take the position that their business must go to the bow-wows because they take an interest in the market for securities. Many of these men are wholesalers, and they report an improvement in their own business, but more particularly in retail lines. They say that this improvement is sufficiently large to be intrusive, and cannot be ignored. They give varying figures as to their ideas, and some go so far as to say that some of their retail customers report an improvement of 100 per cent. over the business done six weeks ago. Possibly this is an exceptional case, but there is a great deal of talk of this kind, and it goes without saying that it is helpful.

Time Money Demand Better.

Better inquiry for time money was reported yesterday, although the money brokers are not losing weight because of their activities or the arduous nature of their work. Simply that there is not a very heavy borrowing demand, however, does not mean that the average money broker is taking things easy. His business is of such a character that it behooves him to keep in constant touch with his clients as well as with his banker friends, while not neglecting the market outlook itself. Market developments naturally have an influence on the business of the money broker, but it does not follow always that the development of activity such as we have had for a day or so is sufficient to make business good right at the start, nor does it continue in exact proportion with the total transactions of the day. A professional market means a limited amount of borrowing, limited to the quarters where the active agents in the market make their headquarters, while the majority of the brokerage houses are doing very little. There seems to be a feeling, however, among brokers that it does not do to defer indefinitely the securing of cheap time money simply because Washington advices insist that the Aldrich bill will become a law.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee was very quiet yesterday, sales for the day being reported of only 2,750 bags. The opening was unchanged to 5 points lower, and the market closed dull, net unchanged to 10 points lower. European cables indicated featureless markets abroad, also with Havre unchanged and Hamburg ¼ to ½ pfg. lower. Neither of the Brazilian markets reported any change, and receipts were about the same as recently, with the two ports getting 25,000 bags, against 67,000 last year and 17,000 two years ago. Spot coffee was steady, on the basis of 6 3-16@6¼ for Rio No. 7.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Anson R. Flower has gone to San Antonio, Texas, for about three weeks.

The Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company met yesterday, but transacted only routine business.

W. H. Goadby, head of the firm of W. H. Goadby & Co., will sail for Europe to-day, to be gone for two months.

The preferred and common stocks of the Corn Products Company have been stricken from the Stock Exchange list.

It is reported that $8,000 has been bid for a New York Cotton Exchange membership. This is $300 better than the previous sale.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, March 10.—Money was in good demand on the market to-day, but the fortnightly loans for the settlement were arranged on easy terms. Discounts were quiet.

The American was the brightest section on the Stock Exchange. Further substantial gains were recorded. The increasing confidence apparent in Wall Street induced covering operations here, and prices went over parity in the forenoon. They were assisted by fair Continental buying. Later the best prices were not maintained because of the irregular New York opening, which caused some erratic fluctuations. Easier carry-over rates put dealers in good humor, and with a light investment demand and fair Continental buying of foreigners and gilt-edged securities the market closed firm. Copper shares and Kaffirs, after showing early strength, finished easier.

Bar silver steady, 25½d per ounce.

Money, 3¼@3½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills was 3⅛@3 3-16 per cent.; for three months' bills, 3 per cent.

PARIS, March 10.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened firm, but became uncertain toward the close.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 62½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 18½c for checks.

BERLIN, March 10.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was inactive. Prices generally were firm on the advices from New York.

UNITED STATES RUBBER COMPANY
Collateral Funding Five Per Cent. Gold Notes
Due September 15, 1909.

Coupon Notes in denomination of $5,000 each. Redeemable at par on any interest payment date. Interest payable March 15 and September 15.

These Notes are issued to refund a like amount of notes maturing March 15, 1908, and are secured by the deposit with the Trustee of notes of the subsidiary companies aggregating $12,000,000. The Trust Agreement provides that the United States Rubber Company shall not create any mortgage debt while these notes remain outstanding and that the net cash assets shall at no time be of less value than $15,000,000 over and above all indebtedness, except the Funding Notes.

The Treasurer of the Company states that "as of December 31, 1907, the net cash assets of the United States Rubber and subsidiary companies, including its proportion of the net cash assets of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company, were $24,296,000, over all liabilities, other than the Funding Notes.

"The net earnings of the United States Rubber Company for the year ending March 31, 1907, over all interest charges were $4,590,382, including only $689,308 of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company's profits of $2,004,484. For the nine months ending December 31, 1907, the net earnings of the United States Rubber Company and its proportion of the net earnings of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company were over $4,000,000, after the payment of all interest charges."

WE OFFER THE ABOVE NOTES FOR SUBSCRIPTION AT 97¼ AND INTEREST, TO YIELD 7% ON THE INVESTMENT. SO FAR AS POSSIBLE HOLDERS OF THE OUTSTANDING FUNDING NOTES MATURING MARCH 15 WILL BE GIVEN THE PREFERENTIAL OPPORTUNITY OF SUBSCRIBING TO THE NEW NOTES.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Broadway Corner Sold on the Heights—Adams Express Company Buys Lower Seventh Avenue Property—Other Dealings.

Hall J. How & Co. have sold for Samuel Kempner the lot at the southeast corner of Broadway and 179th Street, and for Robert McGarrity the three adjoining Broadway lots. The buyers are Fredenburg & Lounsbury.

The northeast corner of Broadway and 144th Street was transferred yesterday by Adolph Lewisohn to Ella M. Schmitt, who reconveyed the property to the George A. Fisher Company for a nominal consideration over a mortgage of $104,000.

Adams Express Company Buys.

The Adams Express Company is the real buyer of the southeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street, 100 by 117.7. The parcels which make up this plot were sold by the various owners several months ago and were transferred to the City Real Estate Company. In the absence of President Weir nobody at the offices of the Adams Express Company would say yesterday just what will be done with the property, although there was an evident disposition to discredit the report that the company will erect a large office building on the site, preparatory to abandoning its buildings on lower Broadway. The company also owns 29 to 35 Seventh Avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets.

Deal Near P. R. R. Station.

The Strange & Slawson Company and the Atlantic Realty Company have sold 433 and 435 Seventh Avenue, two five-story buildings, on plot 49.4 by 100, and 168 West Thirty-fourth Street, 29 by 24, the two parcels forming an "L" around the southeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

The Broadway Theatre Deal.

The Broadway Theatre property at the southwest corner of Forty-first Street and Broadway, extending to Seventh Avenue, together with adjoining property on Seventh Avenue, has been deeded by the Countess Zborowski of London to the 1,449 Broadway Company for a consideration of $1,325,000, subject to a mortgage of $1,250,000 at 4 per cent. The 1,449 Broadway Company has executed a lease of the property to Felix Isman of Philadelphia for 105 years at a graduated annual rental, beginning at $55,000 and increasing to $80,000 at the end of the term. Mr. Isman will make some alterations and in a few years will erect a skyscraper on the site.

West Side Sales and Leases.

G. Freedman has sold for Niels D. W. Jorgensen to L. L. Crevanney 48 West Ninety-eighth Street, a five-story double flat, on lot 25 by 100.11. Mr. Crevanney gives in part payment property, 50 by 100, on Whitney Place, at Yorktown Heights, Westchester County.

Albert B. Ashcroft has sold for N. L. & L. Ottinger to E. C. Bingham 69 West Ninety-seventh Street, a five-story flat, on plot 35.6 by 100.11.

Mrs. Joseph B. Hughes has sold 139 West Eighty-sixth Street, a four-story dwelling on lot 23 by 100.8.

De Selding Brothers have leased the dwelling 65 West Seventy-third Street to Ericsson F. Bushnell for 3½ years.

Sheldon & Becker have leased for Henry J. Ryan to the Borough Express Company for a term of years part of the store at the corner of Broadway and Seventy-fourth Street.

Broadway Partition Suit.

Partition proceedings have been begun by Mason Carnes against Lewis B. Brown and others involving the property at the southeast corner of Broadway and Fourth Street, 45.4 by 273.5 and irregular, extending to Lafayette Street.

East 71st Street House Sold.

Post & Reese have sold for George P. Messervy 161 East Seventy-first Street, a three-story stone-front dwelling on lot 15 by 100.

Plans have been filed for enlarging and remodeling the four-story dwelling at 19 East Seventy-third Street, owned by Mrs. N. F. Palmer. The house is to have a new façade of marble and limestone of Colonial design, with a mansard roof of ornamental copper. The improvements will cost $40,000.

Upper Eighth Avenue Purchase.

Max Bernstein has sold 2,687 Eighth Avenue, a five-story flat on lot 25.6 by 100, adjoining the southwest corner of 143d Street.

J. Herzog and J. J. Pittman have sold for Mrs. Hannah J. Frankel to E. Smith 5 East 135th Street, a five-story double flat, with stores, on lot 25 by 99.11.

George Schaefer, in conjunction with Charles J. Deane, has leased the store at the northeast corner of 135th Street and Lenox Avenue for Charles Meyer to Oscar Schien for ten years.

Simon & Harris have moved their offices to 67 and 69 West 125th Street.

The Harlem Property Owners' Association will meet to-morow evening in the Twelfth Ward Bank Building, 147 East 125th Street.

Leases in 42d St. District.

Walter J. Salomon has leased, in the Bristol Building, 500 Fifth Avenue, a store to Sol J. Baum, and offices to T. J. & M. J. Carmack and Edmund Schaeffer & Co.; also, in the Central Building, 25 West Forty-second Street, offices to George E. Castello, Gertrude Coles Raetze and Hedman & Schoen; also, in the Unity Building, 101 West Forty-second Street, offices to Sigmond Berman and Nathan & Co.; also, in the Manhattan Building, 825 Sixth Avenue, a store to John Loforte; also, in the Thoroughfare Building, Fifty-seventh to Fifty-eighth Street, Broadway and Eighth Avenue, a store to Antonio Consalve, and offices to the Loring Auto Appliance Company and the Steiner-Roshach Sugar Holder Company.

Finney & Mathews have leased for the American Savings Bank to the Cohan & Harris Publishing Company the second and third lofts in 115 West Forty-second Street for a term of years; also, for Frank Cassidy to Donalry Brothers, a studio 229 West Forty-second Street.

Meeting of Dyckman Tract Owners.

The Dyckman Taxpayers' Association will met this evening at 8 o'clock at the uptown office of John N. Golding, at 547 Fifth Avenue, corner of Forty-fifth Street. The following topics will come up for discussion: The True Consideration bill introduced by Senator Saxe, the bill to amend the Elsberg law in order to allow private capital to build subways, the bill introduced at the request of Controller Metz regarding the city debt limit, assessed valuations for 1908 in the Dyckman tract, the franchise for a trolley line across new 207th Street Bridge, the bulkheading of the Sherman Creek basin and the Harlem River, the Health Department order to fence in vacant property, and the paving of streets.

The Board of Governors of the Real Estate Board of Brokers adopted a resolution yesterday expressing the disapproval of that organization of the Saxe bill providing for the stating of the true consideration in deeds.

Deal for Second Street Properties.

Hugo Cohn has sold for Harry Sturtz to a client the two six-story tenements 197 and 199 Second Street, on plot 50 by 105, adjoining the southeast corner of Avenue B.

Corner Sold on Bathgate Avenue.

Clement H. Smith has sold the southeast corner of Bathgate Avenue and 188th Street, a plot 100 by 90.

Clement H. Smith has also sold for a Mrs. Curry 609 Oak Tree Place, a detached frame dwelling on lot 29 by 102.

E. Kapelsohn has bought the three-story dwelling 1,064 Morris Avenue. He will occupy the house.

J. Herzog has sold in conjunction with J. J. Pittman the two two-family houses, each 25 by 100, on the north side of Thirteenth Street 58 feet east of Avenue D, Unionport, for E. Smith to Mrs. Hannah J. Frankel.

Edward Muller has sold 1,049 Forest Avenue, a five-story flat on plot 37 by 87, between 165th and 166th Streets.

Good Demand in Mount Vernon.

STEINWAY TUNNEL PURCHASE BLOCKED

Public Service Board Hasn't the Power to Buy It and City Hasn't the Money.

ONE LOOPHOLE IN SIGHT

Belmont Company Might Secure New Franchise if City Would Drop Suits Against It.

George S. Coleman, counsel for the Public Service Commission, yesterday advised the board that it has no power to purchase the Steinway tunnel on behalf of the city. This decision ended, so far as the commission is concerned, the negotiations looking to the purchase and early operation of the tunnel, for the opening of which the people of Queens Borough are clamoring.

All that can now be done, it is said, in the matter of the purchase of the tunnel by the city is for the Interborough Company, which owns the property, to appeal to the Board of Estimate. While it is probably within the power of that body to authorize the purchase, it is regarded as improbable that it will do so, owing to the present state of the city's finances. In that event the opening of the tunnel will be as far off as ever.

In his opinion Mr. Coleman says in part:

> I am of opinion that this proposition is one for the decision, in the first instance, of the city authorities which have to do with the expenditure of public money. If the city authorities favor the proposition, the matter may later come before this commission for its approval under the provisions of the Public Service Commissions law or for its aid and co-operation in the carrying out of the same under the provisions of the Rapid Transit act, but this latter act, in its present form, gives to the commission no powers which would allow the purchase of an existing railroad or tunnel with public money.

A delegation of Queens business men called on Chairman Willcox of the commission yesterday, having previously visited the Mayor, to urge the purchase of the tunnel. Mr. Willcox told the delegation that it was not within the power of the commission to initiate proceedings for the purchase of the tunnel. The committee said that its members had been informed by the Mayor that the matter was one in which it was distinctly the province of the commission to take the initiative, but that the desirability of the purchase depended on its price and the amount of money the city had to spend for transit facilities.

The Steinway tunnel was built under a franchise, which, just before the work was completed, was attacked by the city authorities, who alleged that the franchise had expired. The case is now before the Appellate Division.

With the tunnel complete and almost ready for operation, it is impossible for the company to begin operation under a doubtful franchise, and as it appears to be impossible for the city to purchase the property, it must necessarily lie idle.

In the minds of transit men there's but one solution to the problem, and that is for the city to withdraw its suits against the company and allow it to apply to the Public Service Commission for a new franchise.

BROOKLYN SUBWAY MOVE.

Public Service Board to Ask for Bids Despite City's Opposition.

No matter whether the city has the money to spend for the construction or not, the Public Service Commission intends to advertise for bids for the Fourth Avenue subway in Brooklyn, which, according to Controller Metz, the city is not in a position to build. The Public Service Commission, at its meeting yesterday, passed a resolution authorizing Chairman Willcox to advertise for bids for the construction of the line. Afterward Mr. Willcox said:

"I think that we are to be congratulated that the work can be begun at an early date. I understand that several of the members of the Board of Estimate, including the Controller, were reported as saying at a public meeting on Sept. 12 last that the money was appropriated and available, so I presume that there will be no delay."

Reports of the meeting to which Mr. Willcox referred quoted Controller Metz as saying: "I realize that the section in question is a growing one and needs a subway. The money has been appropriated."

President McGowan was quoted as saying in part: "The appropriation for this subway was raised from $18,000,000 to $23,000,000, so that there would be no double fares or drawbacks. That money is ready and the city cannot borrow against it. It is unfair to the city to have that money laid aside and not used for the purpose intended."

Notwithstanding these utterances, the Board of Estimate, to which the matter will probably go on Friday, is almost certain to hold the matter up, pleading the debt limit. This question of the debt limit in relation to the building of new subways is becoming acute. Borough President Coler of Brooklyn will go to Albany to-day or to-morrow to ask the Governor to have the actual debt limit of the city ascertained by experts, who are not, in his words, "opposed to the building of new subways by the city."
